Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Congratulations, Lamb. The end of the month brings good news in the workplace, thanks to all the efforts you've made to get your projects off the ground and running.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Don't let yourself be cowed into thinking you're not up to the challenge you've taken on. Keep reinforcing your self-confidence, and no one and nothing can stop you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Positive responses to a recent workplace move should give you added assurance that you're on the right track. Celebrate the good news with family and/or friends.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) There's still a little emotional fuzziness you have to work through before you can feel really certain about your recent decisions. But you're on the right track. Stay with it.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You're tempted by an offer that seems close to what you've been looking for. But before you pounce on it, see if you can coax out some added perks to sweeten the deal.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your efforts to settle a volatile situation should prove successful. Now could be a good time to analyze what might have created the problem in the first place.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A once-close associate re-emerges with news that could cause you to reconsider a recent decision. But don't make a move before consulting a trusted adviser.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You might feel pressured to reveal a colleague's secret. But you can rely on your strong Scorpion sense of rectitude to help you continue to do the right thing.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) That pesky situation is still creating problems. But you are moving ahead with it, and it should soon be successfully resolved in your favor.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A spate of indecision leaves you susceptible to doubt. But you'll soon regain your emotional sure-footedness and be back leading the way, as usual.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Love rules the week with new romances favored for single Aquarians looking for partners. Cupid also targets renewed commitment for wedded Water Bearers.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A surge of creativity keeps you happily busy through the week. But leave some quiet time to share with loved ones. Some long-awaited news finally comes through.

BORN THIS WEEK: People rely on you whenever they need someone they can trust to be caring, considerate and also discreet.

Celebrating Asian New Year

THE LION WAS a big hit with approximately 500 Parker, Montclair and Sacred Heart School students at a Lion Dance celebration of the Asian New Year. The event, sponsored by Citizens Bank and featuring the Calvin Chin Martial Arts Academy, was held at the Sacred Heart school auditorium. (Quincy Sun photos/Robert Noble)

AMONG THOSE ENJOYING the Asian New Year celebration were students, members of the Citizens Bank Multicultural Resource Group, members of Quincy Asian Resources, Inc., and performers of the Calvin Chin Martial Arts Academy of Newton.

Quincy, neither the School Committee or the City can require the college to pay rent as a condition of continued occupancy of its buildings."

An affidavit by President Barry, filed with the suit by the college's attorney, Robert Marzelli, called the city's stand an "attempt by the Quincy School Committee to extort funds from Quincy College under threat of eviction from its buildings."

Lord-Piatelli said the college really shouldn't be paying any rent at all to the city.

"In 1990," she said, "the college paid the city $300,000 for the exclusive and permanent use of Coddington Hall. It was resolved by the School Committee and approved by the Mayor and the City Council.

"How many times do we have to pay for the same building?

"In 1993 or thereabouts, we agreed to pay #217,000 annually. We were not obligated to pay since essentially the building had been transferred to us in 1990.

Then we were served with an eviction notice by the School Committee and Mike McFarland told us they would throw us out if we did not pay the $450,000 by March 2.

"Now I hear from other sources that say they were never going to evict you. But we took them seriously. So did our students, faculty and other employees.

"We feel we have a right to be there and we want the judge to clarify the situation."

Barry said the decision to file suit was "extraordinarily difficult."

"But based on what we were hearing from the city, we had no choice," he said. "At stake here is the future of the college and the well-being of our students and public employees.

"As a former Quincy College student, as its president and as a resident of Quincy, I felt compelled to act in the best interest of the institution.

"This process has been hostile and divisive and it needs to be resolved. We need to clarify the issues upon which we disagree, and reach a solution that benefit the city and the college."

Lord-Piatelli described the action as "a motion for a temporary injunction to prevent the city from moving forward with the eviction until the issue (of the rent) is settled.

"Negotiation means compromise," she said. "There has been no compromise on their part even when we offered to pay $317,000 a year along with paying for the maintenance.

"I went to the School Committee in January and said it would be wise for us both to hire a neutral attorney to define our relationship. They refused.

"We even offered to pay for the attorney."

'Irate' Over Conditions, Calls For Contingency Plan

Phelan Wants Better Sidewalk Snow Removal At Schools

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Responding to complaints of inadequate snow removal on sidewalks and streets near the city's schools, Mayor William Phelan has directed the DPW to draft a contingency plan which would clear the city's roadways and walkways at those locations in a more effective fashion.

After the President's Day storm dumped more than two feet of snow in Quincy, Mayor Phelan was "irate" upon seeing the condition of the sidewalks and streets near the city's schools, according to Thomas Largey, the mayor's director of operations. "Unhappy is not a strong enough word to describe the mayor's sentiments," he said.

Phelan directed DPW Commissioner Jay Fink to begin working with other departments to draft a contingency plan and public guide that would prioritize important walkways and roadways for snow removal. This would allow the city, parents and children to navigate certain sidewalks and roadways in the case of a large storm, such as the President's Day blizzard two weeks ago.

"Under extreme events the city needs to be more proactive in plowing the walkways near the schools," said Fink.

He said the school department last week supplied him with a list of major walking routes used by the city's schoolchildren. With the help of the city council and other municipal departments, Fink said the DPW should be able to draft a master list of roadways and sidewalks that require a high priority for the purposes of plowing. This will help the city to begin drafting the contingency plan, he said.

"We will be going through the list and surveying the sidewalks to determine the appropriate walkways for children," said Fink. From this list the city will be able to decipher whether snow removal equipment can be used on certain walkways. Obstructions, such as trees and hydrants, may be interfering with snow removal in certain areas, he said.

Cahill Kidney Donation Surgery Successful

State Treasurer Tim Cahill of Quincy underwent successful surgery for the removal of his kidney for transplant into his sister, Alicia, in a six-hour surgical procedure at Mass General Hospital in Boston.

Karen Sharma, Cahill's spokeswoman at the state treasurer's office, said a five-member transplant team, led by Dr. Dicken Ko, worked on their patient from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

TIM CAHILL

"His doctors have stated that the surgery went well and that he is resting comfortably in the recovery room," said Sharma in an advisory bulletin at 4 p.m.

At the time, another team of five doctors in another

William (Bill) Sullivan Legendary QHS Coach Dies

William (Bill) Sullivan, legendary former Quincy High School football and baseball coach, died Tuesday after a long battle with pancreatic cancer. He was 90.

Mr. Sullivan died at the Braintree home of Deborah and Brian Bearde, his brother and sister-in-law, with his wife, Linda, at his side.

Funeral arrangements are by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston, but were incomplete as The Sun went to press.

Tentatively, a funeral Mass will be celebrated at St. Ann's Church, Wollaston, Friday or Saturday. Burial with military honors will be at Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Several of his former players and colleagues will serve as pallbearers.

Mr. Sullivan was a three-sport letterman at Quincy High School before becoming a coach. He was a standout in football, baseball and basketball.

He went on to be a three-letter man at Wilbraham Academy and also at Mount St. Mary's College where he was an All-Maryland end for three years.

CTE Turns Wrecked Auto Into Money, Experience

Rehabilitation of a wrecked auto has resulted in more than $5,000 for the Quincy Center for Technical Education's equipment fund and a whole lot of hands-on experience for students in the CTE's Auto Technologies Program.

The students in the Auto Body Program, with an assist from welding trainees in Metal Technology, were given a 2001 red Mustang that had been "totaled" in an auto accident and told to restore it to working condition.

The wrecked car, with significant damage to the frame and front end, was donated to the Quincy School Community Partnership by the Arbella Insurance Company. The Partnership, in turn, sent it on to the QaTE for the students to work on.

The students in the auto body shop started work in September, using the CTE's new frame straightening machine to restore the frame to its original position. Then with their instructors, Ed Campbell and Roy Parkhurst, they restored the rest of the damaged front end.

The restored car was raffled off at $25 a ticket. Last week, Mayor William Phelan drew the winning ticket, held by Diane Ferrari, a social worker at Hancock Park.

"We netted just over $10,000 in the raffle," said Emily Lebo, director of the CTE. "Five per cent went to the state; we spent $3,400 on parts. The rest went into our equipment fund. We're thinking of buying our own parts washer, which will save us money."

Students who took part in the restoration of the Mustang included:

Frank Feeley, who did most of the body work, and Mark Dondero, who did all the welding work.

Quincy College Rent Decision Due On Friday

Quincy College will know by the end of the week if it has to vacate city-owned Coddington Hall but a final settlement of its protracted rent dispute with the Quincy School Committee may take a whole lot longer.

Superior Court Judge John Cratsley Monday heard the college's bid for an injunction halting the eviction, which was scheduled for last Sunday, March 2, and took it under advisement with a ruling expected by Friday.

Both sides agreed to the judge's request that they maintain the status quo until he could make a ruling on the injunction.

"That's encouraging," said Theresa Lord-Piatelli, the chairwoman of the college's board of governors. "He could issue an injunction by Friday."

"I felt very optimistic," said Joanne Bragg, vice chairman of the School Committee, who also attended the hearing.

Whatever the judge's decision, Lord-Piatelli indicated that the college is prepared to continue its suit for a judicial determination of its precise relationship to the city and the School Committee.

The larger question is this: Is Quincy College enough of a department of the city government so that it is entitled to use its buildings free of charge like a police or fire station?

Lord-Piatelli said the judge could order the case to trial as early as August or September.

"But it's not unusual to go to trial in two or three years," she said. "That's standard in cases like these. Discovery could take a year or more. Then there is the time needed to prepare the case."

The dispute started last year when the School Committee raised Quincy College's rent on Coddington Hall and two smaller buildings from $217,000 a year to $450,000.

The School Committee has already calculated the $233,000 difference in its school budget for fiscal 2003.

The college refused to pay the increase.

"We have been paying $18,000 a month in rent," said Lord-Piatelli, "but the city has not been cashing the checks.

"The financial situation is dire and yet they've been sitting on nine months worth of checks."

Joanne Bragg said the School Committee's last offer was a four-year lease at $450,000 a year, then a renewal for three years with a 3 percent increase each year.

"That would give them stability and seven years in which to work things out," she said. "We can't sell the buildings because they are owned by the city."

She said the college's last offer was an agreement to pay $450,000 this year, then determine how much the buildings are worth and pay no less than $450,000 until the value is reached.

"They need a long term commitment and we are limited by law to no more than a seven year agreement," she said.

Bragg said the School Department had not been cashing the college's monthly rental checks because there is a question whether such an action would commit the committee to the old rental rate.

Hungarian Restaurant Loses Appeal On Beer-Wine License

The hope of serving beer and wine in Anna's Kitchen on 258 Willard St. has been dashed again for owner Charles Debreczeni and his wife Anna.

They had appealed to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission (ABCC) following a rejection by the License Board.

Chairman Joseph Shea, speaking at Tuesday's board meeting, said the ABCC approved the action of the local board and has rejected the license for beer and wine.

When Debreczeni first applied for the license last year, the landlord Bruce Wood was vehemently against it because traditionally the restaurant served breakfast and lunch. It was formerly (The Egg An I.) Wood continued his rejection also citing traffic conditions.

Council Reverses Course On Funding Of Salaries

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The city council reversed itself Monday night and agreed to fully fund two appropriations requests from Mayor William Phelan, after he agreed to bring funding requests to the council's attention in a more timely fashion.

After receiving assurances from Phelan, the council agreed to reverse course and fully fund salary appropriations for employees in the Inspectional Services and Information Technology departments.

As a result, the council appropriated $83,650 for Inspectional Services and $79,523 for Information Technology. The employees include a building inspector, a telephone operator, a telecommunications supervisor and a part-time sealer of weights and measures.

The city council finance committee last week voted to cut funds from both appropriations, saying the mayor should have brought the requests to their attention months ago.

In a letter to the city council, Mayor Phelan said he did not bring the appropriations to the forefront sooner because other budgetary factors – the early retirement incentive, the setting of the tax rate and revenue projections – delayed his request.

"I understand from the debate of the Finance Committee that the council expected an appropriation at an earlier date," Phelan wrote to councillors. "Be assured it was not my intention to undermine the council's role relative to the budget process; to the contrary, it was my belief that retaining positions after input from the council during the budget deliberations was respecting the council's input and working cooperatively."

Phelan conceded that it would have been appropriate to make the requests sooner.

"In retrospect, I agree it would have been more prudent and appropriate for me to come in with the appropriation immediately after the decision to keep the positions was made. In the future it is my intention to do just that," Phelan wrote.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin said the council made the right move by funding the positions. He said the mayor told him there was a possibility of layoffs if the council did not fully fund the budget requests.

"We may have a difference of opinion on the budget process, but you can't hurt the people who are involved in this," said Coughlin. "The process is separate and distinct from the needs of the departments. We did not want to see any layoffs as a result of cutting these budgets."

After speaking with Mayor Phelan about the issue, Councillor Frank McCauley said he was confident the matter would not turn up again. "I think the message that was sent by the council at the last meeting was received," said McCauley.

Thomas Largey, the mayor's director of operations, said Phelan was adamant about the funding requests because of the possibility of layoffs.

Coughlin said it was recently brought to his attention that an employee working as a parking control officer was hired outside the budget. Coughlin said the particular line item in the budget calls for the employment of three employees in that position. But Phelan has four on the payroll, he said.

Largey said Phelan has not violated the law and is following a practice that has been used by past administrations.

"The mayor has done nothing inappropriate," said Largey. "This is keeping with past practice and within the spirit and letter of the law. No new position has been created."

Council President Dan Raymondi criticized Phelan, saying, "There needs to be a coming clean by this administration."

The council asked Auditor Rick Fitzpatrick to review the payrolls of the municipal departments to determine if there are any similar situations in the budget.

"We are looking at the budget line by line," said Coughlin. "We are not sure the mayor is looking at it the same way."

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On March 6, 1475, Michelangelo Buonarroti, the greatest of the Italian Renaissance artists, is born in the small village of Caprese. He grew up in Florence, a center of the early Renaissance movement, and became an artist's apprentice at age 13.

• On March 3, 1863, during the Civil War, the U.S. Congress passes a conscription act that produces the first wartime draft in American history. Exemptions from the draft could be bought for $300, which led to bloody draft riots in New York City, where protesters were outraged that exemptions were effectively granted only to the wealthy.

• On March 8, 1933, "42nd Street," choreographed by Busby Berkeley, opens. His lavish dance numbers, which featured dozens of chorus girls in elaborate costumes, caught on with audiences eager to escape the bleak realities of the Great Depression.

• On March 4, 1944, Louis "Lepke" Buchalter, the head of Murder, Inc., is executed at Sing Sing prison in New York. Lepke was the leader of the country's largest crime syndicate throughout the 1930s and was making nearly $50 million a year.

• On March 5, 1969, the Dade County Sheriff's Office in Florida issues an arrest warrant for The Doors' lead singer, Jim Morrison. He is charged with a single felony count and three misdemeanors for his stage antics at a Miami concert a few days earlier.

• On March 9, 1997, Christopher Wallace, aka Biggie Smalls, aka the Notorious B.I.G., is shot to death at a stoplight in Los Angeles. Ironically, Wallace's death came only weeks before his new album, "Life After Death," was scheduled to be released.

• On March 7, 1999, American filmmaker Stanley Kubrick dies in Hertfordshire, England, at the age of 70. One of the most acclaimed film directors of the 20th century, Kubrick's 13 feature films explored the dark side of human nature.

Bill Sullivan: A True Legend

The words legend and legendary are sometimes used a little loosely in tributes to those who leave their mark in sports, entertainment, politics or whatever their particular field.

But those two words were tailor-made, perfect fits for Bill Sullivan, whose name will always be synonymous with Quincy High School.

A three sports standout as a player and an outstanding football and baseball coach, Sully, as he was affectionately known to his players and friends, died Tuesday at age 90.

He had put up a courageous battle against pancreatic cancer with his wife, Linda, at his side. He never flinched. And never complained.

He was a first class act both on the field and off.

Although in sports best remembered for football, he was also a baseball and basketball standout at his beloved QHS from 1928 to 1930.

He was an all-scholastic tackle and fullback for Quincy during those three years and went on to be a three-letter man at Wilbraham Academy and also at Mount St. Mary's college where he was an All-Maryland end for three years.

He was line coach and right-arm to another legend -- the late Munroe MacLean -- at QHS from 1938 to 1942 and from 1946 to 1951 with World War II service as an officer in the Navy in between.

He took over as head coach in 1952, stepping down in 1959.

And as head coach, among other accomplishments, he left his mark in the Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day rivalry. He had a 6-2 record in that series. That still stands today.

And led Quincy to five consecutive wins against North from 1954-1958, the longest consecutive win streak in the 69-year rivalry.

In October, 2000, the No. 15 he wore at Quincy as a football player was retired at a dinner and ceremony sponsored by the Quincy High School Alumni Benefit Fund.

Former Athletic Director Marty Finnegan came all the way from California to be there. And former rivals like Pete (Mr. North Quincy) Zoia, and former players were on hand to help make it a special day for Sully.

His baseball jersey -- also No. 15 -- was retired by the QHS Baseball Alumni Hall of Fame in June, 2002.

Bill wouldn't let his illness keep him from QHS alumni sports get-togethers which became sentimental to him and his former players.

He was there last October to help honor the memory of Munroe MacLean when the same group retired the latter's No. 1.

It was an emotional day for Bill because "Mac" was not only his football colleague but a close friend. He was fighting back tears as he spoke of his admiration for "Mac" and recalled their days together.

BILL SULLIVAN, pacing in the lockerroom, gives his Quincy High School team a pep talk between halves of the 1956 Thanksgiving Day game with North Quincy. And it worked. Quincy was losing 6-0 at the time, but came out to win 19-13.

The strong bond between Sully and his former players and colleagues will be in evidence at his funeral.

As this is written, the Mass was tentatively set for either Friday or Saturday at St. Ann's Church. Arrangements were incomplete at press-time.

And several of his former players and colleagues will serve as active and honorary pallbearers.

He was a gentleman, as was MacLean. There was no profanity from the bench or in the lockerroom. No humiliating a player for a mistake on the field.

Both were role models. The kind you would like to have your son play football for. Or just to know.

They don't come along like that too often in life.

And that's a shame because in these times, we especially need more like them.

Bill Sullivan and Munroe MacLean -- they were really special.

Child ID Program Saturday At Wollaston Child Care

The Child Identification Program (CHIP) will be hosted at the Wollaston Child Care Center, 47 Weston Ave., on Saturday, March 8, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Parents and guardians of the community are invited to bring their children for a brief taped interview, fingerprints and dental impressions.

The taped interview will record the child's appearance, mannerisms and speech patterns. Fingertprinting will be done by professional law enforcement personnel and dental impressions will also be taken by professionals.

All items will be given to the parent or guardian for safe-keeping at no cost.

Wollaston Child Care Center is hosting the event in cooperation with the Wollaston Lodge of Masons, the Massachusetts Dental Society and the Crime Prevention Officers Association.

The event is open to the community. Parents and guardians are encouraged to register early to avoid waiting lines.

The CHIP program addresses the alarming fact that more than a million children are reported missing each year. The program is provided free of charge to all participants.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1950'S postcard view of the Sea Street entrance to the Mount Wollaston Cemetery. The fountain in the foreground had originally been located in Quincy Square where a civic group that raised the funds for it had placed it. Used as a watering trough for horses, it had to be discontinued in 1917 during the great influenza epidemic, and it was moved to the cemetery entrance as a decorative piece. The prominent Gothic styled Quincy granite gate in the background was constructed and installed by the Mitchell Granite Company when the cemetery opened in 1855. The opening of the cemetery was surrounded by controversy. A strong anti-Catholic movement in the town at the time was opposed to the consecration; they believed it was a popish custom and should not be tolerated. Further, they wanted the new gate demolished because it had a cross carved on it. The movement, however, did not prevail and was short lived, and the gate stood for over 100 years. Then in 1960 the Cemetery Board of Managers, in their wisdom, had the gate dismantled. It was deemed too narrow for the modern trucks that were damaging the granite when passing through it. Today, four skeletal columns salvaged from the original gate mark the entrance.

READERS FORUM

Against Making Sept. 11, Nov. 11 Election Day

As a Vietnam War era veteran and a public information officer for the DAV Post 13 in Dorchester, I join with members of the Quincy Veterans Council in voicing my disapproval of either making Sept. 11 preliminary or primary election day or of making Veterans Day Nov. 11 Election Day.

Too bad pols or wannabe pols jump the gun proposing things without first running the ideas by veterans to begin with. Hank Bradley's comments in The Quincy Sun echo my feelings.

While the idea sounds good on paper for both proposals, things really aren't always as good as they sound. Changing the September election to always being Sept. 11 isn't as patriotic as it sounds at first. Rather, always voting on the anniversary of a terror attack would only make us victims over and over again. We have to get beyond being victims.

Tuesday, Sept. 11, 2001 was preliminary election day in Quincy. I was at the polls that morning when I heard about New York. It was a horrible moment that became a horrible day and period to follow. I do not wish to honor that helpless feeling by changing the date of an election to that date forever.

As far as Veterans Day goes, it belongs to veterans. Keep it separate from our duty to vote. People who honor veterans and people who remember what happened on 9/11 will usually vote rain or shine. We don't need to pass new municipal ordinances or state laws for that.

We shouldn't even be having this debate because before the Veterans Day idea made it up to Beacon Hill, the pols should have asked veterans what they thought first. Same for Sept. 11. Ask around first before going public with ideas doomed from the start.

I will never forget what Sept. 11 means anymore than my father never forgot what Pearl Harbor meant to him. Neither he nor I forgot what Veterans Day was all about too.

If we need "special" days to get some people to vote, maybe those folks should just stay home anyway.

Thank You, Quincy And Milton

The L Street Running Club would like to express our sincere thanks to the Milton and Quincy police who on Feb. 16 provided our runners with traffic control during a recent Boston Marathon training run.

Training for a marathon is not a small undertaking and training in sub-zero temperatures of Feb. 16 increased the challenge. The police officers provided extraordinary traffic control for the safety of the runners while expressing words of encouragement as the runners ran past them. The conditions were difficult but the friendly words of encouragement and assistance with traffic kept the runners minds off the weather conditions.

L Street marathon runners enjoy the challenge and the terrain Milton and Quincy have to offer. The training runs would not be possible without the cooperation and support given by Milton and Quincy police and the residents of both communities.

Running a marathon is an enormous commitment of time and endurance. The runners are forever grateful for the acts of support and kindness they receive from the citizens of Milton and Quincy and enthusiastic support from Mayor William Phelan and his office staff.

Most of all thank you to the motorists of Milton and Quincy for your patience and encouragement during the Feb. 16 run.

35,000 Turn Out As City Honors Captain Stedman

This Week
70 Years Ago

Capt. Giles Chester Stedman returned to duty aboard the SS Leviathan after being honored by his native Quincy for personally directing two daring sea rescues that saved 49 lives in the past few years.

Some 35,000 people turned out for the Saturday parade in his honor.

Meanwhile, Harry S. Burr was organizing the 20th reunion of Capt. Stedman's Quincy High School Class of 1914, which was called the worst in the school's history since none of its 108 members made the honor roll.

"Chester has redeemed that class at last," said Miss Sally F. Dawes, head of the English Department.

Other class members included Marion Edwards, who reportedly married a Danish prince; Dorothea Brokaw, who wed a missionary to China; and Ruth G. Jones, who became a Broadway actress under the name Ruth Gordon.

RENAMING STREETS

The Board of Survey held a hearing into a proposal to change the names of 14 Quincy streets since many of the city's roadways had the same names. Proposed for changes were:

Atlantic Ave. to Pitts Ave.; Beach St. to Seaway Rd.; Bryant Place to Piper St.; Chestnut St. to Mrytle St.; Gren St. to Bellevue Rd.; Hampden St. to Mayberry Rd.; Hanna Place to Odom St.

Highland Ave. to Belmont St.; Newcombe Ave. to Follet St.; Prilvord St. to Mt. Vernon St. to Oval Rd.; River St. to Densmore St.; Spring Ave. to Rowley St.; Webster St. to Wentworth Rd.

SCHOOL BUDGET CUT SEEN

Three members of the School Committee said it is possible that the school budget can be reduced to $1,029,960.26, or $7,475.13 less than 1932 because of state aid and payroll donations by school personnel.

The three members -- Dr. Nathaniel S. Hunting, Dr. Daniel B. Reardon and Col. Warren Sweetser -- along with Mayor Charles A. Ross constituted a majority of the seven-member board.

QUINCY-ISMS

Teams from Boston Latin School debated the resolution that "modern advertising is detrimental to the best interests of the American public" at the Quincy Knights of Columbus clubhouse on Foster St. . . Broadway Show March 14 At Marriott Hotel

Quincy Education Foundation To Present 'BeatleMania Live'

The Quincy Foundation For Excellence In Education will present "BeatleMania Live" Friday, March 14 at 8 p.m. at the Marriott Quincy Hotel, 1000 Marriott Drive, West Quincy.

Tickets for the fundraiser are $25 and may be purchased at Central Middle School, 1012 Hancock St., Quincy, or by calling 617-984-8725. All proceeds will benefit the Quincy Public Schools.

Judy Brams and Mary Ann Mahony are committee co-chairwomen and Central Principal Frank and Linda Santoro are the event coordinators.

"BeatleMania Live" has performed around the world. The tribute band sings and plays all the Beatle hits live. The group has performed in the area in recent years to sell-out crowds.

The Quincy Foundation For Excellence, a non-profit organization, was founded in 1990 by concerned parents, educators and residents that are outside of the school department budget.

Funds are raised by sponsoring special events such as "BeatleMania Live."

"BEATLEMANIA," featuring all of the Beatle hits, will be at the Marriott Quincy Hotel Friday, March 14, sponsored by the Quincy Foundation For Excellence In Education. All proceeds will benefit the Quincy public schools.

'Unscrabble' Tournament March 20 At Crane Library

The fifth annual "Unscrabble" fundraiser for the benefit of the Literacy Project will be held Thursday, March 20, from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center.

The fundraiser is sponsored by the Literacy Volunteers of America-Quincy and Altrusa International of Quincy. Registration fee is $10 per person.

The rules of "Unscrabble" are slightly different than those of the game that is played in living rooms across America.

For 30 minutes a team of four to six players builds words on the Scrabble board using the entire bag of tiles. At the end of the 30 minutes, scores are totaled horizontally and vertically. The top three high-scoring teams win.

The twist on this game is that a team can buy tiles. Players willing to face the judges can choose a specific tile at the cost of impersonating a famous character, telling a great joke or quoting a famous line from a movies.

For further information on the "Unscrabble" tournament can be obtained and registration are available by calling Elaine Kline at 617-376-1314.

Choral Society To Present 'Afternoon At The Opera'

The Quincy Choral Society will present "An Afternoon at the Opera," featuring selections from "Carmen," "Madame Butterfly," and "Phantom of the Opera" Sunday, March 16, at 3 p.m. in the Sacred Heart School auditorium, Hancock St., North Quincy.

A silent auction will be offered before the concert and during intermission with all proceeds going to the future support of the Quincy Choral Society. Doors open at 2:15 p.m. The concert is free.

For further information, call 617-696-3941.

Sterling Middle/South Junior To Celebrate Its 75th Birthday

Sterling Middle School/Sterling Junior High School/South Junior High School will celebrate its 75th anniversary Tuesday, March 25, with a tour of the school as it is today and a dinner party at the Sons of Italy Hall on Quarry Street.

The tour of the school on Granite Street, West Quincy, which was opened 75 years ago as South Junior High School, will be conducted between 4 and 6 p.m. followed by the dinner and musical entertainment.

There will be a social hour from 6 to 7 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Hall and the dinner and music from 7 to 11 p.m. Tickets are $25 per person.

The organizing committee is still looking for members for the following subcommittees: Memorabilia, Fundraising, Decorating and Banquet. Anyone willing to help is asked to call Mike Dracchio and Colleen Roberts at 617-984-8729.

'Bell, Book And Candle' Opens Tonight At NQ Alumni Theatre

The North Quincy Alumni Theater is presenting six performances of "Bell, Book and Candle" beginning tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. at the Black Box Theatre in North Quincy High School, 316 Hancock St.

The productions of John Van Druten's play, directed by Frank Moffett, will continue on March 7, 8, 13, 14 and 15 with all performances beginning at 8 p.m. Tickets are $12 for adults, $10 for students and seniors.

Call 617-769-0232 to reserve tickets.

Mr., Mrs. Donald Robinson Celebrate 61st Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Robinson, both retired from posts in the Quincy Public School system, celebrated their 61st wedding anniversary on Valentine's Day.

They were married Feb. 14, 1942, at the former Finnish Lutheran Church in Quincy. They remain active members of Faith Lutheran Church, also in Quincy.

Mr. Robinson retired as a carpenter with the school maintenance department and Mrs. Robinson retired as a instructor in the culinary arts department of the Quincy Vocational Technical High School.

Prior to that, Mrs. Robinson, the former Martha Ahola, was affiliated with the family baking business and worked as a cook-manager at Sterling Junior High School cafeteria.

MR. and MRS. DONALD ROBINSON

She also serves on the Quincy Community Action Program board of directors.

The Robinsons are the parents of Shirley I. McDonald of Marshfield and the late Susan M. Robinson. They have two grandsons and two great grandsons.

Fourth Annual Steven Barrett Memorial Blood Drive April 5

The American Red Cross is sponsoring the fourth annual Steven Barrett Memorial Blood Drive Saturday, April 5 from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. at St. Joseph's School Hall, 22 Pray St., Quincy.

The blood drive is dedicated to the life of Steven Barrett, a Quincy resident and Nantucket Island police officer killed in an automobile accident on Sept. 30, 1999 at the age of 22.

"Steven always gave blood during his life so this is a fitting memorial to him," said his father, Chris Barrett. "He was a great kid, a wonderful son, and a great cop."

STEVEN BARRETT

Chris Barrett said nearly 200 people have donated blood each of the last three years. He hopes for the same this year.

Steven Barrett attended Quincy Public Schools and was a member of the Quincy High hockey, baseball, and golf teams. He was captain of every team.

He graduated from Quincy High School in 1995. He pursued a Criminal Justice degree and graduated from Westfield State College in 1999.

Barrett become a police officer on Nantucket Island in 1999. He was to be appointed to a permanent position at the time of his death.

Potential blood donors must be at least 17 years old, in good health, and weigh over 110 pounds.

For more information please contact the American Red Cross at 1-800-448-3543 or Chris Barrett at 617-471-3743 or Ed Barkhouse at 617-4721233, or email nancy.ceriani@verizon.net.

Phelan Urges City Decals For State License Plates

Mayor William Phelan has thrown his support to a plan that would localize the state's auto license plates by selling decals in order to raise money for the School Department's depleted text book account.

The plan would have the state issue a generic plate, the cost of which would be shared by the communities,; then each city and town would design and manufacture its own decal for sale to local drivers who would attach them to their plates.

"The revenues from the sale of these city/town decals could then be placed in individual revolving funds in each municipality," said Phelan in a letter supporting the plan and soliciting the help of Gov. Mitt Romney.

"The financial burden up front is decreased by sharing the production cost of one generic plate, the burden on the Registry of Motor Vehicles is decreased dramatically by only putting out one plate . . . and each city or town can (sell) their decals locally."

Phelan said the city of Quincy, which had to cut $220,000 from its textbook budget in the past year, could realize from the plan between $100,000 and $300,000 on a bi-annual basis depending on the participation by the city's car owners.

The plan has already been proposed by Robert Haley, the Hanover town treasurer and a member of Quincy Tourism's board of directors, in a January letter to Lt. Gov. Kerry Healey. "I wholeheartedly agree with his proposal," said Phelan.

Phelan noted that state laws passed in 2002 established a Distinctive Registration Process and a children's education fund as an additional source of funding for cities and towns to purchase textbooks for their schools.

"With the pending cuts in local aid that you are proposing for this fiscal year as well as the cuts that cities and town have already faced in the current fiscal year, the use of this fund may very well save underfunded text book budgets," he told Romney.

"As it stands now, this legislation contains requirements that cities and towns cannot meet with the current financial picture. It is unfortunate that legislation created to provide additional revenue is unable to be helpful when it is needed the most.

"The legislation is only viable for a city or town that can gather 1,500 applications (3,000 applications within two years) and post a $100,000 bond up front. With the state of municipal budgets as they stand, it is not a reality for many of us."

Shipyard Owner Faces Clean Up, Environmental Issues

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Before plans to develop the shipyard can be realized, the new owner will have to clean up any contaminants at the site and contend with a number of environmental laws and regulations.

One of the agencies overseeing the cleanup will be the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

EPA representatives met with members of the Fore River Redevelopment Committee last week in an effort to shed light on the various federal environmental issues facing the future owner of the 130-acre site.

EPA Senior Enforcement Counsel Thomas Olivier and EPA representative Kimberly Tisa fielded questions from the civic committee, including state Rep. Ron Mariano and City Council President Dan Raymondi.

The new owner must outline plans for the entire site and enter into an agreement with EPA for the future cleanup. The owner is obligated to hire a Licensed Site Professional (LSP), which would be responsible for conducting an environmental study and determining the extent of contamination at the yard.

From the results of the study the new owner would draft a cleanup plan to address any environmental laws and regulations. The plan would be submitted to the EPA for review.

EPA would have to sign off or amend the plan. The proposed uses of the site will dictate the type and amount of cleanup, Olivier said.

"If a proposed use was a kids' playground in the area of contamination then the cleanup would have to be much more stringent than if it were to be a parking lot, presumably for cars," said Olivier.

The new owner would be responsible for following EPA's recommendations for cleanup.

If the cleanup is not done or completed to EPA's standards then the federal agency has the jurisdiction to force the cleanup and take the owner to court, Olivier said.

He said it would be possible for the new owner to conduct a cleanup in certain areas of the site while other areas of the site are used for other purposes. But the cleanup plan will address that issue, Olivier said.

He said the new owner would be compelled to cleanup certain areas of the premises under a federal law called the Toxic Substances Control Act, which was enacted in 1976. The statute governs the disposal of certain chemicals found at a particular site.

Tisa said EPA has found a number of abandoned transformer vaults located near piers at the site. PCBs can be found in insulating liquids for transformers.

The vaults and piers have deteriorated to the point where EPA is concerned with their location relative to the water, she said. Tisa said the remnants of the electrical transformers contain high levels of PCBs.

EPA has found lesser amounts of PCBs at other sites on the premises, she said.

"The levels we are finding here do require cleanup," Olivier told the committee.

The EPA said a specific cleanup plan would be drafted based on the owner's plans for the site.

Considering the long term industrial uses of the site over the past 50 years, it is not unusual to find PCBs, Olivier said.

In addition to abiding by federal laws, the future owner will have to contend with the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) and the state's laws governing environmental cleanup.

Thus far – based on the known contaminants at the site – EPA has jurisdiction of the cleanup of PCBs only, Olivier said. The State DEP will assume jurisdiction over the cleanup of all other known contaminants at the site, he said.

Council Hears Proposal To Lift Age Restriction At Highlands

The city council Monday night, acting as a special permit granting authority, heard from concerned residents over a proposal to drop the age restriction at The Highlands at Faxon Woods.

About 30 residents attended a hearing and several spoke out in favor of the proposal. The city council will vote on the plan next month.

Currently, the 196-unit apartment complex is available to people ages 55 or older. The proposal would lift the age restriction and open up the facilities to the general public. The plan also would set aside 20 units for affordable housing.

To date, only 30 units have been rented, according to Attorney Dennis Harrington, who represents Roseland Management Company.

In addition, the company wants to add 82 parking spaces to accommodate new tenants, Harrington said.

He said residents who plan on staying in their current apartment would receive a one-month credit when a new lease is signed.

The city's planning board signed off on the plan and recommended that the council do the same.

City Flag Flying In Afghanistan

Eastwick, son of Frances and David Eastwick, including a photo of five Quincy guardsmen holding the flag.

"On behalf of the (Quincy) residents currently serving here," wrote Eastwick, "we would like to express our thanks for the support from Mayor Phelan and the residents of the city of Quincy.

"We received the flag that was signed by our families and have a certificate to present to the mayor upon our return."

Eastwick's folks, who live on Chickatabot Road, said their son has been in Afghanistan for nearly eight months in the 772nd Military Police Company.

Also signing the flag were Enrico and Mary Parisi of Wilson Avenue, parents of Sgt. Daniel Parisi, and Dottieanne Perry and Dottie Sandrick, sister and mother of Frederick Sandrick.

Mr. Sullivan became head coach in 1952, succeeding Mr. MacLean who became athletics director, and retired in 1959.

As head coach he is remembered for leading his Quincy team to five consecutive wins against North Quincy in the Thanksgiving Day rivalry, the longest win streak in that series.

He was a member of the Quincy-North Quincy Football Hall of Fame Committee and a member of the Quincy High School Baseball Hall of Fame Committee.

His No. 15 as a football and baseball player at Quincy High were retired in his honor.

Mr. Sullivan grew up in Quincy Point and lived in Wollaston 46 years before moving to Weymouth 10 years ago.

Highpoint Project Traffic Topic Of Neighborhood Meeting

Ward 4 Councillor Bryan Connolly has asked Traffic Engineer Roy Lamotte to begin developing a traffic plan that addresses construction of the Highpoint project in West Quincy.

Connolly scheduled a neighborhood meeting last night (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. in the Ward 4 Community Center, 100 Brooks Ave., to receive feedback from concerned residents regarding future traffic management near Highpoint.

The Highpoint project, which was permitted in 1999, authorizes construction of 1,040 apartment units.

"Traffic along Quarry St. and other West Quincy roadways will be dramatically affected by the thousands of new daily car trips generated by this project," said Connolly.

License Board Briefs

•Granted a change of owner and manager of Pacini's Italian Eatery, 1506-1508 Hancock St. and also transfer of common victualer all alcoholic license presently held by Haralambos Karamolengos to Pandeli Treska. The name will remain the same.

•Granted a one day beer and wine license to St. Ann's PTO for their annual St. Patrick's Day dance March 22 from 7 p.m. to midnight.

Quincy Lions Hosting Event At Quincy Marriott

Lions International President To Visit Quincy March 8

The City of Presidents will play host to another president this week, when Lions Club International President Kay K. Fukushima visits Quincy to attend the first-ever New England Lions Council "Evening with the International President."

The event, to be held Saturday, March 8 at the Quincy Marriott, is expected to draw more than 500 Lions from across New England, with proceeds benefiting the Lions Club International Foundation (LCIF).

Also on hand will be Quincy Mayor William J. Phelan, who will extend the city's greetings to Fukushima, president of the world's largest service organization.

"The Quincy Lions Club is both pleased and honored that Quincy was chosen to host this special event," said club President Christine Cedrone. "We look forward to sharing our city's history and commitment to service with President Fukushima."

Fukushima, a third-generation Japanese-America, was born in Sacramento, Calif. He and his family spent World War II in a Japanese internment camp before returning to Sacramento, where he graduated from high school. A U.S. Army veteran, Fukushima's assignment to a booster rocket for manned space flights saw him travel to Cape Canaveral, where he observed the pioneering sub-orbital flights of astronauts Alan Shephard, Jr. and Gus Grissom.

After being discharged from the army, Fukushima enrolled at the University of California at Sacramento, where he majored in marketing. He graduated in 1965—the same year in which he got married and became a Lion—and entered the insurance industry. He went on to found his own successful insurance agency, which grew to have 16 branches. Prior to being installed as Lions International President in Osaka, Japan last July, Fukushima had served in many Lions Club offices, including club president, zone chair, deputy district governor, international director and International Second Vice President.

With 1.4 million members in 190 countries around the world, Lions Club International is the largest service organization in the world. LCIF—the charitable arm of the organization—provides emergency disaster relief and humanitarian aid to those in need around the world. LCIF also supports Lions projects worldwide that provide vital services to local communities.

Environmental Comment Sought On New QHS Site

The State Secretary of Environmental Affairs is accepting comments from the public on whether or not a full Environmental Impact Report is needed to build a new Quincy High School on Faxon Field.

The deadline for comment is Tuesday, March 18, or 20 days after it was advertised in the Feb. 28 issue of the weekly Environmental Monitor. The secretary will then have 10 days to decide whether or not an environmental report is needed.

Written comments should be addressed to the Secretary of Environmental Affairs, 251 Causeway St., Suite 900, Boston, MA, 02114. Attention to MEPA Office, referencing the "New Quincy High School and Central Middle School" project.

Copies of the Environmental Notification Form may be inspected at the offices of the Quincy Conservation Commission and the Quincy Planning Board.

Mayor Phelan and the School Committee: Please do not shut down Quincy College

Did you know.....

- An increase of greater than 100 percent in rent will mean an unprecedented hike in tuition.
- Higher tuition will result in the loss of students and educational opportunity to thousands of potential students.
- The loss of students will mean the death of Quincy College.

Some facts about Quincy College.....

- We receive no financial help from the State - student tuition constitutes 97% of College income.
- We do not cost the City of Quincy $1,300,000 in services a year.
- Quincy College has provided low cost/high quality nursing, business, and transfer programs for thousands of students.
- Many graduates are from other countries - to them the City of Quincy is the United States of America.
- The College has invested over a $1,000, 000 to bring these building up to code all maintenance, and costs of repairs have been at no cost to the to the City of Quincy.
- The faculty are public employees - the same as policemen, firemen, and other teachers of Quincy.
- The closing of Quincy College will end the careers of public employees, many with over 20 years of service to the City.
- Quincy College should be seen as a source of pride, not as cash cow to be milked.

Mayor Phelan.....

What will the City of Quincy gain by closing Quincy College?

We, the undersigned, urge you and the School Committee, to engage in meaningful negotiations with the Quincy College Board of Governors.

ID Theft: Part II

In the course of the day you may write a check at the drugstore, charge tickets to a concert, rent a car, call home on your cell phone, or apply for a credit card. Chances are you don't give these routine transactions a second thought.

But others may.

Identity theft is the fastest growing crime in America, affecting half a million new victims each year.

Identity theft, or identity fraud, is the taking of a victim's identity to obtain credit and credit cards from banks and retailers, steal money from a victim's existing accounts, apply for loans, establish accounts with utility companies, rent an apartment, file bankruptcy, or obtain a job using the victim's name. Thousands of dollars can be stolen without the victim knowing about it for months or even years.

The imposter obtains your Social Security number, your date of birth, and other identifying information such as your address and phone number. With this information and a fake driver's license, they can apply in person for instant credit or through the mail posing as you. They often claim they have moved and provide their own address. Once the first account is opened, they can continue to add to their credibility.

They get information from your doctor, lawyer, school, health insurance carrier, and many other places. "Dumpster divers" pick up information you may thrown away, such as utility bills, credit card slips, and other documents.

To prevent this from happening to you:

• Do not put your telephone number on checks.

• Be careful using ATMs and phone cards. Someone may look over your shoulder and get your PIN number, thereby gaining access to your accounts.

• Make a list of all your credit card account numbers and bank account numbers with customer service numbers and keep it in a safe place.

• When you order new credit cards in the mail or previous ones have expired, watch the calendar to make sure you get the card within the appropriate time. If the card is not received within that time, call the credit card grantor immediately to find out if the card has been sent. If you don't receive the card, check to make sure a change of address was not filed.

• Do not put your credit number on the Internet unless it is encrypted on a secured site.

• Pay attention to your billing cycles. Follow up with creditors if bills don't arrive on time. A missing credit card bill could mean an identity thief has taken over your credit card account and changed your billing address.

• Cancel all credit cards that you have not used in the last six months. Open credit is a prime target.

• Order your report at least twice a year. Reports should be obtained from all three major sources: Equifax at 800-685-1111, Experian at 888-EXPERIAN (397-3742), or TransUnion at 800-680-7293.

• Correct all mistakes on your credit report in writing. Send the letter return receipt requested. Identify the problems item by item and send either a copy of the credit report back to the credit reporting agency. You should hear from the agency in 30 days.

• Write to Direct Marketing Association, Mail Preference Service, P.O. Box 9008, Farmingdale, NY 11735 to get your name off direct mail.

Council Approves Benefits For City Workers Called To Duty

The city council Monday night approved Mayor William Phelan's request to compensate city employees who are called into active duty by the armed forces.

Phelan asked the council to accept the provisions of a state law 91 which allows city employees called to active duty to receive the difference between their civilian and military pay for two years.

Also, Phelan's executive order continues health, dental and life insurance benefits for city workers and their families at the employee rate for two years and allows for the accrual of vacation and sick days for one year.

Meeting Tonight Regarding Construction On Common St.

Ward 4 Councillor Bryan Connolly has scheduled a meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., 2nd Floor Conference Room, to address plans to build new houses on the small farm property located at 53-63 Common St.

Connolly said the owner of the property intends to subdivide and construct three family homes on the premises.

The owner will attend the meeting to answer questions and respond to concerns, Connolly said.

Avoid Mistakes In Buying Long-Term Care Insurance

About 10% of people over age 60 have long-term Care Insurance and more are getting protected everyday. But some have overpaid or have obtained a qualified policy and would be better with a non-qualified policy and vice-versa. Find out who needs this insurance and who doesn't and how not to overpay.

Weymouth, MA - A FREE booklet is available that shows retirees how to save costs, determine if they need Long-Term Care Insurance, when to get it, and how to get your premiums refunded if you do not use the insurance. Call 888-534-6297, 24 hours, and get your copy of the booklet that is must reading for retirees. The report is for people under age 80 who do not already have Long-Term Care Insurance.

Home 'Energy Gobblers' -- Older Appliances -- Are Wasteful

Want to save some serious cash on your electric bills without banishing family members who forget to turn off lights?

If you're like most homeowners, you're probably not even aware that "energy gobblers" are lurking in your basement, your kitchen or your garage, and they're eating up your money.

The biggest culprits are old refrigerators. If you use a "retired" fridge to store frozen foods, holiday dinners and "emergency" six-packs, the best advice is to get rid of it.

How much could you save by throwing out that still-functional dinosaur? More than $100 per year is possible and, because homeowners typically hold on to refrigerators for 20 years or more, that adds up to a whopping $2,000 or more.

If your refrigerator is even 10 years old, it will be due for replacement in a few years anyway, and in the meantime you could be saving a lot of energy — and dollars.

Old washing machines, clothes dryers and air conditioners are almost as bad, especially if they're relics from the 1970s, before environmental awareness brought about serious energy-efficiency improvements in appliances.

These energy gobblers shouldn't find a safe haven in any home. And don't even think of passing your bogeys on to someone else. If you read the news, you know that energy shortages affect everyone.

Home appliances are far more energy-efficient now than they were even a few years ago. Manufacturers today employ a variety of methods to improve their efficiency, such as increasing the amount of copper in motor windings.

The extra copper, which helps by decreasing electrical resistance, adds a small incremental cost to the motor but pays big dividends in reduced electricity bills over the life of the appliance.

The Price Of Efficiency

Energy-efficient appliances don't necessarily cost more to buy. Shoppers can find energy-saving models suitable for every budget.

When you shop for a new appliance, pay special attention to the yellow EnergyGuide labels that are required on most new major appliances. The labels are based on U.S. government tests and include estimated energy-use costs as well as comparisons to similar appliances.

Of course, the actual operating cost of any appliance depends on how you use it and your local utility rates, but the information found on the labels is both dependable and helpful.

Digital Communications In The Home

Most people are familiar with phone plugs. They are the clear plastic snappings that allow us to connect our telephones, faxes, answering machines, modems and computers. These male plugs snap into matching female jacks in your walls.

Most often, these plugs are the six-position variety. If you look closely at one of them you will see six grooves in the plastic. At least two (but usually four and sometimes all six) of these grooves contain tiny metal contact strips, which terminate the copper conductors in the cable and mate with the contacts in the jack.

If, however, you live in a new home, or an older home recently retrofitted with structured communications wiring, you might be surprised to see a new type of plugs and jacks in your home. They are a bit wider than a conventional phone plug or jack because they are designed to carry more data. In fact, they have eight conductors instead of six — as a result they are known as eight-position plugs/jacks or, in industry jargon, RJ-45 plugs/jacks.

These jacks are designed to accommodate plugs equal to their size or smaller. An eight-position RJ-45 jack can handle eight-, six-, or four-conductor plugs, so older equipment will usually work fine with the newer, higher-capacity jacks.

The older six-position plugs are still by far the most common. But the newer plugs are becoming more prevalent as structured communications wiring is installed in more homes.

The new plugs and jacks are intended for digital communications, but the line between voice and data communications services is blurring, and the distinction between a voice line and a date line is becoming less important as technology advances. Voice calls often carry data, such as Caller-ID information, and data connections can often carry telephone conversations as well.

Contractors often install wallplates that have six-position jacks for phone service and eight-position jacks for data communications. However, it is expected that eight-position jacks will eventually phase out the six-position units because the larger jacks make full use of the four twisted pairs of wires that are available in Category 5 and 5e (e for enhanced) cabling now being installed in homes and businesses. Category 5e has become the recommended standard for both phone and data communications wiring, and is a significant improvement over what has been used in the past.

Real Estate License Renewal Program Set For March 18, 20

The Conway Country School of Real Estate will offer an intensive, two-day continuing-education program for real estate licensees on Tuesday, March 18 and Thursday, March 20 at the Radisson Hotel (formerly the Ramada Inn) in Rockland.

The two-day event is open to all of the state's licensed real estate agents — whether active or inactive — and will satisfy the state's requirement of 12 hours of continuing-education credit for license renewal.

"We are very pleased to be offering these courses for our own agents and for our colleagues," Chairman Jack Conway said in announcing the program. "A solid education is a very important part of providing good service to our customers, and we are hopeful that many agents will take advantage of this unique opportunity."

The two-hour classes, which run from 9:00 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. each day, will cover closing and settlement procedures, realty exchanges, environmental issues, foreclosures, auctions, estate sales, and zoning and building codes, among other subjects.

Participants may choose any or all of the six courses being offered to help fulfill their license-renewal requirements, according to Education Director Norman LaRocque.

For more information and to have a registration form sent to you, call the school at (781) 826-0088 and leave your name, mailing address and telephone number. The cost is $10 per credit hour ($120 for the full two-day program), and all classes will be held at the Radisson Hotel, (formerly the Ramada Inn), 929 Hingham St., Rockland, Exit 14 off Route 3.

The Conway Country School of Real Estate is a division of Norwell-based Jack Conway & Co., which is the largest independently owned real estate firm in Massachusetts, with more than 650 agents in 41 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

Downpayment Grants Available At Homebuying Workshop

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore, in collaboration with Dedham Institution for Savings, will sponsor a free First Time Homebuyers Workshop on Saturday, March 22, at Dedham Institution for Savings, 55 Elm St., Dedham.

The one-day workshop will run from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Breakfast and lunch will be provided.

All potential first-time homebuyers are encouraged to attend this educational workshop. Topics covered include mortgage options, legal aspects of the homebuying process, how a home inspection works, and other presentations from real estate related professionals.

Downpayment grants of up to $10,000 per family are available. Participants must complete this workshop to qualify for grant programs.

Advanced registration is required. Call (617) 770-2227, ext. 31 or visit us online at www.neighborhoodhousing.org.

Will Your Home's Fire Extinguisher Do Its Job?

(NU) – It starts out small, an accidental grease fire in the stove. Soon it spreads through the kitchen, then throughout the house, consuming everything in its path until your home is engulfed in flames.

Are you prepared for a fire in your home? Taking measures to help prevent fire and ensuring that your home has a functioning smoke alarm are of utmost importance. But keeping a fire extinguisher on hand – that meets fire codes and is easy to use – is absolutely crucial as it is your first line of defense.

One notable fire extinguisher on the market is FirePower 911, distributed by Summit Environmental and endorsed by George Foreman, which can put out a small spot fire quickly before it becomes a raging inferno.

Foreman, former heavyweight champion and grill innovator, will introduce FirePower 99 nationwide through his personal endorsement because he sees it as a product that can save lives and property.

FirePower 911 is the first ever rated fire extinguisher in an aerosol can and the only product of its kind in the world, according to Summit Environmental. It has received a "1A Fire Extinguisher Rating" by Applied Research Laboratories in compliance with the National Fire Protection Association Standard 10.

This fire extinguisher comes without the difficulty of pins, handles and hoses, and thus, is easy to use for children and elderly people, said Keith Parker, Summit's chief executive officer.

If you still aren't convinced you need a fire extinguisher, consider these statistics from the U.S. Fire Administration:

• Each year, fire kills more Americans than all natural disasters combined.

• Residential fires represent 22 percent of all fires and 74 percent of structure fires.

• Cooking is the leading cause of home fires in the United States. It also is the leading cause of home fire injuries.

• Fire is the third leading cause of accidental death in the home. At least 80 percent of all fire deaths occur in residences.

• Property loss as a result of fire is estimated at $8.6 billion annually.

Quincy Community Action Homebuyer Workshop March 22

Quincy Community Action Programs invites potential real estate buyers to participate in a free home buying workshop beginning Saturday, March 22 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Fleet Bank, 1440 Hancock St. Another session will follow on March 29.

Real estate professionals will speak and answer questions at the workshops.

Participants will receive a workbook with reference material and a certificate, which is a prerequisite for favorable soft second mortgages, Mass Housing mortgages and down payment closing cost assistance.

Advance After Wins Over B-R, Archies

Raiders-Falmouth Showdown Tonight In South Semi-Finals

BOYS' ICE HOCKEY

By CHRIS POISSON

C'mon, you've got to be at little shocked that the North Quincy High School hockey team is still hanging around in the Division 1 South Sectional.

With Monday night's persuasive 5-1 victory over 13th-seeded Archbishop Williams, the 12th-seeded Red Raiders earned a return ticket to Gallo Arena in Bourne to face off against top-seeded Falmouth tonight (Thursday) at 8 in the semi-finals.

If the Red Raiders, who lost both games to Falmouth this season, should upset the Clippers, they'll meet the winner of the Springfield Cathedral-Framingham game in Saturday's sectional final at the FleetCenter.

In Monday's game, NQ faced a scorching Bishops team — a team that knocked off Arlington Catholic, the No. 6 seed in the Super 8 tourney, and Falmouth in their final two games to qualify for the tournament, where they proceeded to topple fourth-seeded Needham in the first round.

"There's no question I was pleasantly surprised," said head coach Bob Doyle Monday night after the victory. "My only concern was the boys would feel inferior to a Catholic team that was on fire in the month of February.

"It was a very convincing game. They weren't scared about Archies. We didn't sit back and wait to see what Archies had to offer. The game plan was to turn it up a notch and play a lot more physical. If you can frustrate Archbishop Williams, you have a great chance of winning."

Senior sniper Matt Grazioso powered the offense with a hat trick, senior goalie Bruce Maggio came up big with 27 saves and the defense, minus a player, turned in a phenomenal performance.

NQ jumped on the Bishops in the first period with a pair of goals. Grazioso scored at 6:31 with assists from John Mateu and Rob Mooney, and Kyle Carmody blasted a slap shot from the right wing boards at 12:46 with Rich Stone and Tim Duggan assisting.

"In the locker room I told them just to make sure they stick to the game plan, to keep attacking and have a team commitment to defense," said Doyle, who was missing defenseman George Snowling (disciplinary reasons) but expects him back for tonight's game.

Grazioso struck at 4:05 of the second with Billy Barter assisting for a 3-0 lead and at 12:08 Stone tallied a short-handed goal, taking a puck away from a defenseman behind the net and wrapping around before the goalie could get back into position.

In the third period AW came out smoking and Pat Welch put the Bishops on the board at 2:59 to make it 4-1. Grazioso closed the scoring at 12:52 with his third goal, an empty-netter. Maggio and Duggan picked up assists.

"We're molding together at the right time and playing as a team," Doyle said.

Doyle also praised the efforts of junior Joe Norris. "He's our unsung hero on the squad," he said. "At least a half dozen games this year he's given a spark to the team. He's drawn about six to eight penalties from the opposition and had two this game. He's not the smoothest skater but he's a beast. We call him the Tasmanian Devil."

In last Saturday's 4-3 overtime victory over Bridgewater-Raynham in the first round at UMass-Boston, it was fitting the game went into an extra session. After all, why shouldn't the third meeting between the two Old Colony League rivals go any differently than their first two overtime ties this season.?

This time around, though, one of the teams had to win and at 3:56 of OT Stone tapped in a centering pass from Carmody to give the Red Raiders the dramatic victory, closing the book on the fifth-seeded Trojans' fairytale season.

"It's a play you work on a thousand times in practice," said Stone, who delivered an animated speech to his teammates in the locker room before OT. "Kyle just threw the puck out in front and I got lucky. We let them in the tournament when they tied us in the second game and we took it upon ourselves to knock them out."

"I was tossing and turning in bed (last Friday) night," Doyle said. "I knew it was going to be another nail-biter."

In an energetic first period, NQ drew first blood at 1:32 when Stone fired a shot from the high slot through a traffic jam in front and past goalie Matt Barthel (22 saves).

The Trojans evened the score at 6:50 when Kevin Sullivan received a pass from Mark Augustine and, with a defenseman draped all over him, beat Maggio (19 saves).

In the second period NQ seized control of the game, cashing in with a pair of power-play goals less than two minutes apart.

Mooney slid a pass from the left corner across the ice to Grazioso, who quickly poked the puck into the cage for a 2-1 lead at 7:15. Again camped in front of the B-R goal, Grazioso knocked home a rebound of a Duggan blast for a 3-1 lead at 9:05.

"Matt Grazioso and that first line, you don't want to put them on the power play," said B-R head coach Mark Jones, who guided the Trojans into the tournament for the first time in 33 years.

In the final frame NQ almost netted what would've been a demoralizing goal when Barter just misfired on a shorthanded bid at 4:11.

The Red Raiders almost scored an insurance goal at 11:19 but Mooney's laser from the left circle ricocheted off the crossbar and over the net. Clinging to a one-goal lead, Doyle called a timeout with 1:51 left to keep his players focused.

"I called that timeout because we have a tendency in those situations to go into a shell and play back on our heels," Doyle said.

Less than 30 seconds later B-R's Jason Akstin netted the tying goal when he squeezed an off-speed shot by Maggio's stick to send the game into OT.

Jill Mullen On URI Dean's List

Jill Mullen of Squantum has been named to the Dean's List for the fall semester at the University of Rhode Island.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Mullen, she is a 2002 graduate of North Quincy High School.

Pee Wee C Travel Hockey Wins Cranberry Tourney

The Quincy Pee Wee C travel hockey team recently captured Pembroke's Cranberry Tournament championship with a 6-1 victory over Norwood.

Quincy breezed through the tournament with a 4-0 mark, defeating Norwood (6-3), Whitman/Hanson/Kingston (3-1) and Dennis/Yarmouth (5-0) before beating Norwood again for the title.

In the final game, Seamus McKenna (assist) and Paul Reardon each netted two goals and Paul Blaser and Jeff Matthies had one apiece. Kevin McDonagh tallied two assists while James Flaherty, Matt Sullivan, Mike Gates and Jeremy Mock each had one.

McKenna earned MVP honors for Quincy's championship game. Goalies Matt Grady and Jon Savage played outstanding games, allowing only five goals in the tourney.

Positive Light Shines On Presidents

BOYS' BASKETBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

As disappointment fades from last Friday's season-ending loss, the Quincy High School boys' basketball team can take solace when it reviews the entire 2002-03 campaign.

A campaign in which the Presidents achieved many of their goals along with attaining individual successes.

"We lost, but there's a positive light," said head coach John Franceschini Monday morning, following Quincy's 63-44 setback at Dartmouth in the quarterfinals of the Division 2 South Sectionals. "The kids are hurt now but when they look back at it they should be proud of what they've accomplished."

After contending for the Atlantic Coast League title, Quincy fulfilled its biggest goal by qualifying for the state tournament for the first time in six years with a triumph at Randolph on Feb. 8.

Five days later, Quincy hosted rival North Quincy in the second meeting of the year with thoughts of avenging last year's pair of losses. The Presidents pulled out the victory to complete the season sweep of the Red Raiders and claim the unofficial city championship.

With a 12-8 overall record and 7-5 mark in the ACL, the Presidents received recognition league-wide when senior Kevin O'Connell earned MVP honors and seniors Matt Ramponi and Anthony Boyle landed spots on the all-star team.

And to top off its season, 11th-seeded Quincy not only made the tourney but tasted success with a 62-59 comeback at sixth-seeded Walpole in the first round last Tuesday.

"The kids were disappointed when they didn't make the tournament last year," Franceschini said. "They had a lot of goals set for this year. And all those goals came to the forefront and that's a tribute to them."

Although every player contributed, the seven seniors — many of whom had been on varsity since they were sophomores — are the ones that held the team together in their farewell season.

"It was a wonderful ride," Franceschini said. "The seniors went out the way they've played all year. As a coach they were just won-

STEERING CLEAR

A rack and pinion steering system consists of a toothed rack that engages with a pinion shaft. The pinion is driven by the steering shaft, which runs across the face of the toothed racked. When the steering wheel is turned, the pinion rotates, forcing the rack to slide left or right. This controls front wheel direction through the use of tie rod connections. Two inner tie rods are connected to the ends of the rack and are protected by bellows boots. To make sure these components are properly maintained, they should be examined periodically. This includes checking the bellow boots, outer tie rod ends, rack mount bushings, power steering fluid, power steering hoses, and the pump's drive belt.

ELEVEN STUDENTS FROM Quincy and Milton were recognized last week during a ceremony at the Water Club at Marina Bay for being finalists in the Golf Club at Quarry Hills name contest. The winning entry, "Granite Links Golf Club," was submitted by Quincy residents Kelsey Power, 9, of Merrymount school and John Kozak, 16, of B.C. High, who will split the $5,000 scholarship. Shown here are the finalists. Front row, from left: Samantha Logue, Power, Kristen Peterson and Patrick Oldham. Quarry Hills Course Named Granite Links Golf Club

Quincy students Kelsey Powers, 9, of Merrymount Elementary and John Kozak, 12, of BC High submitted the name which was chosen from over 600 entries in a naming contest sponsored by the Quarry Hills Partnership.

"We are thrilled with the level of support and participation we received from the students, parents, schools and community as whole in the name contest," said Bill O'Connell, speaking for the partnership.

"We felt it was appropriate to invite the citizens of Quincy and Milton, particularly its youth, to actively participate in what is going to be one of the finest golf facilities in Greater Boston and the South Shore."

In addition to the two winners, who will share a $5,000 Education Scholarship, nine other finalists were acknowledged for their top 10 entries at an awards ceremony last week. They were awarded gift certificates to an area mall, a complimentary foursome at Granite Links Golf Club and movie passes.

The name Granite Links Golf Club was chosen for its reference to the granite quarries and because the golf course was designed as a true "Scottish Links" golf course — which is a course located by the water with a sandy base and very few trees.

North Quincy Bows To Braintree Again

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy and Braintree girls' basketball teams met twice before last week's first-round showdown in the Division 1 South Sectional.

The Wamps took both of those games, including a 23-point whacking in the second meeting on Feb. 3. That raised concern for North Quincy head coach Doug MacFarlane.

"I was a little worried about the way we were going to come out," he said. "The last game against them wasn't close."

The 11th-seeded Red Raiders (11-8) turned in a much more competitive performance against the sixth-seeded Wamps (14-5), but the third time proved not to be a charm as they suffered a 55-41 loss.

"I was proud of the way we played," MacFarlane said, "but we just lost to a better team."

A better — and younger — team led by 5-foot-11 freshman Stephanie Geehan, who registered 10 points, eight rebounds, five steals and a couple of blocks. She anchored Braintree's defense which did an effective job of shutting down North Quincy's inside game.

"Geehan is just one of the nicest freshman players I've seen," MacFarlane said. "If she's not blocking shots, she's affecting shots. She helps out their defense a lot."

Senior Old Colony League all-star center and quad-captain April Suprey finished her stellar career with 11 points and 10 rebounds. Suprey, who averaged 17 points in the regular season despite facing constant double- and triple-teams, found little room to operate down low.

"April had a tough time," MacFarlane said. "They closed the middle up against her."

The Red Raiders dispelled MacFarlane's fears of a slow start as they were deadlocked at 13 before the Wamps closed the half with a 10-3 run to take a 23-16 lead into the locker room.

"They made a little run at the end of the first half," MacFarlane said. "We were still right there with them."

In the second half, North Quincy cut it to 23-19 in the first minute. Senior quad-captain Lauren Kalil came up with a steal and drove the length of the floor before she was fouled. She made one of two shots but senior quad-captain Kathleen McCarthy was there to put back her missed shot.

Unfortunately, Braintree began to pull away and the Red Raiders couldn't manage to chip into the deficit.

"It was a good game," MacFarlane said. "We lost the first half by seven points and the second half by seven points. A couple of breaks here and there and it might have been a different outcome."

Senior quad-captain Kristen DiMattio added eight points and sophomore Sarah Goreham scored a team-high 14 points to go along with five rebounds. Goreham turned a lot of heads this season and made the all-star team as an honorable mention.

"She just missed making the top 12 by one vote," MacFarlane said. "But being an honorable mention all-star is great for a sophomore. She really stepped it up this year. I knew Sarah would be a good player, but I didn't know she would be this good."

"I'm really looking forward to next year," he added. "We'll have seven varsity players coming back and the freshman and JV teams did well this year. Hopefully, we'll be very competitive next year."

Positive Light For Presidents

derful to have around. They captain so many sports and that leadership really came to the forefront this year."

Quincy will surely miss the likes of quad-captains Shawn Munchbach, O'Connell, Boyle and Ramponi and fellow classmates Craig Keenan, Mike Quigley and Malcolm Lynn. But the program's future looks bright as the freshman and JV squads went a combined 37-3.

"I want to congratulate my assistant coaches Ray Papile (JV coach) and Michael Draicchio (freshman coach) and all their hard work," Franceschini said. "It was a very successful year for the program."

In last Friday's game, Quincy (13-9) never established any offensive rhythm against third-seeded Dartmouth (17-3). Trailing 32-24 at halftime, the Presidents had chances to cut the deficit to under six points but simply could not make their shots.

"We just couldn't get anyone to get the hot hand," said Franceschini, whose team shot 21 percent in the second half and 50 percent from the line for the game. "Offensively, we couldn't string together any type of consistency."

The Presidents suffered a huge setback, particularly on the defensive end, when they lost Keenan for the game after he broke his nose six minutes into the contest. Quincy trailed 17-10 at the time and Dartmouth soon put together a 12-2 run to separate itself even further.

"That hurt us defensively," Franceschini said. "Keenan was doing a good job covering one of their best players, point guard Norman DeSilva (19 points, 9 assists)."

O'Connell scored a team-high 11 points, sophomore Parker Scott chipped in 10 and junior J.J. Niamkey added eight.

In the Walpole game, Quincy turned in a clutch performance in the second half to pull out the win. "The biggest thing is we shot 52 percent in the second half and hit 7 of our last 9 free throws," Franceschini said.

The Presidents also cranked up their trademark full-court, man-to-man defense and slowed down Walpole's huge frontline led by 6-9 center Tim Clifford.

"We were tremendously undersized and I think Walpole took that too lightly," Franceschini said. "They had 6-9, 6-6 and 6-4 kids up front and we did a great job keeping them off the glass in the second half. Our intensity lasted for the full 32 minutes. We never let up."

Down 32-25 at the break, Quincy came out and immediately cut it to three points. And midway through it took a lead it would never relinquish. O'Connell (19 points) and Ramponi (15 points) sparked the offense over the final 16 minutes.

Paul Markarian Scores Goal For Bentley

Paul Markarian of Quincy netted his team-leading 13th goal of the season in the Bentley College hockey team's 5-2 loss to Fairfield University last Friday night in Watertown.

Learning Experience For Quincy

Something good may come from the Quincy High School girls' basketball team's first-round loss last week in the Division 2 South Sectional.

With nine of 11 players, including four starters and three all-stars, returning next season, the Presidents' 62-26 debacle at Hingham should serve as a valuable lesson and motivational tool.

"It's a tough defeat," said head coach Jeff Bretsch, who guided Quincy into the tournament after a 20-year drought. "You prepare the whole week for one game and then not playing to your full potential is a setback.

"We'll learn from it. We know what the competition at this level is like now. We're really looking forward to next season. We're going to build on this year's successes and this defeat."

With about six minutes left in the first half, the 11th-seeded Presidents (14-7) were down three points before they began to crumble against sixth-seeded Hingham's swarming full-court press.

Hingham's late first-half run carried over into the second half, where it quickly found itself ahead 26 points only four minutes in. Quincy finished the second half with no field goals made and just eight points.

"That rattled us and we never recovered," Bretsch said. "We had the jitters. We made a lot of turnovers that we usually don't make. We looked like a very young team. It was our first time in the tourney and it looked like that. They just came out and put it to us."

Junior Bonnie Hirtle led the team with 12 points and fellow classmate and backcourt partner Sarah Shea added eight, including two 3-pointers.

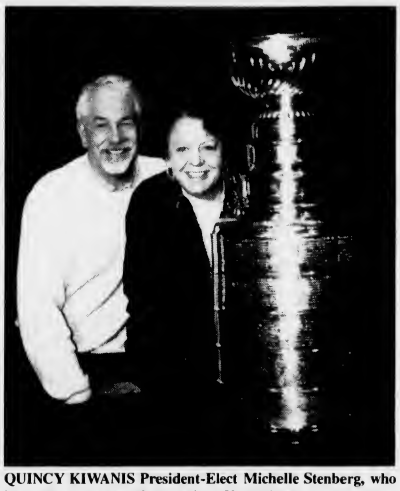
PAL Boxer Wins Championship

By JIMMY FARRELL JR.

The South Shore Police Athletic League boxers recently returned from Lenexa, Kan., with one champion and three other nationally ranked fighters.

Mark DeLuca Jr., 15, of Whitman, won the tournament at 165 pounds and was voted the tournament's Outstanding Fighter. His father, Mark DeLuca Sr., is the police chief in Duxbury and owner of the South Shore PAL located at 1452 Hancock St., Quincy. He also has two younger sons that are national champs.

Two Quincy 13 year olds are ranked third in the United States. Ryan Kielczweski (73-8 record), who attends Central Middle School, lost to the winner, Anthony Bonner of Cincinnati, Ohio, in the semi-finals in what was considered a "tough" decision.



Freddie Marra, a Brazilian-born powerhouse, lost in the semi-finals in only his third bout. He attends Sterling Middle School.

Tony Barnes, 13, of Weymouth, lost in the semi-finals and is ranked fourth in the United States. His uncle, Derek Barnes of Hull, is one of the directors at the South Shore PAL.

Also of Quincy interest on the trip was Stevie Maze, 22, who is Kielczweski's trainer. Maze — a Quincy High School graduate where he lettered in football, basketball and baseball — is a senior at Fitchburg State college where he lettered four years in baseball land football.

Stanley Cup Appearance Raises $1,000 For Charity

Hosted By Quincy Kiwanis

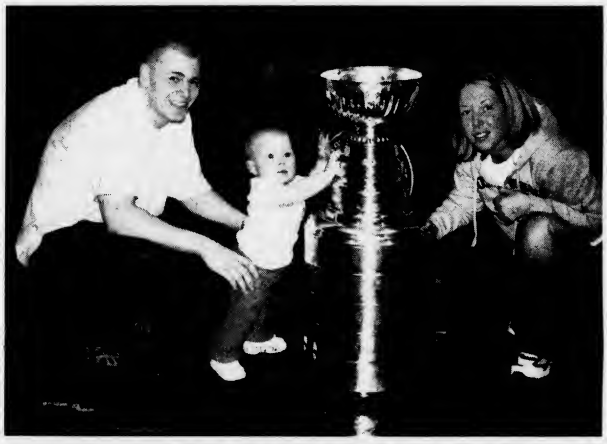
Local hockey fans of all ages got a close up look at one of professional sports most famous icons -- the Stanley Cup -- during a rare viewing opportunity at North Quincy High School Saturday afternoon.

About 400 people turned out for the event which was hosted by the Kiwanis Club of Quincy. Many of the viewers took photos of the imposing silver trophy which weighs 35 pounds and stands 34 1/4 inches tall. Others traced with their fingers the engraved names of some of hockey's legends like past champions Bobby Orr and Raymond Bourque.



The viewing raised $1,000 for Quincy Kiwanis charities which focus on assisting underprivileged children.

The Stanley Cup on view Saturday was the "presentation" trophy -- the real McCoy -- according to Michael Bolt, the official "Keeper of the Cup" at the National Hockey League's Hall of Fame in Toronto. The presentation Cup -- which dates back to 1893 -- is awarded to the winning NHL team each spring. There's a second version -- or replica trophy--which was built in the mid-1990s because the presentation Cup travels up to 300 times a year, Bolt said, including about 200 special appearances such as its stop in Quincy on Saturday.

BOSTON BRUINS fan Tommy Allen, age 7, and his uncle, Anthony Coleman, were among the 400 people who stopped by North Quincy High School auditorium Saturday to get a close up look at professional hockey's Stanley Cup trophy.

EVEN THE LITTLEST hockey fans wanted to reach out and touch the Stanley Cup during its appearance Saturday at North Quincy High School. Here 10-month-old Emily Bennett touches the famous sports trophy while her father and mother, Joe Bennett and Courtney Richardson, look on.

STEVE O'BRIEN of Quincy scans some of the most famous names in all of hockey -- and professional sports -- which are engraved on the Stanley Cup. The lower band on the trophy has space for two more NHL champions. In three years, the top wide band -- which lists the names of the Stanley Cup winners from the 1940s and early 1950s -- will be removed and saved for display at the Hockey Hall of Fame. A new wide band will then be added to the bottom of the trophy and the rest of the wide bands will move up one tier.

Quincy Boys Hockey Falls To Norwood In Opening Round

The Quincy and Norwood hockey teams have a bit of recent history when it comes to state tournament play.

Two years ago, the Mustangs ended the Presidents' tourney run with a 6-1 win in the semi-finals. Last year, the Presidents exacted revenge with a 4-1 victory in the first round.

The two schools met in the postseason for the third straight year last Saturday afternoon in the first round of the Division 1 South Sectional at UMass-Boston.

In an extremely tight contest, 11th-seeded Norwood survived a late Quincy assault to hold on to a 3-2 victory, ending a sensational season that few expected the Presidents (11-7-1) to put together.

The sixth-seeded Presidents struck first at 9:23 of the opening period when junior Josh Giordani — the Atlantic Coast League's leading scorer with 44 points — received a pass from freshman Dave Tapper and beat goalie Vinny Savio.

In the second, Norwood netted the equalizer only 30 seconds into the stanza when Quincy turned the puck over at center ice and Ryan O'Rourke tucked home a breakaway goal.

At 6:44, Norwood jumped ahead when Kasputis scored with an assist from John Fay during a delayed penalty call on Quincy.

The Presidents evened the score at 2 when senior defenseman Matt LaCorte fired a shot on net and senior Joe Bohan banged home the rebound at 12:14.

The lead turned out to be temporary as Kasputis pocketed his second of the game, beating Flaherty to a puck way out in front of his net.

With about five minutes remaining in the game — and the season — the Presidents made a desperate attempt to try to tie score, but simply could not squeeze the puck past Savio on several quality chances.

Spotlight On Health & Fitness

Dr. Robert Richter President Of Milton Hospital Medical Staff

The medical staff of Milton Hospital announces Robert Richter, M.D., a radiologist at Milton Hospital for more than 23 years, was recently elected president of the medical staff.

The announcement was made at their annual business meeting in January.

Dr. Richter assumes the position from Kenneth Harris, M.D., who served a two-year term.

"I am enthusiastic about my role in medical staff leadership and in meeting the challenges ahead. It will be an exciting term as the hospital celebrates its 100th anniversary, embraces a clinical affiliation with Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center and opens the doors of a new MRI wing.

DR. ROBERT RICHTER

"My goals for the future," Dr. Richter said, "are clear and in sync with the medical staff mission of serving the health concerns of the people in our community through access to care, education and prevention."

Dr. Richter joined the Milton Hospital Medical Staff in 1980. He was appointed chief of the department of radiology in 1993, a position he held until 2001. He has been active on many hospital committees serving as the hospital's Radiation Safety Officer and as a member of the Medical Executive Committee and Safety Committee.

Dr. Richter earned his medical degree from Albert Einstein College of Medicine New York. He completed his residency in diagnostic radiology at Tufts-New England Medical Center and performed his internship at Montefiore Hospital in the Bronx, New York.

A resident of Wayland, Dr. Richter is certified in diagnostic radiology by both the American Board of Radiology and the National Board of Medical Examiners.

Appreciation Fund Recognizes, Rewards And Retains QMC Nurses

The Quincy Medical Center medical staff, South Shore business and civic leaders, and countless community members have demonstrated their support for the nursing staff at Quincy Medical Center by contributing to the medical center's annual Nurses' Appreciation Fund.

"Our nurses work in a rapidly changing health care environment. The Nurses' Appreciation Fund is designed to recognize, reward and retain our exceptional nurses," says Elizabeth Cadigan, RN, vice president of patient care services at QMC.

To date, the 2-year-old fund has raised nearly $30,000 in support of the QMC nurses.

The Nurses' Appreciation Fund offers former patients the opportunity to commend the work of a particular QMC nurse, if desired. Many donors, however, have chosen to acknowledge the QMC nursing staff as a whole, saying there are so many exceptional nurses that it would be difficult to select only one nurse.

QUINCY RESIDENT Peggy Lahar, RNCS, MSN, has more than 25 years experience in nursing at Quincy Medical Center.

"The nurses at QMC were all so wonderful and comforting and helpful in my recovery when I was ill two years ago, that as president of the Jack Conway Company, I wanted to direct my company's gift to the Nurses' Appreciation Fund where it could help the nurses," says Dick Cahill, who made the contribution to the fund on his organization's behalf.

This year marked the second annual appeal for the Nurses' Appreciation Fund. In late fall, a letter announcing the fund was mailed to over 36,000 individuals, physicians and businesses in Quincy, Braintree, Milton, Weymouth and Randolph.

"Nurses are the life blood of any hospital," says Dr. Timothy Babineau, chief of surgery at QMC and a contributor to the fund. "Without their dedication, it is impossible to fulfill the mission of the hospital. That is why this fund is so important."

The Nurses' Appreciation Fund is one component in QMC's five-year capital campaign, which was launched in 2001 with a $1 million pledge by Quincy resident and philanthropist Simon C. Fireman.

Fireman's pledge was structured as a challenge to the community to inspire others to contribute to the medical center's future. Donations to the medical center and the Nurses' Appreciation Fund go toward fulfilling the fund-raising requirements of the challenge grant.

Donations to the Nurses' Appreciation Fund are tax-deductible. For more information about the Nurses' Appreciation Fund or to make a donation, contact Amy Klotz, QMC development officer, at 617-376-5493.

Brush Up On Your Teeth

(NU) – Most people know that the primary reason to brush and floss daily is to remove plaque – that sticky, colorless film of bacteria that grows on and in between your teeth and under your gums. The next best reason is to maintain a healthy, beautiful smile!

Consider this: Plaque is one of the main causes of tooth decay and gum disease. Left to accumulate, plaque can cause cavities, bleeding gums, destruction of tooth supporting bone and even tooth loss. In addition, research shows that gum disease is one of the leading causes of adult tooth loss.

Studies have demonstrated that whitened teeth mean perennially healthy teeth and gums when a tooth whitening product like Rembrandt Plus Toothpaste with Peroxide is part of your oral hygiene routine.

"Today, good oral hygiene is more than just brushing and flossing," said Dr. Robert Ibsen, president of Rembrandt Oral Care Products. "Now it's brushing, flossing and dailty whitening."

Whether you decided to professionally whiten your teeth or brush up with a safe, effective whitening toothpaste, follow these tips for a healthy, radiant smile that's sure to dazzle:

• Get fit. Brush twice daily with a soft bristled toothbrush that fits comfortably in your mouth and lets you reach all areas easily.

• Make sure you have the not-so-secret ingredient. A whitening toothpast like Rembrandt Plus with Peroxide Toothpaste also contains fluoride that will help protect your teeth from tooth decay.

• Don't forego flossing. Brushing is great, but you need to floss to truly fight plaque buildup. If you pass up the dental floss, 40 percent of your tooth surface will be left insufficiently cleaned.

• Take a valuable visit. Bi-annual visits to your dentist for a cleaning and oral exam are essential for keeping your teeth healthy.

• Eat right, smile bright. A good, well-balanced diet goes a long way toward excellent dental health. Be sure to choose foods from the five major food groups, watch the in between meal snacks and limit sugary foods.

For more information on keeping your teeth healthy or purchasing Rembrandt Plus, call 1-800-548-3663.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

NOT A TOTAL LOSS

While a baby tooth cannot be replaced, a permanent tooth may be saved with prompt action and appropriate care. The delicate tissue covering the root (the periodontal ligament) must be protected to ensure successful reimplantation. Begin by holding the knocked-out permanent tooth by the crown, not by the root. Rinse it immediately with saline solution or milk. (Tap water contains chlorine, which may damage the root). Do not scrub the tooth. The best place to preserve it on the way to the dentist is in its socket. If the child will cooperate, replace it gently, then have the child bite down on a gauze pad to keep it in place. Otherwise, place the tooth in milk, which is a good preservative.

This column is brought to you in the interest of better dental health. You can expect us to give you gentle, comforting care using the most up-to-date techniques and equipment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where our trained professional staff works as a team to make your visits pleasant. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We will always discuss your treatment options with you. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. The loss of a baby tooth may prompt the need of a spacer to keep the rest of the teeth in place until the permanent teeth erupt.

Sacred Heart Centennial Mission Program March 11-13

Sacred Heart Parish will hold a Parish Mission Tuesday, March 11 to Thursday, March 13 as part of the year-long celebration of the Parish's centennial.

Each day of the Mission will provide a morning program and an evening program to allow as many parishioners as possible to attend.

The morning program will be held following the 9 a.m. daily Mass in St. Joseph's Oratory (the lower Church). Sister Kathleen Crowley, SC will be the featured speaker at the morning program.

Sr. Crowley is a member of the Sisters of Charity of Halifax and a Pastoral Associate at St. Pius V Parish in Lynn. For several years she served in western Canada as a teacher and campus minister. She has been involved in campus ministry at Salem State College and MIT as well as Director of Campus Ministry for the Archdiocese.

Babysitting will be available for those attending the morning program.

The evening program will begin at 6:30 p.m. with Rosary and Exposition of the Blessed Sacrament. Rev. James M. DiPerri, former parochial Vicar at Sacred Heart, will speak at 7 p.m. The evening program of March 13 will include the Celebration of the Eucharist.

Fr. DiPerri, a South Boston native, was ordained in 1988. He is currently on the faculty of Blessed Pope John XXIII National Seminary in Weston. Prior to joining the faculty at Pope John Seminary, Fr. DiPierri was Pastor of St. Catherine's Church in Charlestown.

"Parish missions have a tradition of helping Catholics with the Lenten journey. This year also has greater importance because we here at Sacred Heart are celebrating our 100th year as a parish," said Fr. John W. O'Brien, Pastor of Sacred Heart Parish.

For more information about the mission or the Centennial events for the year, contact Fr. O'Brien at (617) 328-8666 or Tom Koch at (617) 471-7145.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

If someone were to pay you ten cents for every kind word that you have spoken about people, and collect five cents for every unkind word, would you be rich or poor?

It has been said that with kindness you can give back a person his self-respect, you can bring life to smothered dreams, you can bring heaven down to earth, and in so doing you become great, for only those with kindness are truly great. . .

Too often we forget kindness far more easily than we forget injuries. Too often we unconsciously regard a kindness as something that is our due, while we regard an injury as utterly undeserved, even when it is not.

We all need love and acceptance. A smile, or word of encouragement costs nothing. But it can enrich the life of the person you least suspect needs it!

Kind hearts are the garden,
Kind thoughts are the roots,
Kind words are the blossoms,
Kind deeds are the fruit. - John Ruskin.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your soft-hearted self is drawn to a tempting offer. But your hard-headed half isn't so sure. Best advice: Do it only after every detail is checked out to your liking.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your inventive mind should help you find a way to get around an apparently impassable barrier and make yourself heard. Your efforts get you noticed by the right people.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You're enjoying this creative period. But by midweek, you'll need to emphasize your more pragmatic talents as you consider a risky but potentially lucrative move.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) An unexpected rejection could turn into something positive if you pocket your pride and ask for advice on how you can make changes that will make the difference.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your Lion's heart gives you the courage to push for answers to a job-related situation. Stay with it. You'll soon find more believers coming out the ranks of the doubters.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your curiosity pays off this week as you push past the gossip to find the facts. What you ultimately discover could lead you to make some changes in your plans.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A new sense of enthusiasm helps get you out of on-the-job doldrums and back into a productive phase. Family matters also benefit from your more positive attitude.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A bit of nostalgia is fine. But don't stay back in the past too long or you might miss seeing the signpost up ahead pointing the way to a new opportunity.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) If you feel you need to take more time to study a situation before making a decision, do so. Don't let anyone push you into acting until you're ready.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) As the Great Advice Giver, the Goat really shines this week as family and friends seek your wisdom. Someone especially close might make a surprising request.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Spiritual concerns dominate part of the week. More worldly matters demand your attention by the 7th. An old promise resurfaces with some surprises attached.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You're in a highly productive period and are eager to finish all the projects you've taken on. But don't let yourself get swamped. Take a breather now and again.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a gift for learning new things quickly and applying your knowledge to best advantage where needed.

Kathlyn E. Jordan, 87

Retired Nurse

A funeral service for Kathlyn E. "Kaye" (Doane) Jordan, 87, of Quincy, a retired nurse, was held at Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 300 Manet Ave., Quincy.

She died Feb. 27 at Quincy Medical Center.

Her husband of 55 years, Sherman Curtis Jordan, passed away on the same date a year ago.

Mrs. Jordan worked for 25 years at Quincy Medical Center and was a volunteer for 20 years at Manet Health Center.

She served during World War II in the U.S. Army Nurse Corps in Italy and North Africa and achieved the rank of captain.

Born in Round Bay, Nova Scotia, Mrs. Jordan lived in Quincy for the past 56 years.

She is survived by her son, Michael J. Jordan of Pacific Palisades, Calif.; a daughter, Patricia A. Beston of South Weymouth; a sister, Eileen Urguhart of South Dennis; a brother, Robert MacDonald of California; seven grandchildren; and many nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Funeral arrangements were by Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St.

Donations may be made to Dwelling Place, 409 West 40th St., New York, N.Y. 10018.

Catherine A. Mann, 86

A funeral Mass for Catherine A. "Kay" (Healy) Mann, 86, of Hyannis, formerly of Quincy and Randolph, a housekeeper, was celebrated Tuesday at St. Thomas More Church in Braintree.

She died Feb. 28 at her daughter's home in Braintree.

Mrs. Mann worked for many years in housekeeping at Cape Cod Hospital.

Born in Quincy and raised in Houghs Neck, she was a 1935 graduate of Quincy High School. She lived in Randolph for many years before moving to Hyannis.

She was a member of the Progressive Club of Cape Cod. She was a communicant of Our Lady of Victory Church.

Wife of the late Lawrence L. Mann Sr., she is survived by two daughters, Catherine "Cookie" Graziano of Braintree and Rita Armaral of Sandwich; eight grandchildren; 11 great-grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews. She was the mother of the late Lawrence L. Mann Jr.

Burial was in Central Cemetery, Randolph.

Funeral arrangements were by Cartwright Funeral Home, Randolph.

If necessary, Fink said, the city is prepared to remove obstructions to improve snow plowing.

"The ultimate goal here is to be able to hand the parents, children and snow removal personnel a map or guide so they can act accordingly," he said. "As a result, children may have to walk an extra block or two after a big storm, but they can walk on cleared sidewalks and not major roadways," said Fink.

After the information is gathered, Fink said each school will have its own contingency plan that will dictate the movements of students, parents, bus drivers and plowing personnel.

At Monday night's council meeting, Fink fielded complaints from councillors regarding problems areas after the storm. In particular, councillors were concerned with a lack of plowing near school bus stops and drop-off zones. Also, the city can do a better job near MBTA stations, councillors said. Fink said the council's suggestions were very helpful and would figure into the master plan.

"Any place where kids congregate, like bus stops, needs to be addressed," he said.

Fink said the city's current snow removal plan has been successful when dealing with small and medium sized storms.

"Based on the number of complaints we received earlier in the year, the plan we have in place works," he said.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin said the city should have a contingency plan already in place. "We should have a plan in place so calls do not need to be made," said Coughlin. "The city needs to be more proactive and less reactive."

Ward 6 Councillor Joe Newton was particularly concerned about the lack of snow removal on Newport Ave. He said the street was still down to one lane almost two weeks after the storm.

School Committee member Jo-Ann Bragg said she thought the city already had a contingency plan in place. "Apparently, we need a new one," she told The Quincy Sun. "Luckily, the storm occurred during school vacation, but a week later many areas were still unplowed."

Overall, the council praised the DPW and Park Department's efforts in clearing the city's major roadways.

Auditor Rick Fitzpatrick said the city has spent almost $1 million for snow removal this year, about $700,000 more than was allotted for the fiscal year.

Sidewalks Also A Major Priority

Phelan To Unveil 'Aggressive' Plan For Road Repairs

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Mayor William Phelan said soon his administration would present an "aggressive" plan to repair the city's streets and sidewalks, which have been battered by an unusually tough winter.

"As I have informed members of the city council, we will be unveiling a comprehensive plan to improve what has developed over the past 10 to 12 years in this city relative to the condition of the streets and sidewalks," said Phelan.

"Despite these difficult financial times, it is my goal to make the city's streets and sidewalks the best in the Commonwealth," he said. "We have an aggressive plan to deal with the short term and long term needs. The condition of the streets and sidewalks is a major priority of my administration."

Details are still being ironed out, but Phelan said part of the plan includes the repair of more than 1,000 areas of damage to sidewalks. To date, more than 1,500 complaints have been logged regarding sidewalk damage, he said.

Ward 3 City Councillor Kevin Coughlin said he is anxious to learn the details of Phelan's plan.

"The roads are crumbling, and some of them are in terrible shape," said Coughlin. "I don't want to appear critical but the residents throughout the city want answers. And I can't give them answers right now."

Coughlin placed the issue on the city council agenda last week, but Ward 6 Councillor Joe Newton objected to the matter. Newton said the issue should have a thorough airing out during the next public works committee meeting on March 31.

DPW Commissioner Jay Fink said the department is working hard to repair potholes throughout the city.

Coughlin said the residents of Braintree already have a list and schedule for the upcoming construction season, and Quincy's resi-

USS Salem Appeals Order To End Sleepovers

By TOM HENSHAW

The USS Salem has batten down the hatches and sounded general quarters as it prepares to fight an order by Fire Chief Paul O'Connell to halt sleepovers as a safety measure, a move that Executive Director Michael Condon says would shut down the ship.

O'Connell told Condon by letter March 3 that "no person or persons shall be allowed to stay or sleep aboard the USS Salem overnight," effectively ending the "USS Salem Overnight Adventure" under which youngsters and adults sleep overnight aboard ship.

"It is my expert opinion," said O'Connell, "that if a fire was to occur aboard the USS Salem in close proximity to the sleeping berths, the oc-

Mayor Seeks Naming Concourse Bridge In Paul Harold's Honor

Mayor William Phelan will submit a home rule petition to the City Council March 17 seeking to name the new downtown concourse bridge in honor of the late Paul D. Harold.

The bridge would be named "The Paul D. Harold Memorial Bridge" in memory of the former city council president, state senator and Norfolk County registrar of deeds.

Harold, whose political career spanned 27 years, died last Aug. 12 from cancer. He was 53.

PAUL HAROLD

"It's a fitting tribute to a man who devoted his life to public service and to this community," Phelan said. "It is right to have a permanent remembrance in the city he loved so much."

If approved by the city council, the home rule petition will be sent to the state legislature for its consideration. Since the bridge is state owned, controlled and maintained, the naming of it requires legislative approval.

Harold was selected posthumously in January as The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year for the year 2002 for his longtime outstanding community service.

Tax Exemption Workshop For Seniors

Ward 3 City Councillor Kevin Coughlin, in conjunction with the assessor's office and the Council on Aging, will sponsor a tax exemption workshop for seniors on Wednesday, March 19 at 4 p.m. at the Bernazanni School, 701 Furnace Brook Parkway.

The workshop will provide information to seniors regarding their ability to qualify for real estate tax exemptions and the Senior "Circuit Breaker" Tax Credit, which applies to both owners and renters, Coughlin said.

Ratification Vote Friday

Quincy Medical Center Union Reach Agreement

Quincy Medical Center and its union workers have reached agreement on a two-year contract that restores many — but not all — the wage and benefit cuts taken by the workers in 1999 when the hospital was in imminent danger of closing.

All that remains is a ratification vote by members of the Service Employees International Union, Local 285, a vote that is scheduled to be taken Friday, March 14.

Under the new contract, the workers will receive 3 percent wage increases in each year of the agreement plus negotiated market adjustments that will further increase their pay but no new pension plan to replace the one lost three years ago.

"We recognized that the hospital is still in a precarious financial position," said Gale Martell of the union negotiating team. "The management knows that the pension issue is not going to go away. They've just put it off for another two years."

"We are committed to recognizing and rewarding employees for their work in all ways possible and are extremely pleased that an agreement has been reached," said Carla Roudabush, spokeswoman for Quincy Medical Center.

"The medical center, which is ahead of our fiscal turnaround, continues to successfully complete the five-year plan, having reduced the organization's financial deficit by more than 60 percent.

"Since we are in the middle of this ongoing effort, a pension plan is not financially prudent at this time."

In addition to pay increases, the hospital agreed to a partial restoration of the old formula for "earned time" that affects employee vacations, personal and sick time.

The hospital will once again allow parttime employees to accrue earned time for hours actually worked and it will also restore "on call" pay to four hours and premium pay for three holidays.

Negotiations to reach the tentative agreement lasted several months.

"We rallied and picketed," said Martell. "We lobbied our elected officials and attended city council meetings. We were ready to strike if necessary. I think our unity and perseverance sent a message that QMC management could not ignore."

Meeting To Address Construction At Germantown Neighborhood Center

There will be an informational meeting regarding the addition to be built at the Germantown Neighborhood Center on March 13 at 6 p.m. at the center's location in the Snug Harbor School, 333 Palmer St.

Representatives from the city are expected to attend the meeting and present an update on the project.

Also, on April 10 from 9 to 11 a.m. and 4 to 6 p.m., nominations will be accepted for neighborhood residents who wish to sit on the council. The Germantown Neighborhood Council oversees the activities of the center and acts as a voice for the community.

Snow Removal Efforts Improve, Phelan Says

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Although not welcome in most quarters, last week's snowstorm gave the city a chance to redeem itself.

After the President's Day storm dropped more than two feet of snow, Mayor William Phelan criticized the city's cleanup effort, particularly regarding the streets and sidewalks near the schools. Last week's snowstorm paled in comparison, but driving and walking conditions were treacherous.

The initial reaction to the DPW's cleanup last week was positive.

"We can't change the past, but we can strive to do better in the future," said Phelan. "And I think we improved our efforts dramatically."

DPW Commissioner Jay Fink said the department made it a point to improve its cleanup efforts last week after receiving much criticism from the President's Day blizzard.

"We put forth an added effort this time around," said Fink. "We learned many lessons from that big storm and I think we would do a better job tomorrow if we received the same amount of snow."

Fink said the DPW spent extra time trying to widen streets and open up catch basins to avoid potential flooding.

Fink commended DPW employees for their work during the past few weeks.

"In light of the criticism we took, I would like to thank all of the men and women of public works," he said. "I had people working 24-hour shifts, that's dedication."

School committee member Jo-Ann Bragg said the city did a better job this time around.

"There is always room for improvement," she said. "We did have an hour and a half delay opening the schools because buses were having trouble on the streets."

Bragg said the school committee worked with the previous administration to draft a contingency plan for snow removal near the schools.

"We did have a plan under the previous DPW Commissioner, David Colton, so I think the administration needs to find it and make some changes if necessary," she said.

Liquor Store Will Relocate At Roche Bros.

The License Board granted permission to National Wine & Liquor adjacent to Roche Bros. Supermarket on 101 Falls Blvd. to alter the premises and move into the market.

The motion was made pending the occupancy permit.

Atty. Dennis Harrington told he board that it was a business decision by Roche Bros. to move the liquor store into the left front of the market at the former Video store.

Harrington said the new area would be "very visible to the public" as well as a "change to benefit all parties."

He said it will have separate entry doors as well as separate registers with no employees from Roche Bros, but instead employees of owner William Flynn, III manager and James Gaudiano, assistant.

The owners plan to reopen the second week of April.

In other business, the board granted a Keno License to the Cyril P. Morrisette American Legion Post, 81 Liberty St.

City Flag, Central School Emblem Return Home After Space Journey

The city flag and Central Middle School emblem will officially return home tomorrow (Friday) after journeying into space aboard the Space Shuttle Endeavor last year.

Endeavor pilot Lt. Colonel Paul S. Lockhart and his wife, Col. Mary Germaine, will visit Central Middle School at 10 a.m. and deliver the flag to Mayor William Phelan, Central staff and students. The official presentation will take place in the school's auditorium.

"We are honored to have the flag and emblem that were in space with Lt. Colonel (Paul) Lockhart back in Quincy to share his experiences with us," said Phelan. "It is even more important to us to have Mary and Paul return to Quincy safely. Their return (tomorrow) and their constant contact with Central Middle School provides students with a real link to the events of this year."

In May, 2002, the City of Quincy's flag and the Central Middle School emblem were launched into space aboard Endeavor from Kennedy Space Center. Col. Germaine, a classmate of Mayor and Mrs. Phelan at Central Junior High School and now Chief Meteorologist for the U.S. Air Force, extended the honor to Quincy and Central Middle School.

Lockhart piloted the Endeavor on its 11-day mission to the International Space Shuttle. This was the first time that a city flag was honored in such a manner.

Lockhart was a close friend of Commander Rick D. Husband, who was killed in the Space Shuttle Columbia disaster. Lockhart recently honored Husband and fellow astronauts by flying in the "missing man" formation in a memorial that flew over Texas. His break from the jet formation symbolizes the loss of Husband and fellow crewmembers that were killed.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On March 15, 44 B.C., Julius Caesar, the infamous dictator of the Roman Empire, is stabbed to death in the Roman Senate house by 60 conspirators.

• On March 12, 1888, the most severe winter storm ever to hit the New York City region reaches blizzard proportions, costing hundreds of lives. With the 36-hour blizzard dumping some 40 inches of snow, the city was virtually isolated from the rest of the country. Messages north to Boston had to be relayed via England.

• On March 16, 1926, American Robert H. Goddard successfully launches the world's first liquid-fueled rocket, giving hope to dreams of space travel. The 10-foot-tall rocket launched in Auburn, Mass., traveled at about 60 mph and reached an altitude of 41 feet.

• On March 10, 1938, for the first time since they began in 1927, the names of Academy Award winners are kept secret until their announcement at the awards ceremony, which took place on this day.

• On March 14, 1950, the FBI institutes the "10 Most Wanted Fugitives" list in an effort to publicize particularly dangerous fugitives. The decision arose out of a wire-service news story in 1949 about the "toughest guys" the FBI wanted to capture.

• On March 13, 1958, "The Long Hot Summer," starring Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward, opens in Baton Rouge, La. Newman, who won the Cannes Film Festival award as Best Actor for his performance, married Woodward the same year; the pairing is one of Hollywood's longest-lasting marriages.

• On March 11, 1989, the TV show "Cops" is first broadcast nationally. Production crews rode with real patrol officers, filming whatever crime and violence occurred on the ride. The fledgling Fox network took the show after the major networks passed on it, and stunned the industry by producing a popular show that spawned numerous other reality-based programs.

McCauley Is Running

Well, it looks like Frank McCauley has reached a decision on whether to run for re-election.

He's running.

McCauley, now in his 30th year in municipal elective office, had been giving thought to calling it a career.

McCAULEY

He isn't officially saying he is running.

But he has confided to close friends that he will seek an eighth term on the city council.

And, has already scheduled a fundraiser for late April at which he will make a formal announcement.

McCauley, a political history buff, has made some political history himself.

He's the only Quincy political figure in the city's 114-year history to hold all four elective municipal offices: mayor, councillor at-large, ward councillor and school committee.

His decision to run will be good news for those who like having him on the council for his experience and the role he relishes as a fiscal watchdog.

But not so good news to potential candidates who have had an eye on what looked like a possible open councillor at-large seat.

SPEAKING OF McCAULEY, he recently marked his 25th anniversary as a member of the American Red Cross Blood Donors Program.

He donated his first pint of blood in February, 1978 -- the year of the Blizzard of '78. And hasn't stopped.

Donors may give blood at eight week intervals. On Feb. 24, he donated his 124th pint.

That's 15 gallons and four pints.

And, he'll be giving more.

FINN

He will kick off his re-election campaign Thursday, March 20, with a fund-raiser at The Fours, Cottage Ave., Quincy Center. A reception at 6 p.m. followed by a 7 to 10 p.m. announcement party.

Suggested donation is $100. For more information contact Michael Berry, campaign director, at 617-479-2787 or Michael Cheney, 617-471-1493.

JOANN SHEETS

Sheets said the surgery was major but thankfully: "There was no cancer involved and she is fine."

He said she is expected to be home today (Thursday) or Friday.

Sheets, noting their long togetherness, observed: "When you are married 43 years and after going with someone three years, it (surgery) kind of gets to you."

THE FIRST ROBIN probably isn't even on the radar screen yet, but here's encouraging an note that, yes, spring and summer will really come again.

For sponsorship information or reservations, call 617-376-5493.

This one is the 51st and is set for Nov. 30, the Sunday after Thanksgiving.

The Christmas Festival Committee is seeking theme entries for the parade. Deadline is April 11 for submitting them to: Frances Flynn, 79 Freeman St., North Quincy, MA 02171.

The winning entry will be selected by the committee April 23. And the person submitting it will receive a gift and be invited as a guest of honor to ride in the parade.

Oh, yes, the rain date is Sunday, Dec. 7.

Now, that's really looking ahead.

MILESTONE: John Noonan, chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging, former newspaperman, and long active in community affairs, recently turned 83.

NOONAN

That's 83 years young. John always thinks young.

Like, when he was in his 70s he "went back to school" (University of Massachusetts) to study gerontology.

He's now a very active member of the Beechwood Community Life Center's Elder Advisory Council.

Happy keys to you, kid.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1931 postcard view of the first Eastern Nazarene College Gymnasium on Wendell Avenue in Wollaston. Built in 1927 it was known as the "Gymnorium" because for many years it served as both a gymnasium and an auditorium. Then, during the 1940s, it was renovated so that is could also support chapel and church services from Sunday to Wednesday. It was converted back to a gym on Thursdays to Saturday. When the new Eastern Nazarene Church was built in 1950 on East Elm Avenue, this again became a full-time gymnasium until it was demolished in 1973. The present Lahue Physical Education Center was built next to this site that is now a parking lot.

Shocked, Concerned Over College Eviction Notice

As the Director of Community Education at Quincy College, I am very concerned about the impact of the potential closing of Coddington Hall, which houses our computer laboratory classrooms.

Although the recent eviction notification served by the city of Quincy to Quincy College, indicating that unless the college pays an annual rent increase of over $400,000 the school would be evicted, is now in the courts, I feel the community needs to be aware of the value of our programs.

Quincy College Community & Corporate Programs conducts a number of evening and day computer based and other classes that are attended on a part-time basis by Quincy residents. I am relaying my concerns and the concerns, as expressed to me, by our students.

We were shocked and upset about the recent potential of an immediate mid-program end to our classes.

Due to our computer classroom laboratory configuration, classes could not be easily moved to other campus buildings. Our current students are taking classes in various computer applications and medically related areas; their goal is to either to attain new or improved skills to enable them to re-enter the workforce, to improve their current job skills or to prepare for a career transition. Many have been impacted by job loss due to the recessionary economy.

We also have a number of senior citizen learners who enjoy the general enrichment of learning how to use computers. Many of our senior citizen learners believe they must keep with new computer technology and want to participate on the Internet through on-line activities. Some have expressed a concern not to get caught in the much written about "digital divide" that is impacting economically disadvantaged and older Americans.

On behalf of Quincy College Community & Corporate Education, our faculty, staff and students, we hope that the threat of closing down our classrooms will be removed by the impending court decision.

I hope that the current Quincy government officials will be more sensitive to needs of our community learners who are trying to improve or enrich their lives through education. Quincy College is proud to be a college of the community and will remain committed and responsive to the needs of our community.

City Not Subsidizing Non-Residents Students At QC

Mayor Phelan has it wrong. The city of Quincy is not subsidizing the higher education of students from outside the city. Rather those students from Boston and Nepal and Braintree who study at Quincy College are subsidizing the education of the thousands of Quincy residents who attend Quincy College every year. It is only the tuition of those many students from outside Quincy that insures the availability of the diverse, high quality undergraduate education at Quincy College for all those citizens who choose to avail themselves of this resource.

When 2 1/2 took effect in Massachusetts, the city of Quincy abandoned Quincy College, uncaring if this resource continued to be available to its citizens. But Quincy College has survived and continues to change lives. My husband recently had major surgery at Quincy Medical Center; many of the nurses who insured his recovery were Quincy College nursing graduates whose place in middle class America was guaranteed by a Quincy College nursing degree.

Many of our city's police officers and firemen and women have enhanced their qualifications at Quincy College. State Street workers, pharmacists, accountants, businessmen, mental health counselors and innumerable teachers from Quincy earned their first college credits or most recent professional development at Quincy College. Counting the graduates attending a small midwinter commencement ceremony is in no way indicative of the number of Quincy residents who avail themselves of this resource.

Mayor Phelan claims that the city of Quincy is subsidizing Quincy College. He is ingenious in devising support for these claims. For example, he turns a subsidy offered to President's Place developers — tax relief, a typical deal with powerful developers — into a $450,00 tax bill due by Quincy College! He transforms an agreement for a $217,000 donation to a foreign language program in Quincy's middle schools into a below-market rate rent? He figures a bill for city services not on the hours of service but on the budget of the college. He threatens to subsume Quincy College reserves, set aside by doubling the work of each Quincy College worker and raising tuition for students and required by our accrediting institution, the New England Association of Schools and College, into his budget.

Quincy College never billed the city for the hundreds of thousands of tuition dollars spent to make city buildings we occupy meet the standards for handicapped accessibility imposed on the city of Quincy. We've never charged our supposed landlords, the School Committee, for the new heating system or repairs or air conditioning systems. Over 10 years ago Quincy College paid the Quincy School Committee for the perpetual use of these buildings. Quincy hasn't subsidized Quincy College for more than 20 years! We maintain historic buildings, pay for real services provided by the city and use non-resident tuition to subsidize college educations for countless Quincy residents. Over 4,000 Quincy College students spend money in Quincy Center each semester. Perhaps, it is more truthful to say that Quincy College students subsidize the city of Quincy!

Councillors Fail To Oust Manager

This Week
1952
51 Years Ago

An attempt to oust City Manager William J. Deegan, Jr. collapsed when City Councillor Frank N. Orcutt withdrew from a bloc of four councillors, headed by Mayor David S. McIntosh, who had demanded his resignation.

"I am changing my position because of information received in the last 24 hours which has disproved certain statements made to me and which I had accepted as reliable information," said Orcutt, who was under pressure from Plan E Supporters to retain Deegan.

Two days before, on a Monday morning, McIntosh, Orcutt, and Councillors David J. Crowley and Carl W. Anderson visited Deegan and asked that he resign by 5 p.m. Tuesday for what they called his "lack of accomplishment."

They represented the four Council votes needed to fire the City Manager, who had been on the job since the advent of Plan E government in 1950.

"I am opposed to it," said Councillor Amelio Della Chiesa. "Mr. Deegan has been here for only two years and I think the City Council should cooperate with him to make the plan successful."

Anderson confirmed that he was aware of a plan by Deegan to seek action against him (Anderson) for alleged violation of the Plan E law the prohibits a councillor from interfering with the administrative functions of the city manager.

EAST MASS STRIKE

State Labor Commissioner John J. DelMonte held out little hope for a quick settlement of the strike by AFL bus drivers against the Eastern Mass Street Railway Co. which affected some 800,000 commuters in 92 eastern Massachusetts communities.

The drivers, who earn $1.55 an hour, were seeking parity with drivers of the state-owned Metropolitan Transit Authority, who make $1.87. The company had offered a 13-cent an hour raise and refused to arbitrate pension requests.

SITE CHANGED

The School Committee rescinded a previous action that would have taken part of the Furnace Brook Golf Club as the site for a new school building and selected the Rice estate on Adams St. as the new location.

Quincy Teen Mothers Program Benefit Gala Set For March 27

In honor of the 25th anniversary of the Quincy Teen Mother's Program, the advisory board is planning a benefit gala to thank everyone who has made the program such an important part in the lives of young families.

The 2003 Benefit Gala will be held at the Quincy Neighborhood Club Thursday, March 27. Reception will be at 6 p.m., dinner at 7 p.m. Individual tickets may be purchased at $50 each or purchase a table of 10 for $450. Sponsorship opportunities also are available.

The program, sponsored by Quincy Public Schools, has given more than 250 young mothers as second chance to win their high school diplomas or GEDs and to move on with their lives to be healthy parents and productive members of society.

All donors' names will be printed in the event program book which will list everyone who has contributed either monetarily, with in-kind donations or who have volunteered their precious time. Special acknowledgment will be given to the 25 outstanding donors over the past 25 years.

For sponsorship or ticket information mail, call or fax Janice Walsh at Teen Mothers Program, 18 Spear St., Quincy MA 02169m of telephone 617-984-8704.

Rotary Club Accepting Scholarship Applications

Each year, the Rotary Club of Quincy awards several $1,000 academic scholarships to deserving high school seniors from Quincy Public Schools.

Each of the 20 scholarship awards is intended to support an applicant's commitment to continuing his or her education in technical. college or university programs. Applicants are evaluated on the basis of having distinguished themselves academically, the in terms of their contributions to school and community.

Application forms are available from the Scholarship Chairperson at each school and must be submitted no later then March 28.

NQ Catholic Women To Meet March 20

The Catholic Women's Club of North Quincy will meet Thursday, March 20, at 7:30 p.m. in the Sacred Heart School hall.

The meeting date has been changed due to the closing of the Parish mission.

McCauley, Hanley Seek To Preserve Houghs Neck Land For Open Space

Councillor Frank McCauley and Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley are seeking to preserve as open space several parcels of MDC-owned land in the Houghs Neck area.

Last week, the councillors introduced an order that calls for the rezoning of several MDC-owned land parcels – located primarily on the southeast side of Sea St. and on the north side of Bay View Ave – from business B to open space.

"These particular land parcels are the last large pieces of open space in the lower Houghs Neck area," said McCauley. "We don't want to see the MDC sell off this land to a developer, who may decide to build condos there. This would only increase the housing density in that area."

The property includes the Maritime Center, a public boat ramp and a building that houses the Marine branch of the Quincy Police Department.

The Houghs Neck Community Council approved the rezoning proposal.

"In this way, the property would continue to provide access to the ocean and opportunities for environmental education and maritime safety, not only for the public of Houghs Neck, but for others throughout the city," said David Dibona, president of the community council.

McCauley said the planning board will conduct a public hearing on the matter in April.

TOSCA IN HINGHAM will host a fundraiser Monday, March 17 at 7 p.m. to benefit the Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion, as well as the National Education for Assistance Dog Services and St. Augustine's Parish Center in South Boston. Tosca owner Ed Kane (right) and John Owens (left) visited the Quincy Crisis Center, a non-profit helping the needs of the homeless which is part of the Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion, during its daily food program and delivered soup and fresh rolls prepared by Executive Chef Kevin Long (center). While at the QCC, they also joined the QCC volunteers and helped to serve the meals.

Benefit For Esther Sanger Center For Compassion March 17

Eat Well, Inc. announces its restaurant, Tosca in Hingham, 14 North St., will celebrate a decade of food and wine with a benefit for Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion based in Quincy on Monday, March 17 at 7 p.m.

The event will also benefit the National Education for Assistance Dog Services (NEADS) and St. Augustine's Parish Center in South Boston.

The fundraiser will feature passed hors d'oeuvres prepared by Executive Chef Kevin Long, live entertainment by Boston Bel Canto Opera and jazz band Sparky Miele, and a silent auction.

Tickets to the 10th anniversary celebration can be purchased for $100 per person at Tosca or by calling 781-740-0080. Proceeds will be donated to all three charities.

"I am thankful to all of our employees and friends who have contributed to Tosca's success over the past 10 years," said Ed Kane, owner of Eat Well, Inc. "We wanted to continue to assist the communities that have supported us and do something extraordinary this year."

The Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion is the umbrella organization for two efforts to meet the needs of the marginalized.

One program partner is Quincy Crisis Center, a faith-based outreach agency serving the needs of forgotten people while promoting social justice, biblical compassion and solidarity with the hungry, the hurting and the homeless.

For more information, call Tosca at (781) 740-0080.

Board Denies Beer-Wine License At Wollaston Beach

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

After a lengthy discussion, a request to serve beer and wine at Tony 's Clam Box, 789 Quincy Shore Drive was unanimously denied by the License Board at Tuesday's meeting.

Atty. Kostas Ligris told the board that the main reason for the request was the "competition with other restaurants along the beach and at Marina Bay", and to "compliment the existing menu including their renowned fried clams."

Ligris said at a neighborhood meeting, concerns were raised that the restaurant would change its menu and that there would be litter from beer bottles.

Ligris said the owner and manager Nick Kesaris and treasurer Spiro Kouvlis had planned to use only plastic bottles and serve the beer and wine in plastic containers.

He also said there were no plans to build a bar and that patrons wishing a drink would have to procure one from the wait staff and not at the counter where they purchase their food.

When questioned about the patio that is in front of the eatery, Ligris said the drinking of beer and wine would be only for the inside dining room only.

While board members felt that restrictions placed by Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro were "too many to follow" they also felt that restrictions would require more policing in the long run.

Chairman Joseph Shea told the board that he received an E-mail from an abutter who expressed concern over the noise at night and youth playing touch football late. However, the owner said he had been made aware of the situation and it has since stopped.

Police Chief William Falco commented on the "great food" but said he felt the area was not good for a beer and wine license

He received support from other board members..

Shea said he had "mixed emotions; and call the restaurant one of "excellent operation" and an the business which has been in the same family. The 80 seat dining room with 60 seat patio has been owned by the Kesoris family since 1967.

He said further that he was "worried about unmanageable concessions" and that the beach image is changing with bicycle and walking routes being made more usable and safe."

He concluded by saying he was "truly torn" by this application"

Rather than put off a vote at another meeting, Falco made a motion to take a vote at Tuesday's meeting. It received unanimous approval.

Meeting To Address Proposed Deli At 94 Washington St.

A proposal to operate a delicatessen on 94 Washington St. will be discussed at a neighborhood meeting on Thursday, March 20 at 7 p.m. in the Richardson Room at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro and Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley plan to attend the meeting.

Gutro said the matter will be addressed by the License Board soon.

Phelan Hopes His Proposal Will Be Reconsidered

Quincy College Rent Dispute Back At Stalemate

The long rent dispute between Quincy College and the Quincy School Committee was back at a stalemate Tuesday after Norfolk Superior Court Judge John Cratsley refused to halt the School Committee's try to evict the college from Coddington Hall.

"We are waiting to hear from them," said Jo-Ann Bragg, a member of the School Committee's negotiating team, the apparent winners in the courtroom skirmish.

"We haven't heard from them," said Theresa Lord-Piatelli, chairwoman of the college's board of governors. "I haven't received an overture. When I do, I'll respond."

"I'm hoping the college will reconsider my proposal so that we can move forward in the matter," said Mayor William Phelan, who is also chairman of the School Committee.

"The proposal I made prior to the court decision allowed for a process where both parties' pressing concerns could be met.

"And it provided the time necessary so that cooler heads can prevail and a reasonable resolution can be reached."

The dispute started when the School Committee abruptly raised the college's rent on Coddington Hall and two other buildings from $217,000 a year to $450,000.

The college refused to pay and the committee set March 2 as eviction day. The college sought a preliminary injunction to prevent the eviction.

The decision by Judge Cratsley denied the college's bid as "premature, unnecessary and unwise" when they still had an adequate forum for their claim in the district or housing courts.

Lord-Piatelli said the question of the relationship between the college and the city, which was also part of the suit, is still before the courts.

"Before we have a meaningful dialogue we need the relationship defined," she said. "The judge denied the preliminary injunction . He didn't rule on the relationship."

"We are willing to sit down and negotiate," said Bragg. "We are even willing to bring in a mediator. We support the mayor's plan."

Meanwhile, the college need not fear immediate eviction, she said.

The School Committee voted to delay the eviction process, at least for this semester," she said. "We don't want to put the college students in the street but we need to resolve the dispute."

-cupants would not have or be able to find a proper means of egress from their sleeping berths."

Not so, said Condon in an appeal to State Fire Marshal Stephen D. Coen, adding that "the Overnight Adventure program is the principal source of revenue for the museum. It poses no hazard and the museum has consistently addressed every condition the city has imposed that might constitute a fire hazard.

"Without our overnight program the museum will be forced to close its doors."

Former Mayor James Sheets, who is chairman of the Salem's directors, said the Fire Department and Building Inspector have no jurisdiction over the museum ship by law.

"All our permits came from the state," he said. "The ship is still owned by the Navy, which means they went on federal property to violate state law. The federal government should be interested in that."

Sheets said that in order not to disappoint boy scout troops already booked for an Overnight Adventure, the Salem had dipped into its treasury to find accomodation for 50 scgouts at the Best Western Adams Inn.

"Our attorney, Tom Kiley, will ask that we be reimbursed for all damages."

Condon asked the fire marshal to stay the fire chief's decision until the museum can make whatever changes are deemed necessary by the fire marshal and then rescind the order after due consideration.

Condon said the Salem's appeal is based on "our belief that the Quincy fire chief has made an incorrect decision based on the facts contained in the order.

"The fire chief states that the sleeping berths do not have proper means of egress. This is factually incorrect. Each space has two separate means of egress. We offered to increase the number to four or more.

"The order further states that the sleeping berths are located three levels below the main deck, this is incorrect; the berths are two decks (just 20 steps) below the main deck.

"The order further states that our fire alarm system does not meet code and has never been inspected. That is incorrect. Our fire alarm system was designed with the assistance of the Quincy Fire Alarm Department and has been inspected many times, most recently last June."

Condon said the appeal is also based on the contention that Chief O'Connell exceeded his power under state law in that "the MWRA, not the city of Quincy, is the political subdivision with authority over the USS Salem."

Furthermore, he said, the Overnight Adventure program has been operated for about six years "with the full knowledge of the Fire Department and Building Department."

"We have always cooperated with city inspectors and complied with their requests, even though they have consistency informed us the ship is beyond their jurisdiction," he added.

O'Connell said that he issued the cease and desist order "in the light of the recent catastrophic fire in West Warwick, R. I., and large loss of life in Chicago" where a number of people were trampled to death after someone used pepper spray.

"It is my sworn duty to prevent or remedy any condition in or about any building, structure or any other premises or any ship or vessel which may tend to become a fire hazard or to cause a fire," he said.

"It is also my sworn duty to provide adequate safety requirements for the protection of the public in the event of a fire in or about any building, structure, premises, ship or vessel."

Screening For Preschool Programs

Quincy Public Schools will hold screening for openings in the following preschools during the month of March:

Preschool Special Education Integrated Programs:

Snub Harbor Community School – 617-984-8951

In all instances children must turn three or four years old by Oct. 31, 2003. To have a child screened for a program parents must call no later than March 21.

Quincy College changed my life.

The morning of September 28, 1962 is burned into my memory like few other events. This was the morning that I was accepted by Quincy Junior College as a freshman. I did have a GED diploma from the Army and a high school equivalency diploma from the state of Massachusetts (which I was to receive the next day in the mail). It's not that I didn't apply to other colleges (many), but I never got beyond the application form because to those colleges, I was not a real high school graduate. For me this wasn't the second chance, or the last chance—it was my only chance!

In 1962, Quincy Junior College was the Coddington Building. It had the president's office, all of the deans' and faculty offices, the bookstore, the library, the science lab, the auditorium (third floor), and all of the classrooms. Since the Quincy Public Schools used Coddington during the day, college classes did not start until 3:00pm on a four day schedule: Monday-Wednesday classes and Tuesday-Thursday classes. Even though I was not from Quincy, I didn't feel isolated because even at that early date, over 50 percent of the students did not come from Quincy. There were many like me from Dorchester, other parts of Boston, Milton, Weymouth, Hull, Braintree, Holbrook, Plymouth, and other cities and towns.

What struck me straightaway was the close bonds between the faculty, staff, administration and the students. They cared about us in ways other colleges wouldn't or couldn't care—ease of access, getting extra help, a kind word of encouragement, and in numerous other ways. I can tell you every professor I had during my two years at Quincy Junior College, so indelible an impression they created on my mind.

Quincy Junior College then and Quincy College now creates value: an excellent education at affordable prices. I'm a walking example of that value: When I graduated from Quincy, I transferred to Suffolk (as a full junior) for my bachelor's degree; then, to the University of Maine for a master's degree, and then on to Boston University for a doctorate. Each of those schools accepted all my Quincy College credits without question.

When I crossed to the other side of the podium 15 years ago and started teaching full time at Quincy College, I saw the same close bond between students and teachers I had experienced decades earlier. These were good students eager to learn and the faculty was equally eager to teach. Of all the schools where I have taught, from junior high school to graduate school, Quincy College students have a special place in my heart. Perhaps because they are my mirror image, or perhaps because they are hard working and deserving and are tomorrow's leaders, I am thankful to have been in their company. I take no small amount of pride to say, "I teach at Quincy College."

Quincy College then and now is not mortar and brick, dollars and cents—it is an institution of human beings seeking a better life, and it doesn't matter whether they are white or Asian, young or old, from Quincy or Nigeria, man or woman. It is the brotherhood of learning that brings us to Quincy College.

Keegan Kicks Off Council Campaign, Cites Priorities

Joseph Keegan formally announced his candidacy for the Ward 1 City Council seat in the fall election at a campaign kickoff at the Quincy Yacht Club.

Keegan, a member of the Quincy Police Department and a Merrymount resident making his first run for elective office, cited as his priorities for Ward 1, pubalic safety, education, elder affairs and core city services.

Keegan said he supports:

• Expansion of community policing and proper staffing levels for the Fire Department;

• Expediting the construction of a new Quincy High School to ensure 90 percent reimbursement;

• A commitment to youths at risk.

JOSEPH KEEGAN

He pledged support for core city services for residents of the ward such as safe sidewalks and streets and proper removal of trash and yard wastes.

He also spoke of his support for elder services and the Quincy Council on Aging.

Keegan is an Army veteran of Operation Desert Storm and a member of the George Bryan VFW Post and the Houghs Neck Legion Post.

A graduate of Quincy public schools and Curry College, he is now in his final semester at the New England School of Law.

Highpoint Project Topic Of Community Meeting

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin scheduled a community meeting regarding the Highpoint project last night (Wednesday) from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Quincy Medical Center, 1st floor community room B-C, 114 Whitwell St.

The meeting was to be held in accordance with the Public Involvement Plan for the site and include information with respect to site activity, construction and required monitoring.

Real Estate License Renewal March 18, 20

The Conway Country School of Real Estate will offer an intensive, two-day continuing-education program for real estate licensees on Tuesday, March 18 and Thursday, March 20 at the Radisson Hotel (formerly the Ramada Inn) in Rockland.

The two-day event is open to all of the state's licensed real estate agents — whether active or inactive — and will satisfy the state's requirement of 12 hours of continuing-education credit for license renewal.

"We are very pleased to be offering these courses for our own agents and for our colleagues," Chairman Jack Conway said in announcing the program. "A solid education is a very important part of providing good service to our customers, and we are hopeful that many agents will take advantage of this unique opportunity."

The two-hour classes, which run from 9:00 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. each day, will cover closing and settlement procedures, realty exchanges, environmental issues, foreclosures, auctions, estate sales, and zoning and building codes, among other subjects.

Participants may choose any or all of the six courses being offered to help fulfill their license-renewal requirements, according to Education Director Norman LaRocque.

For more information and to have a registration form sent to you, call the school at (781) 826-0088 and leave your name, mailing address and telephone number. The cost is $10 per credit hour ($120 for the full two-day program), and all classes will be held at the Radisson Hotel, (formerly the Ramada Inn), 929 Hingham St., Rockland, Exit 14 off Route 3.

The Conway Country School of Real Estate is a division of Norwell-based Jack Conway & Co., which is the largest independently owned real estate firm in Massachusetts, with more than 650 agents in 41 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

CENTRAL REAL ESTATE

PRICE, PRICE, PRICE

If "location, location, location" is the mantra of buyers, it is "price, price, price" for sellers. Setting the correct price is critical to the success of selling a home quickly and profitably. According to one study, in which the sales of several thousand homes were studied over a two-year period, houses whose prices are changed sell for less than homes that undergo no price revisions. That is, the longer a house sits on the market, the more it is stigmatized in the minds of prospective buyers. Thus, as every real estate agent knows, it is critical for sellers to study local market conditions and set the listing price of their homes on the basis of recent sales of comparable properties.

Despite the continued growth of real estate values in today's economy, it remains very important for prospective sellers to price their homes properly. At CENTRAL REAL ESTATE, we can provide you with a market analysis of your home that is based on its features and square footage as well as the value of comparable homes in the neighborhood. To experience our award-winning service, call us at (617) 328-1312, or visit us at 128 Mayor McGrath Highway.

HINT: Real estate agents bring objectivity and experience to the process of setting a listing price, while sellers may allow their emotional attachment to their homes subvert their best interests.

Living By The 'Code' Reduces Electrical Risks

It's the final word on what is correct — and what isn't — in electrical wiring. It has guided the work of electrical contractors for generations. And, because it is updated continually, it has been safeguarding virtually every structure in America through more than a century of electrical and electronic progress.

It is the National Electrical Code, a document published by NFPA (National Fire Protection Association) and developed by a series of voluntary National Electrical Code panels and a Technical Correlating Committee, which oversee the review and revisions written into this "bible" of electrical authority. The NEC is approved by the American National Standards Institute, which accredits NFPA's code- and standard-development process. As a result of this open consensus code development, anyone may propose a change to the NEC, provided you have a strong case and sufficient backup for your proposal.

The NEC, or simply the Code, has provided guidelines for the proper installation of electricity in more than 100 million homes in the United States. And it continues to assert a major influence through laws that are aimed at preventing fires, electrical shock and electrocution, thereby protecting both property and lives. Because NFPA is not an enforcement authority, the Code is purely advisory until adopted. Nonetheless, it is routinely enacted into law by local jurisdictions, including state, county and city governments. The NEC is adopted in every state and is the foundation for electrical safety around the world.

Various insurance, electrical, architectural and allied interests developed the original document in 1897. In 1911, NFPA, which itself dates back to 1896, became the Code's sponsor, a relationship that continues to this day. Besides sponsoring the Code, NFPA is involved in many other programs aimed at raising awareness of electrical and fire safety, which are described on its Web site (www.nfpa.org).

The Code is one of the most respected and trustworthy documents in industry. Rather than being a nuisance, it eliminates the guesswork from electrical work and speeds up installation times.

Not surprisingly, many homeowners are only vaguely aware of the NEC, and others have never heard of it. Yet, homeowners can be the most effective force in ensuring that their own electrical wiring meets the standards of the Code. The majority of fire deaths continue to occur in homes, although fatalities have declined steadily since the NFPA began tracking them in 1977, accounting for 3,110 deaths in 2001. Only 1999 had a lower number of home fire fatalities in the past quarter-century.

But there is still room for improvement. Mark Earley, chief electrical engineer at NFPA, observes: "Bad wiring is still a significant cause of fires and fatalities. If every home met the Code, these deaths could be practically eliminated."

The Code changes substantially with each new edition. A home may have been built to the Code, but subsequent wiring could have been installed improperly, or it could have deteriorated or been damaged in the interim.

"If you don't know when your home was last inspected, it may be a good idea to call an electrical inspector," he advises. "Get an estimate of the work that needs to be done, and bring it up to code."

Typically, homes are inspected when first constructed, and often when they are resold. The latter inspections, paid for by the buyer, are usually performed by a private general inspector. When major electrical work is done, an electrical specialist who is an employee of the municipality or other local authority will perform an inspection. The Code is an important tool for reducing the risk of fires and injuries caused by deficiencies in an electrical system. Homeowners should know what it is, and make sure the wiring in their home is in compliance with it.

Bow In South Sectional Semi-Final

Outstanding Season For Red Raiders

BOYS' ICE HOCKEY

By CHRIS POISSON

Before the events of the past two weeks, the North Quincy High School hockey team's season had eerily played out like the previous three campaigns.

The Red Raiders stumble early in the year, catch fire down the stretch to gain an unlikely berth in the state tournament, only to be sent back to Hancock Street with a first-round defeat.

This team, though, added a refreshing twist to that script. After winning four of its final five games to qualify, North Quincy, the 12th seed, continued its hot play in the postseason where it won two games to reach the Division 1 South Sectional semifinal.

The Red Raiders' season ended there, however, as they endured a 4-2 loss last Friday night against top-ranked Falmouth at Asiaf Rink in Brockton.

"It was an outstanding season," said head coach Bob Doyle whose team made the tourney for the sixth straight year. "Words can't express how pleased I am for the kids. They raised the bar for the caliber of hockey at North Quincy. To make some noise in the tournament and have the city of Quincy supporting you, that makes you proud to be a part of the organization."

During the regular season North Quincy (11-8-4) dropped both games to Falmouth, 3-2 and 5-2. Still, the Red Raiders were optimistic, believing they could ride the momentum from victories over Bridgewater-Raynham and Archbishop Williams in the first two rounds.

And just like those first two playoff games, the Red Raiders netted that all-important first goal. After a scoreless opening period, senior Billy Barter banged home a rebound of a Rich Stone shot at 1:51 of the second for a 1-0 lead. Senior Rob Mooney also picked up an assist.

"I'm real pleased with Barter," Doyle said. "He hasn't shown up on the score sheet a lot but he brought a lot of tenacity and grit to our team. It's nice to see him get some notoriety."

"It was great to get the early lead on Falmouth," he added. "(Quincy High) coach (Bob) Sylvia gave me some advice. He said if you get an early lead, try to frustrate (Falmouth coach) Buddy Ferreria and get him tight under the collar. You'll find that he'll start yelling at his players and they'll tense up."

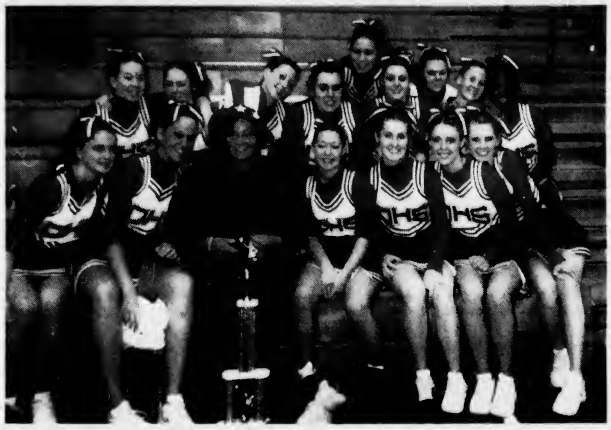
"That would've changed the complexion of the game," Doyle said.

North Quincy quickly unraveled as it took three penalties in the middle frame: high sticking at 6:57, holding at 10:13 and hooking at 12:16.

The Clippers capitalized twice for a 2-1 lead. Forward Tim Studley evened the score at 6:27 with assists from Eric Marr and Tim Miller, and he put his team on top at 13:16 with assists from Steve Driscoll and Miller.

"It was still pretty much anyone's game," Doyle said. "I stressed to the kids to keep their heads up and that we have ourselves a great hockey game here."

In the third, North Quincy thought it had tied the game at 2 three minutes into the period. After further review, the goal was disallowed when the second referee ruled a North Quincy player knocked the puck in with his hand during a scrum in front of the net.



Falmouth increased its lead to 3-1 when Marr beat senior goalie Bruce Maggio at 9:11, and he then added an empty-netter at 14:22

Grazioso closed out the scoring when Rudenhauer mishandled his blast from center ice with two seconds left in the game. Grazioso, who was blanketed all night, finished his sensational senior year with 38 goals and 20 assists in 23 games.

"An outstanding year for him," Doyle said. "Falmouth had three players on him whenever he touched the puck. I thought that would open ice up for other players but that didn't unfold. Falmouth played great team defense.

"Bottom line is Falmouth is a stronger team than us and that's why they were the top seed. A little luck with a bounce here or there and it might have been different. We were right there."

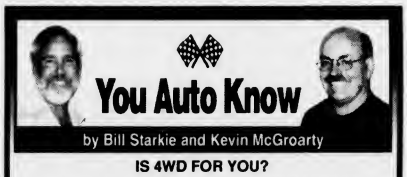
Boating Safety Course At Maritime Center



Massachusetts Environmental Police will hold a basic boating public safety course beginning April 12.

Scheduled for three consecutive Saturdays, the course will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Maritime Center, 138 Bayview Ave., next to the Quincy Yacht Club.

The course, offered to the public at no charge, is designed to foster safe boat operation through increased awareness of required safety equipment, safe boating practices and legal responsibilities.

Youth, ages 12-15, who successfully complete the course will be issued a Safety Certificate allowing them to operate a motorboat without adult supervision, as required by state law. The course will also satisfy the state requirements for personal watercraft uses who are ages 16-17. All graduates will be issued a course completion diploma and a Safety Certificate

Pre-registration is required. For course information or to register, contact the Massachusetts Environmental Police Department Boat & Recreational Vehicle Safety Bureau at 617-727-8760 or 508-790-9360.

IS 4WD FOR YOU?

If you're looking for a vehicle with more suitable traction and better ground clearance, give some consideration to a four-wheel-drive vehicle. This type of vehicle will display better acceleration and somewhat better steering because the front wheels are pulling in the desired direction. On the other hand, do not expect that four-wheel-drive will nullify the laws of gravity, physics, or common sense. Regardless of drive, only the tire patches connect your vehicle to the road. If you speed down a snow-covered grade with only tenuous grip, you will quickly learn the limitations of 4WD. In fact, there is nothing to suggest that 4WD will stop better, as this is generally a function of brakes, tires, and vehicle weight.

Whether your car is a 4WD or not, here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO our ASE Certified professional technicians will service your car with the same level of attention that they would give their own. We also use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. We have a strong commitment to give you individual, personal treatment. Complete satisfaction begins right here in our service department. Stop by 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550) and let's get acquainted. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: Perhaps the most important safety feature in any vehicle is the driver's good sense.

BILLY ALLEN was recently inducted into the American Powerboat Association Hall of Champions at a ceremony in Detroit, Mich.

Hopes To Compete In World Championships

North Quincy's Billy Allen Inducted Into American Powerboat Hall Of Champs

Billy Allen of North Quincy had a feeling this year was going to be special after starting the 2002 outboard racing season with seven straight victories in the B modified hydro class.

"I banged out seven in a row and that gave me a jump," he said.

A jump on fulfilling a dream. Last month, Allen received the sport's highest honor when he was inducted into the American Powerboat Association (APBA) Hall of Champions at a luncheon ceremony at APBA headquarters in Detroit, Mich.

"It's great," said Allen, 41, recently while driving to North Carolina to pick up a brand new boat from his friend, John Runne. "It's the highest award you can get in this sport. It's the absolute highest. Better than any national awards."

John Read, APBA Modified Outboard vice president, congratulated Allen in the following letter:

"I can't tell you how happy I was when calculating the results of the Hall of Champions points totals when your name came out on top. You have been racing, helping all kinds of people, and representing APBA and yourself for many years before I even got involved.

"It is hard for me to believe after watching and learning from you for 12 years that you hadn't made the heaviest award the APBA has to offer. It only tells me that dedication wins out in the end.

"I know you understand my love for the sport as a few others do. It is about the people and the fun we have together. My last few acts as 2002 Chairman of the Modified Division have certainly made me smile, but no act, as proud of someone, will make me forget your induction."

Allen earned four national awards during the 2002 season, competing in 41 separate races in six different classes of modified division racing, covering seven states. He kicked off the season with a winter national championship at Crescent City, Fla.

He earned the national overall high point championship with a phenomenal 14,000 points — allowing him to sport the coveted US-1 designation on his boat for the 2003 season.

Allen also attained the national points championship in the B modified hydro, which is based on a driver's point average over the first 12 races of the season in one particular class.

And he received the Paul Kall Memorial award, which is given to the driver in the modified division who accumulates the most points for the season in one particular class.

"It was definitely one of my top three seasons," Allen said. "I won four national titles a couple of years ago and didn't get in because a couple of guys did a little better than me. It depends on what happens to everyone else."

Allen seemed destined to be involved in powerboat racing. His grandfather, Ramsey, opened the first Mercury Outboard dealership in New England in 1943, R.C. Allen Co. on Atlantic Avenue in Boston.

Allen's father, Bill W., eventually took interest in the sport and raced for more than 30 years. He won many national titles and earned an induction into the Hall of Champions in 1982.

Meanwhile, the younger Allen tagged along with his father to many races and subsequently got hooked on the sport. And in 1974, at the ripe old age of 9, he began his career in the Junior Stock Runabout class.

Eight years later he captured his first national title of any kind (B Stock Runabout National High Point Champion) and 10 years after that he seized his first national closed course championship (A Stock Hydro National Closed Course Champion).

Since that first national title in 1982, he has won over 15 national championships, either points titles or closed course.

"Just the excitement of driving the boat, going that fast (around 70 mph)," said Allen when asked what he likes most about the sport.

Allen is also an avid runner, having finished 12 marathons including the last seven Boston Marathons. In 1984 he won the 25 Superstock Runabout Marathon National Championship in Indian River, Mich. — his first marathon national title.

He enjoys both sports so much that he once participated in a marathon and a powerboat race in the same day in 1995. He completed the Bay State Marathon in Lowell (4 hours, 2 minutes) around noon and immediately drove to Worcester where he won a race in the A Stock Hydro.

"It was tiring," Allen said. "I went out to the boat race just to watch and check it out. I found out my race hadn't even started yet, so I just entered and I won."

Allen is a member of the South Shore Outboard Association, which will host the North East Stock and Modified Division Championships June 21 at Watson's Pond in Taunton, attracting people from all over the East Coast.

Allen is also interested in competing in the world championships in Germany May 24 and is looking for sponsors.

"I want to get over there," he said. "It's going to cost about $10,000. It helps to get a little financial aid. We have a few leads. But it's tough with the economy the way it is.

Those interested in sponsoring Allen can contact him at 781-775-9290.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Daytime Drowsiness May Point To Obesity-Caused Sleep Apnea

So you awaken each day feeling more tired than when you climbed into bed the night before. Despite the headache you often endure in the morning, you go to work, where you struggle to stay awake during staff meetings. Driving to see a customer at midday, you feel drowsy behind the wheel.

You may be one of approximately 12 million Americans with obstructive sleep apnea – a condition in which people stop breathing repeatedly while asleep.

And, if obstructive sleep apnea is causing your fatigue, there is a good chance that you have a serious weight problem.

"The majority of cases of obstructive sleep apnea are caused by obesity," said Edward Saltzman, M.D., whose practice at Tufts-New England Medical Center in Boston focuses on nutrition and treating obese patients. Dr. Saltzman is also vice chair of the Massachusetts Medical Society's Committee on Nutrition.

Dr. Saltzman said that sleep apnea (apnea is a Greek word meaning "without breath") sufferers may only know that their spouses complain about their excessive snoring – or that they occasionally seem to stop breathing. More likely, he said, what they do know is the way they feel during the day.

"It's the daytime symptoms patients notice," Dr. Saltzman said. "They complain of fatigue, lack of concentration. Sometimes they just nod off. Sleep apnea may be responsible for traffic accidents when people fall asleep at the wheel. Also, it can diminish quality of life or be associated with depression."

What causes sleep apnea? Obstructive sleep apnea, the most common type, results from collapse of a person's airway while sleeping. Dr. Saltzman said the obese person will likely have excessive tissue around the airway. Another part of the problem, he said, is that breathing may be more labored because of extra tissue in the abdomen and chest wall, and because of possible changes in lung function, also a result of obesity.

"All of these things conspire to collapse the airway during sleep," said Dr. Saltzman. "With obstructive sleep apnea patients do not get enough airflow to the lungs, and oxygen levels in the blood decrease."

As serious as this sounds, people with sleep apnea almost never die in their sleep from the problem. Instead, the brain becomes alert to breathing difficulty during sleep and sends out a message to disrupt the slumbering person.

"Typically they will gasp or change position," Dr. Saltzman said. "They move and as a result of that the airway opens up again."

This may occur from 10 to 60 times during a single night – or as many as 100 times in a severe case. The result of all these interruptions is that the person afflicted with sleep apnea does not sleep continuously and does not reach the deep state of rapid eye movement (REM) sleep that rejuvenates the body.

Dr. Saltzman said the "standard recommendation" to a patient with sleep apnea is to lose weight. "That is typically one of the most effective treatments," he said. "Losing five to 10 percent of body weight can result in a demonstrable improvement. And, a more significant weight loss can cure the problem."

Other treatments involve a special mask that is equipped with a small generator that blows air into a person's airway, Dr. Saltzman said. He said patients who complain of being tired are often diagnosed with sleep apnea after spending a night in a sleep lab for testing.

"Patients don't typically tell you about this," he said. One of his regular questions to obese patients is whether they have trouble sleeping or experience fatigue during the day.

"Because of the prevalence of obesity in our society, awareness of this condition needs to increase," Dr. Saltzman said. "This condition is treatable, and the treatment can have a dramatic effect on quality of life."

Obesity is determined by a measurement called "Body Mass Index" (BMI) as recommended by a National Institutes of Health panel several years ago. BMI is a measure of weight in relation to a person's height. To find your BMI score on an easy-to-read chart, go to www.surgeongeneral.gov/topics/obesity/calltoaction.fact_advice.htm.

Coping With Disaster

By CAROL RENAUD, LICSW
MASS Counseling Network
A program of South Shore Mental Health

Are you still finding it difficult to cope with the aftermath of Sept. 11, 2001? Do you feel anxiety about the ongoing terrorist threats against the United States or the potential for war with Iraq?

If you answered yes to either of these questions, South Shore Mental Health (SSMH) can help. Through a grant from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) administered by the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health, SSMH is offering free crisis support services for residents of Massachusetts until May 31.

SSMH is one of several local human service agencies that make up the MASS Counseling Network — the group responsible for administering the FEMA grant.

Common Reactions To Disaster

While there is no set pattern to reacting to a disaster or other traumatic event, there are some feelings that are common to many people. These include: shock, numbness, denial, fear, grief, insecurity, anger, resentment, guilt, physical ailments and depression.

How To Help Yourself

- Talk with someone about your feelings.
- Don't hold yourself responsible for the disastrous event.
- Maintain a normal routine, but limit demanding responsibilities
- Spend time with family and friends.
- Participate in memorials and rituals that help express your feelings.
- Establish a family emergency plan.

When To Seek Help

If self-help strategies are not working or you find that your are using alcohol/drugs in order to cope, you may wish to seek outside or professional assistance with your stress symptoms. Free crisis support services are available to you through SSMH, including:

- Individual crisis counseling.
- Group crisis counseling.
- Educational outreach to organizations.
- Individualized presentations to community groups, organizations, businesses or schools.
- Multicultural and multilingual services.
- Asian Community Counseling.

For more information about free crisis support services, call Marie Nichols at SSMH at 617-847-1914.

Week Of March 24

American Cancer Society Seeks Volunteer Drivers For Daffodil Deliveries

The American Cancer Society needs Quincy residents to help deliver bouquets of daffodils to local businesses and residents the week of March 24.

With the help of volunteers during Daffodil Days, the American Cancer Society hopes to raise vital funds for research, education, advocacy and patient services, while bringing hope and help to cancer patients in the community.

To order a bouquet of daffodils for $6, or a Gift of Hope for $15 (a bouquet of daffodils delivered anonymously to a local cancer patient or someone in need), call the American Cancer Society at 1508-580-9600 and press 3 for extension 243.

To be a volunteer driver, call the American Cancer Society at 1-888-648-4880 and press 3 for extension 290.

Colorectal Cancer Awareness

March is national colorectal cancer awareness month, and Dana-Farber Cancer Institute Physicians and nurses are encouraging people who are age 50 and older to be screened regularly for the disease.

Colorectal cancer, or cancer of the colon and rectum, is the second leading cause of cancer-related deaths in men and women in the United States. The American Cancer Society estimates that 57,000 people will die from colorectal cancer this year, and another 147,000 people will be diagnosed with the disease.

Age is a major risk factor for colorectal cancer, with people who are age 50 and older accounting for more than 90 percent of new cases. Other risk factors include inflammatory bowel disease, a personal or family history of colorectal cancer or colorectal polyps, a low-fiber and high-fat diet, a sedentary lifestyle, obesity, alcohol consumption, and tobacco use.

Colorectal cancer typically starts as small, noncancerous growths or polyps on the internal lining of the colon or rectum. The use of regular screening tests increases the possibility of detecting -- and removing -- these polyps while they are still pre-cancerous or early stage cancer, and when they are most treatable.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

A SORE SUBJECT

While patients usually associate a visit to the dentist with a better smile, it may also involve a cancer screening. Dentists check for oral cancer by inspecting the tongue and the roof of the mouth, and by feeling the lymph nodes on the neck. Oral cancer can begin as a tiny white or red spot or a sore anywhere in the mouth. People who smoke and drink excessively are at greatest risk for oral cancer; however, more than 25% of all cases of oral cancers appear in people with no known risk factors. The American Cancer Society estimates that, this year, there will be 28,900 new oral cancer cases in the U.S. Early detection, diagnosis, and treatment are critical to long-term survival.

If you have concerns or questions about the well-being of your teeth and gums, call us at 617-479-6220. Please don't let unwarranted fears keep you from maintaining your dental health. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Your chances of needing expensive treatment in the future because of neglect today are a far greater concern. The key to dental health is routine preventive care. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we are currently accepting new patients. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. The dentist can check for oral cancer by rinsing the mouth with various solutions that more clearly reveal its presence than is possible with the naked eye.

At Funeral Mass

William (Bill) Sullivan, 90

Remembered For His Dedication On, Off The Playing Field

By HENRY BOSWORTH

William (Bill) J. Sullivan, Quincy High School legendary football coach, was fondly remembered for his dedication to others — on and off the playing field — at his funeral Mass Saturday at St. Ann's Church, Wollaston.

Mr. Sullivan, who also taught social studies at Quincy High School, died March 4 at the home of a Braintree family member after a long bout with pancreatic cancer. He was 90.

Rt. Rev. Robert P. Deeley, pastor of St. Ann's Church and celebrant of the Mass, eulogized Mr. Sullivan as "a father figure . . . a war hero . . . a man of faith . . . dedicated to his wife, his profession and to young people."

Monsignor Deeley said as a football coach, Mr. Sullivan was inspired by Notre Dame's legendary Knute Rockne and his famous "Win One For The Gipper" speech.

"It inspired him to give those wonderful speeches," he said, referring to Mr. Sullivan's own well-known locker room pep talks.

Mrs. Linda (Anderson) Sullivan, reflecting on their 10-year marriage, said: "He was called a legend. To me he was my darling husband, the love of my life. Ours was a love story. He was the best thing that happened to me in my life.

"He was a giver. He gave just to make another person happy."

WILLIAM SULLIVAN

Although Mr. Sullivan had no children, she noted, "he had many sons" referring to his former players, many who attended the Mass, several of whom served as pallbearers.

Mrs. Sullivan recalled how proud he was to be named honorary football captain for Quincy High School at the 2001 Thanksgiving Day game against North Quincy and was awarded the game ball by current Coach Robert Noble which he cherished.

"It was on his bed when he died," she said.

Mrs. Sullivan read a letter from Martin Finnegan, an assistant coach to Mr. Sullivan and former Quincy athletic director, now living in Desert Hot Springs, Calif.

Mr. Sullivan served in the Navy as a captain with the Seventh Fleet in World War II from 1942 to 1945, participating in a number of landings including Leyte in the

Augustine N. Palluccio, 80

Former Superintendent At Shipyard

A funeral Mass for Augustine N. Palluccio, 80, of Braintree, a former Superintendent of the Sheet Metal Department at the former Fore River Shipyard in Quincy, was celebrated March 8 at the Church of St. Claire, 1244 Liberty St., Braintree.

He died March 4 at home after a brief illness.

He was born in Quincy, educated in Quincy schools and was a graduate of Quincy Trade School. He lived in Braintree for the last seven years.

Mr. Palluccio was Superintendent of the Sheet Metal Department of the former Fore River Shipyard in Quincy. He worked for both the Bethlehem Steel Company and General Dynamics and had a total of forty-four years of service. After his retirement from the shipyard in 1986 he worked for the Quincy Cable Company for ten years and retired in 1997.

He was a veteran of World War II, having served in the U.S. Army in England.

He is survived by his wife Eleanor M. (Powers) Almeida-Palluccio; five sons, Paul A. Palluccio, Mark V. Palluccio, Joseph P. Palluccio and James A. Palluccio, all of Quincy, and Peter A. Palluccio of Weymouth; three daughters, Patricia M. Barry of Quincy, and Pamela M. Wilcox and Tina M. Burm, both of Braintree; two brothers, Matthew Palluccio of Braintree and Frank Palluccio of Plymouth, a sister, Rita Tosone of Quincy; 18 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren. He was the husband of the late Virginia R. (Gilcoine) Palluccio.

Burial will be in Braintree Cemetery.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

SCOTT DEWARE

JUDGE GENTLY

"Pray, don't find fault with the man who limps or stumbles along the road unless you have worn the shoes he wears or struggled beneath his load. There may be tacks in his shoes that hurt his feet though hidden away from view. Or the burden he bears . . . placed on your back might cause you to stumble, too.

Don't sneer at the man who's down today unless you have felt the blow that caused his fall or felt the same that only the fallen knows.

You may be strong but still the blows that were his . . . if dealt to you in the self same way at the self same time might cause you to stagger, too.

Don't be too harsh with the man who sins or pelt him with word or stone, unless you are sure, Yea, doubly sure that you have no sins of your own -- For you know that perhaps if the tempter's voice should whisper as softly to you as it did to him . . . when he went astray it might cause you to falter, too. . ." William (Bill) Sullivan, 90

Philippines. And he was there when General Douglas MacArthur made his triumphant return.

"He was so proud to serve in World War II," said Finnegan. "He couldn't bear to see his students go off to war without him."

Finnegan said Mr. Sullivan wanted to become a football coach as early as age 13 listening to the Rockne coached Notre Dame football team games on radio.

He said Mr. Sullivan's code was: "Play your best. Play hard. Play fair. Play to win."

Mr. Sullivan was a football, baseball and basketball standout at Quincy High School from 1928 to 1930.

He went on to become a three-letter man at Wilbraham Academy and also at Mount St. Mary's College where he was an All-Maryland end for three years.

He was line coach to another Quincy High School legend — the late Munroe MacLean — from 1938 to 1942 and from 1946 to 1951 with World War II service in between.

He took over as head football coach in 1952, retiring in 1959.

He left two marks in the Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day rivalry: a 6-2 record, with five consecutive wins, the longest win streak in the 70-year rivalry and still stands today.

Among his former players attending the funeral Mass was Jim Colclough who went on to be a record-setting wide receiver for the New England (then Boston) Patriots.

The Quincy High School Alumni Benefit fund Committee honored Mr. Sullivan in October, 2000 by retiring the No. 15 he wore at Quincy High School as a football player. It was the first QHS number ever retired.

The committee, comprising mostly Mr. Sullivan's players in the 1950s, has also raised money for scholarships in his name.

Mr. Sullivan's high school baseball jersey was later retired.

He was inducted into both the Quincy Football and Baseball Hall of Fame as well as the Mount St. Mary's Athletic Hall of Fame.

Mount St. Mary's honored him last year with its Bishop Joseph Walsh Award for his service in education, to the college and to his country.

Mr. Sullivan grew up in Quincy Point and lived in Wollaston 46 years before moving to Weymouth 10 years ago. He and his wife also had a second home in Dennisport.

Mr. Sullivan earned a master's degree in education at Boston University.

He was a past commanding officer of the Naval Reserve in Quincy and a member of the U.S. Naval Reserve Association. He was also a member of the Quincy Teachers Association, Massachusetts Teachers Association, the Quincy Hall of Fame Committees and the Irish American Club of Cape Cod.

He was the husband of the late Alice (Mulhern) Sullivan for 50 years.

In addition to his wife, Linda (Anderson) Sullivan, he is survived by a sister, M. Geraldine Hoyle of Braintree, and several nieces and nephews.

Pallbearers at the funeral were Quincy High School football Coach Robert Noble, former North Quincy Coach Ken McPhee, Quincy High hockey Coach Robert Sylvia, former players Ron Ivil, Gene Cavanaugh, George Mallett, Robert Derbes, Vincent Moscardelli and Joseph Brill, president of the Quincy High School Baseball Alumni Association/Hall of Fame Committee.

Burial was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery with full military honors.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Donations may be made to Quincy High School Alumni Benefit Fund, 181 Sea St., Weymouth, MA 02191, or to Mt. St. Mary College, 16300 Old Emmittsburg Road, Emmittsburg, MD 21727, or to the Irish American Club of Cape Cod, c/o Veronica Lee, 70 Padlock Lane, Centerville, MA 02632.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You could have some problems with doubters who don't share your enthusiasm for that new project you're supporting. But use the facts to win them over to your side.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Someone is impressed by how you managed to get your case to the right people, despite attempts to keep you on the outside looking in. Expect to hear more about this.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Good for you — your gift for seeing both sides of a dispute helps cool down a potentially explosive workplace situation. Some family-related tensions also begin to ease.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your determination to prove yourself is put to the test by midweek. Counting all the positive factors you have going for you will help you get over your self-doubt. Good luck.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Several co-workers are still determined to resist coming over to your side. But don't let that stop you from presenting your proposal to the people who count. Stay the course.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You might prefer to be taken on faith and not have to prove yourself. But the truth is, you need to offer more facts if you hope to persuade people to accept what you say.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A family situation takes an unwelcome turn. While others might be looking around for answers, you'll soon sort it all out logically, and the matter will be resolved.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Someone might try to create doubt about your reliability for his or her own agenda. But your reputation and your colleagues' long-standing faith in you saves the day.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) An unexpected change of plans forces you to come up with an alternative by the end of the week. Look for colleagues to offer valuable suggestions.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Nothing upsets the Goat as much as broken promises. But before you vent your anger, consider that this could ultimately prove to be a blessing in disguise.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) An old workplace problem you thought you had solved for good resurfaces. But this time, coworkers will take a more active role in helping you deal with it.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Be careful not to be misled by a negative reaction to one of your more important projects. If you believe in it, then it has worth and is, therefore, worth staying with.

BORN THIS WEEK: Everyone appreciates your gift for finding beauty, even where it seems least likely to exist.

Frederick Hall, 65

Former MBTA Bus Driver

A funeral service for Frederick Hall, 65, of Rockland, formerly of Quincy, a former MBTA bus driver, was held March 8 at Mortimer N. Peck-Russell Peck Funeral Home in Braintree.

He died March 4 at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth.

As a bus driver, Mr. Hall drove principally in the Quincy area. He was a member of Carmen's Local 589, Boston.

He served in the Air Force as a sentry dog-handler from 1955 to 1959 and also with the Army Reserve.

He was a member of the Hanson Rod and Gun Club.

Born in Boston, Mr. Hall lived in Quincy before moving to Rockland 32 years ago.

He is survived by his wife, Rachel L. (Faulkner) Hall; a son, Jeffrey D. Hall of Rockland; a daughter, Elaine M. Southwick of Quincy; two brothers, James R. Hall of Quincy and William L. Hall of Holbrook; four sisters, Eleanor L. Young of South Boston, Dorothy B. Lowe of Bridgewater and Myrna June Jennings and Barbara A. Anastasia, both of Quincy; nine grandchildren; and many nieces and nephews. He was the father of the late Frederick A. Hall.

Burial was in Knollwood Memorial Park, Canton.

The Rev. Robert Killeffer of First Baptist Church in Braintree officiated.

NOTICE REGARDING ON-SITE SEWAGE DISPOSAL SYSTEMS

You are hereby notified that Massachusetts Regulations (Title 5 Regulations) require an inspection of on-site sewage disposal systems when there is a transfer of title to real estate. Any purchaser or transferee of real estate served by an on-site sewage disposal system is obligated to inspect, and if necessary, to upgrade a system in accordance with the provisions of Code of Massachusetts Regulations (CMR). You are hereby referred to 310 CMR 15.300-15.305 for time periods to do so and other requirements.

The office of the Deputy Sheriff has no information about whether the real estate in question is served by an on-site sewage disposal system.

Luis Marden, 90

Former Geographic Editor

A private funeral service for Luis Marden, 90, of McLean, Va., formerly of Quincy, a retired editor of National Geographic magazine, was held recently.

Mr. Marden died March 3 in Arlington, Va.

A photographer, writer, explorer and lecturer, he spent many years as the head of National Geographic's foreign editorial staff.

Mr. Marden was born Louis Paragallo in Chelsea and was raised and educated in Wollaston. He graduated from Quincy High School.

He worked at radio station WMEX, where he took the name Luis Marden. He wrote the book "Color Photography with a Miniature Camera," which led to his being hired by National Geographic when he was 21 years old. He later worked with the late Harold Edgerton of MIT developing the underwater camera.

During his time at the magazine, he discovered the wreck of the British ship Bounty (of "Mutiny on the Bounty" fame) off Pitcairn Island in 1957, went scuba diving with Jacques Cousteau and retraced Columbus' voyage to the New World from Spain using the original log.

Mr. Marden found the eggs of the extinct Aepyornis bird on the island of Madagascar, and discovered new species of a Brazilian orchard and a sea flea, both of which were named after him.

He enjoyed fly fishing, and built many of the bamboo rods himself. He published a book, "The Angler's Bamboo" in 1997.

When he was 70, he acquired a small plane which he flew in the meadow near his house. He had a boat built in England and sailed it across the Atlantic.

He is survived by his wife of 63 years, Ethel Cox Marden; and two sisters, Elizabeth Sgarlet and Anita deBenedictis; two nieces, Danielle deBenedictis Karlson and Mary Anne Sgarlet Baumgartner; a nephew, Louis deBenedictis; a grandniece; and a grandnephew, all of Milton.

Memorial services will be held in Boston and Washington at a later date.

dents "deserve no less."

"Some of these streets were in terrible shape before this winter began," said Coughlin. "I really can't point to anything that was done to the streets last year. Right now we are patching up the holes of a leaking ship."

Coughlin said it is important for residents to be apprised of a construction schedule so they can prepare accordingly.

He said most people understand that the current fiscal climate has left cities and towns strapped for cash. "But many are asking, what am I getting for my tax dollars?" he said.

He said the city received approximately $1.3 million in state and federal funds for road repair in fiscal 2003. Coughlin said that amount is woefully inadequate. "Massachusetts is one of several states that fail to adopt a 'fix it first' policy or invest adequately in road report," he said.

SOUTH COASTAL WORKFORCE Investment Board Executive Director Colleen Price explained the many services available at their Quincy Career Center at a recent general membership meeting of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association. The facility on the Parkingway offers a number of services for both a potential employer and those seeking employment. It is open to the public and caters to candidates of all ages who are seeking employment skills or services. Joining Price at the membership meeting are (from left) Eric Stoeckel of Burgin, Platner & Hurley Insurance, QCBPA first vice president; Jeff Bertman, Rogers Jewelry, current QCBPA president; and Richard Gormley, Sovereign Bank, QCBPA treasurer.

Keenan Proposal Aims To Relieve Burden Of City's Pension Liability

Councillor John Keenan recently proposed a home rule petition that seeks to relieve the city's financial burden regarding its unfunded pension liability.

Keenan's measure, introduced at last week's city council meeting, would allow Quincy to issue Pension Obligation Bonds, which he claims could save hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The city budgeted more than $15 million this fiscal year to fund the retirement system, but it still owes more than a $100 million to be paid over the course of 21 years.

Keenan's proposal would allow the city to make a one-time payment and finance the amount over a similar number of years at a low interest rate.

The move could result in a substantial savings for the city, Keenan said.

"It's somewhat similar to refinancing a home at a favorable, locked in interest rate," he said.

Currently, the city does not have the authority to issue Pension Obligation Bonds, Keenan said. The measure would have to be approved by the city council, state Legislature and governor.

Keenan asked for a review of the proposal by the council's finance committee, the retirement board, the city solicitor and auditor.

"In essence this legislation would give us a financial tool to be used if and when deemed most advantageous to the city," said Keenan. "Given the potential for large savings, I have urged my fellow councillors to act promptly on this proposal."

THE PERSONAL TOUCH — Mayor William Phelan and DPW Commissioner Jay Fink fill a pothole on Hancock Street, North Quincy, Tuesday, launching "Pothole Assault" for the city.

City Launches 'Pothole Assault'

By TOM HENSHAW

If you think this has been a tough winter, dig this:

"An average winter requires 35 tons of asphalt patch on the roadways," said Jay Fink, the public works commissioner. "This past weekend alone my crews have laid out some 40 tons. And we are not done yet."

That's one of the reasons Mayor William Phelan has promised his "highest priority" to addressing the condition of city streets, filling potholes, refreshing schoolyards and making the business districts attractive.

The mayor's ":Pothole Assault" is the first stage in his Comprehensive Street and Sidewalk Initiative.

"This winter's record snowfall, which exceeded 70 inches, will provide no excuse for conditions," he said. "I am committed to providing the necessary resources to fix our streets and squares. Whether it is overtime, emergency funding, or private contractors, our streets will be shining this spring."

The report a pothole, contact the Pothole Hotline at 617-376-1914 or visit the city's website at http://www.ci.quincy.ma.us and log a constituent service request.

Fink, who will spearhead the pothole repair effort, expressed confidence that citizens would appreciate the effort.

"This has been an exceptionally harsh winter," he said. "The streets have been in decline for years and they were really chewed up by the late-season storm."

Fink detailed a plan for filling the potholes that would include the efforts of his entire department, supplemented by the overtime authorized by the mayor until the streets are finished.

Park Commissioner Thomas Koch also has committed crews to the cleanup of schools and squares.

"The mayor has dedicated an all-out effort to bring this area back up to the level residents expect and deserve," he said. "The damage is considerable and the melting snow reveals more problems each day, but we are absolutely committed to attacking and solving the problem."

Phelan Announces Plan To Refinance Bond Issues

Mayor William Phelan announces a plan to refinance three bond issues at a lower coupon rate, a move he says could save $200,000 in fiscal 2003.

"Though tough financial times are upon us," said Phelan, "This is another example of the creative thinking and management necessary to help the City of Quincy cope with the new fiscal realities."

Cynthia McNerney, senior vice president of First Southwest Co., the city's bond advisor, approved the refinancing. "The stars are properly aligned," she said. "Rates right now are low and Quincy has a very low debt ratio, as well as latitude to undertake such a refinancing. This is a fiscally smart move."

Despite $400,000 Approved For Fire Dept.

Rescue 1 Now On 'Iffy' Status

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Rescue 1, the city's most active fire department vehicle, has been taken off the streets due to a budget shortfall that is hindering the department, according to Chief Paul O'Connell.

The city council Monday night approved O'Connell's budget request of $400,000 to cover overtimes costs for the department. But the chief said the appropriation would not rectify the situation regarding Rescue 1. At press time, the fire truck had not responded to a call since Friday night.

Rescue 1's service will depend on the number of firefighters available for each shift.

O'Connell said Rescue 1 is the department's most active piece of equipment. Last year, the truck responded to 2,500 calls, he said. The truck carries several important pieces of equipment, including the Jaws of Life, saws, immersion suits and extra air bottles for firefighters. O'Connell said fire apparatus in other locations will handle the tasks previously undertaken by Rescue 1.

A large deficit has forced O'Connell to reduce the minimum number of firefighters required to work a shift from 41 to 38. If staffing levels fall to 38 then he will take the truck out of service. O'Connell said he would evaluate the situation on a shift-by-shift basis.

By some estimates, the over

Grazioso Leaves For Asst. State Treasurer Job

Alfred Grazioso is leaving Friday after more than eight years as the city's purchasing agent and parking clerk.

He'll be joining newly elected Sate Treasurer Timothy Cahill as assistant treasurer for administration and finance.

"It's a new challenge," said Grazioso, who will begin his new job Monday.

"I have mixed emotions about leaving. It's been a privilege to serve the city where I grew up and to work with a lot of dedicated people."

"We're sorry to see him go," said Mayor William Phelan. "He has been an asset to this administration and I'm sure he'll be an asset to Tim Cahill's office.

"When I first came into office, Al Grazioso was one of the people who stepped up and helped me in my transition into the mayor's office."

ALFRED GRAZIOSO

Assistant City Solicitor Jay MacRitchie will handle the responsibilities of purchasing agent until a permanent replacement for Grazioso is found.

Clarification

Because of a reporting error, the name of the restaurant on Wollaston Beach which requested a beer and wine license was incorrectly stated in a story in last week's Quincy Sun.

The Clam Box, located at 789 Quincy Shore Dr., was denied the beer and wine license from the Quincy Board of License Commissioners.

A story in the March 13, 2003 Quincy Sun incorrectly reported it was Tony's Clam Shop, located at 861 Quincy Shore Dr.

The Sun regrets the error.

Legislators Say 20 Percent Possible

Hefty Cuts Loom In Local Aid For FY '04

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Quincy's state delegation painted a grim picture of the Commonwealth's financial status, saying the city could face local aid cuts of up to 20 percent for the coming fiscal year.

Sen. Michael Morrissey, Reps. Ron Mariano and Bruce Ayers appeared before the council Monday night to provide an update on the state's fiscal situation.

Morrissey told councillors they should prepare for local aid cuts of 15 to 20 percent for the next fiscal year.

"I think it's a realistic number - things are bad," said Morrissey.

Mariano agreed with Morrissey, and said the city should structure its budget to work with 20 percent less in local aid for the coming fiscal year.

Mayor William Phelan said tough fiscal times ahead will prompt his administration to "think outside the box" for ways to save money.

"I've been directing my department heads and staff to think outside the box and come up with ways to do more with less," said Phelan. "We must find alternative ways to continue to provide the city's residents with the services they are accumstomed to. Having said that, we must and will live within our means. If difficult decisions need to be made I am prepared to make those decisions."

Phelan said a 20 percent cut in local aid would mean a decrease of $8 million to the city.

Mariano said legislators do not want to go beyond the 20 percent threshold.

"That is a number that a lot of people don't want to break," he said.

Mariano said the Commonwealth would have to lay off every state employee to close the state's budget deficit, which is estimated at $3 billion.

But the legislators cautioned against jumping to conclusions because debate has just begun on Romney's budget proposal.

Mariano said Gov. Romney's revenue projections are inflated and not realistic. The governor's budget proposal for fiscal 2004 contains "a lot of bogus numbers," he said.

"We are sort of in the dark as to how we are going to approach this deficit," Mariano told the city council. But he said the House and Senate should pass a fiscal 2004 budget in May.

"We are concerned about what the numbers are going to be."

Creation of Finance Director Supported By Taxpayers Group

The Quincy Taxpayers' Association (QTA) is supporting Mayor William Phelan's proposal to create the position of Chief Financial Officer.

At its annual 2003 meeting recently, the QTA passed a resolution asking the city council to approve Phelan's proposal. QTA President Alan Cousin and Vice President Robert Haley attended Monday night's city council meeting to lend their support to Phelan's request.

QTA's resolution amends the mayor's request by making the position a joint, mayor/council appointment and assigning a three to five-year term to the job title.

"All our members feel that there isn't adequate control and planning in city finances," said Cousin. "There is no trained, empowered city employee charged with comprehensive financial oversight, and as a result the city has simply wasted $28 million or more over the last 10 years up to and including the present."

Cousin said the position should be filled by a "fully trained and experienced municipal finance professional."

Union Workers Ratify New QMC Contract

Union technical and professional employees at the Quincy Medical Center have ratified a new contract restoring some of the benefits that were sacrificed in 1999 when the hospital was in danger of closing.

Ratification was approved by about 85 percent of the membership of the Service Employees International Union local covering some 150 clerical, maintenance and dietary workers.

Under terms of the two-year contract, the workers will get 3 percent raises retroactive to Oct. 10, 2002 and again on Feb. 1, 2004.

Clerical workers also will receive a restored personal day after Sept. 30, 2004 and a new 12-year step that goes into effect Oct. 3, 2003.

Most significantly to the union, the hospital agreed to an additional "earned time" day for all accrual steps, a move that affects the employees' vacation, personal and sick time.

It Was Good Fun For A Good Cause

The menu was corned beef and cabbage but there were plenty of political ribs for dessert at the Quincy Partnership's 7th annual St. Patrick's Day luncheon-roast at the Quincy Elks.

Some 300 attended, prompting Dan Flynn, who co-emceed the event with City Clerk Joe Shea to get things rolling with the observation: "Have you seen the parking lot out there with all those cars? It looks just like the shipyard. (With Dan Quirk as the new owner.)

FLYNN

SHEA

City Council President Dan Raymondi was vacationing in Florida with his wife, Sharyn, but he wasn't forgotten when it came to the barbs and darts.

Mayor Bill Phelan slipped one in: "Being mayor is hard enough but we have a councillor who wakes up in the morning scheming how to get you and spends the rest of the day at it. . . I tell you, Connolly (innocent Ward 4 Councillor Bryan) I'm getting sick of it."

Phelan got more direct reading a letter supposedly from Raymondi to "someone in Pembroke" (Councillor Greg Hanley moving to that town):

"Dear Greggy: Sorry I couldn't be with you and the boys this year but with his arrogance, Phelan has scheduled St. Patrick's Day to conflict with my vacation."

The letter ends with: "We want to catch an hour of swimming time before the clouds come in. That damn Phelan is at it again."

Shea said he asked Raymondi "the councillor of the world" to send something to the event to be part of the roast even though he was in Florida. Shea then displayed a large poster showing Phelan's head in a pothole.

COUGHLIN

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin kept the Phelan-Raymondi rivalry going singing his own lyrics to The Wild Rover: "It's now or never! Oh, Lord, what will Dan do? Will he challenge Winky Phelan and the whole Tobin crew?"

South Boston Senator Jack Hart quipped: "It's been so cold the politicians up on Beacon Hill have their hands in their own pockets."

Shea, who is also chairman of the City License Board, took a pot shot with sound effects at the police officers who fired their guns at a Marina Bay party for the New England Patriots Super Bowl champs.

Shea read a letter that was supposedly sent to him by Quarterback Tom Brady who lives at Marina Bay:

"My career was just about to skyrocket and then I moved to Marina Bay. Everybody at Marina Bay is nuts. And the noise at the WaterWorks keeps me up all night. (The sound of gunshots came over a speaker as Shea finished.)

Councillor Connolly produced a video on the dating techniques of the other eight councillors when they were young, which registered high on the laugh-o-meter.

Rep. Ron Mariano wanted to assure everyone that he and his colleagues were doing their part and making sacrifices because of the threatened war in Iraq. "I had to give up my weekend gig as Saddam Hussein's look-alike."

MARIANO

"Mike Morrissey has had his business cards printed in 12 Arabic languages.

"Phelan is planning to turn Quincy College into a bomb shelter. Sheets is arming the Salem . . . but aiming it at City Hall. Coughlin is melting up all the shopping carts for the war effort."

With the city's rising Asian population, Councillors Joe Newton and Hanley produced "the newspaper of the future:" a mock copy of The Quincy Sun 30 years from now, all in Chinese language.

And read a few items from it. Among them: "Jimmy Liang is mayor." "And here's a great new concept for a restaurant: American."

Hanley got Phelan to help display bumper stickers he's thinking of using in Pembroke running for selectman, state representative or state senator. But he got the biggest hand for another office: dog catcher.

"But I'm coming back and running for mayor," he declared -- or threatened.

School Committeeman Mike McFarland, in reference to the eviction issue between the city and Quincy College, said the college can't afford the rent because it spent so much money on gold embossed stationery.

Sheriff Mike Bellotti was his usual funny self but former councillor and Norfolk County Register of Probate Pat McDermott explained why in rhyme:

"Bellotti will come here and make us all laugh. But his jokes were all written by highly paid staff."

Bellotti this year zeroed in on the city's plan to seek municipal license plates to raise needed money. He said he had seen a number of applications for the special plates. Among them:

BELLOTTI

ELF-1: Morrissey. SADDAM: Mariano. ILV-GRKS (I Love Greeks) for former Mayor Jim Sheets who placed faith in Sotirios Emmanouil who flopped at reviving the Fore River shipyard.

Then there was TY-RNT (tyrant) for Raymondi. IN-TH-MDL (in the middle) for Rep. Bruce Ayers. GOL-D-LKS (Goldilocks) for McDermott. And one for himself: LIFER.

Bellotti also read a letter supposedly written by Emmanouil to Dan Quirk, new owner of the shipyard: "Great idea selling cars at the shipyard. Do not buy any (to sell). Just sell them. Mayor Jim was good to me."

Shea, doing his popular Shea-zac routine with Flynn, listed three subjects with something in common: the USS Salem, the Quincy Concourse and Dolly Parton. "Bust, bust and bust."

But it was all in good fun, folks, and for another Quincy Partnership civic project.

Bob Curry, a member of the partnership, noted that the group since its inception in 1989 has raised some $400,000 for: the John Adams statue, the Abigail Adams statue, Welcome To Quincy signs, up-lighting of Quincy historic sites and a Manet for the Quincy Historical Society.

CURRY

Proceeds from this year's luncheon -- more than $3,500 -- will go to a decorative Connecticut granite water fountain which will be the centerpiece for the new Formal Garden at Upper Merrymount Park.

With this year's proceeds, most of the $125,000 has been raised and the fountain is expected to be in place sometime in June.

The Quincy Partnership is a private civic minded group that does the nice things it does for Quincy without fanfare.

We'd like to tip our hat to:

It's quite a partnership!

'Dan, It's My Turn To Lead'

'Wink, It's Going To Be The Quincy Point Two-Step.'

Quincy College 'Not Abandoned' During Prop 2 1/2

I have to take issue with last week's letter concerning Quincy College where Dean Harris wrote that Quincy abandoned the college as a result of Proposition 2 1/2.

At that time the college was an integral part of the Quincy Public Schools and was under the control of the Quincy School Committee.

Under the leadership of Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, School Administrator and the support of the Quincy School Committee, the revenue of the college was enhanced by:

• Transferring the nursing education program from the administration of the Quincy City Hospital to the still very successful Associate Degree program at the college.

• Transferring all post secondary programs offered at the Quincy Vocational Technical School to the college created a new base for tuition. This included program offerings in Data Processing, Dental Technicians, Health Aides and a division of Allied Arts was created.

My responsibilities as Director of Business Affairs included the financial activities of the college as well as that of the K-12 programs of the Quincy Public School system.

Under the direction of Superintendent Creedon, a small group of school administrators, namely Carl Deyoso, vice president of Quincy College; Edward Hannon, director of Administration and myself as the director of Business Affairs, successfully created a major stream of income that still exists today.

I don't believe the issue of rent charged by the city would be such an issue if the college were still under the jurisdiction of the Quincy School Committee.

A Tribute To Bill Sullivan

It was with great sadness that I read in the Sun of the passing of Bill Sullivan. I wanted to add some thoughts on his life and his effect on the Quincy Public Schools. Mr. Sullivan's coaching record was outstanding during his time at Quincy High. I know that many student athletes were positively influenced by the lessons taught by him in sports.

His time in the classroom as a teacher was far longer than his work as a coach. It was in the classroom that I came to know Mr. Sullivan. Over the one school year that I had Mr. Sullivan, I found him to be an enthusiastic and outstanding teacher as well as a fair and honest person. He was a true American patriot as he demonstrated one day.

A few years before, he had been asked by the parents of a former student to be the main speaker at a dedication of a square in Quincy to their son who had been killed at war. He read that speech in my class during the school year with a true love for his former student and how his death, though unfortunate, was part of the price that Americans must pay for freedom. I still remember his words many years later and that moment as one of my fondest memories of being a student at Quincy High School.

About five years after graduating from Quincy, I began the job of broadcasting the football on WJDA. I saw many former teachers that I was now dealing on a professional level and called them by their first names. Mr. Conroy was now Hank; Mr. Chrisom was now Peter and so on. For me there was always one exception I could not call by his first name and that was Mr. Sullivan. When I would see him at the football games, it brought back great memories for me and reminded me of the positive influence he brought to my life.

In closing, I've met and worked with many coaches in the Quincy Public Schools. Of the ones I've known it's a small list that I consider great coaches and people. Ken McPhee, Tom Fitzgerald, Jack Raymer, Bob Noble, Jack Donohue, Joe Amorosino, Bob Sylvia and Lou Tozzi are all on it, but Mr. Sullivan stands at the head of the class. My sympathy to the Sullivan family for the loss they have suffered and to Quincy Schools athletics who have lost a true friend.

Honor Roll For Veterans Of D-Day Landing

It is a time to tell the whole story of World War II and honor its participants in what will become the premier World War II museum in the world.

At the present time, the National D-Day Museum in New Orleans is forming an honor roll of those who took part in the D-Day landing.

With the support of those on the Honor Roll, the "Greatest Generation" will receive their place in history in a major national institution telling the whole story of America's role in WWII from Pearl Harbor to D-Day in Europe to the Allied victories on three continents.

New Addition For Quincy Hospital

This Week
1962
41 Years Ago

The City Council passed a $1,525,000 loan order for a new building, including $850,000 for a hospital addition to house the X-ray department, the nursery and the special care unit.

In all, the hospital addition would cost $1.2 million but it was expected that the city would get a federal grant of $400,000 under the Hill Burton Act to make up the difference.

Also included in the bond issue were $225,000 for a North Quincy branch library; $150,000 for a new Atlantic Fire Station; $150,000 for streets and $150,000 for sewers.

The only vote against the hospital addition was cast by Councillor George G. Burke, who explained that he thought other projects, like a new City Hall, were more pressing.

SHIP CONTRACTS SOUGHT

Cong. James A. Burke (D-Milton) scheduled two meetings in Washington with Navy officials in an effort to lure a $60 million nuclear frigate contract to the Fore River shipyard.

At one session, Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa and William A. O'Connell, chairman of the Quincy Shipbuilding Committee, were scheduled to meet with the Secretary of the Navy Fred Korth.

CITY WORKERS LURED AWAY

William Villone, director of veterans services, told the City Council an acute personnel situation was building in his office with trained people being lured away by better paying jobs.

For instance, he told the Council's Committee on Veterans Affairs, an investigator could make $73.59 to $93.50 a week with the city and $89.75 to $113.75 for the same job with the state.

GOSSARD WINS FELLOWSHIP

Arthur Gossard, son of Dr. and Mrs. Paul Gossard of 83 Elm Ave., Wollaston, was granted a fellowship by the National Science Foundation to spend a year at Saclay, a French nuclear research center outside Paris.

BRIDGE HAS PRIORITY

MDC Commissioner Robert Murphy told the Legislative Committee on Highways that construction of a new $2 million bridge over the Neponset River is a high priority project.

At Quincy District Court Friday

Quincy Students To Decide Pro, Cons Of Civil War Justice

Eighty middle school students from Quincy will be called on Friday to make a personal decision on a question that has divided historians for more than 135 years.

Was Abraham Lincoln right in his aborted plan to treat the defeated South with charity or was his War Secretary Edwin Stanton right to imprison hundreds of rebels and hold them without trial?

The battleground in 2003 will be the Quincy District Courthouse Friday, March 21, from 10:30 a.m. to 12 noon when a team of actors presents the problem and submits to questioning by the students.

Students hear testimony from a rebel captain seeking his release and from Stanton himself justifying his actions as necessary to keep the nation from being overthrown. The roles are played by Theatre Espresso actors.

The program, called "Lincoln's Final Hope: Reconstructing a Nation," is presented by the Quincy District Court in cooperation with the James D. St. Clair Court Education Project.

Its goals are to explore the circumstances leading to Lincoln's assassination, examine the issues of treason and national healing after the Civil War, and draw parallels between the events of reconstruction and the present day,

Prior to the program, the students are encouraged to review the events leading up to the Civil War by having groups of students select certain events from the time period and write or illustrate them creatively.

Following the program, they are urged to debate the issues presented in "Lincoln's Final Hope," research the differing opinions, discuss the pros and cons of granting the rebel leader a trial and the nature of justice as it arises during the play.

Other similar programs that are available to the courts include:

"The Confession of Ann Putnam." One of the most vocal accusers in the Salem Witch Trials, who later recanted, is interviewed and her behavior analyzed while students connect the events of Salem in 1692 with their own lives.

"Three Mill Girls." Students meet three young women of differing backgrounds who work in the mills of Lowell and have varying perspectives regarding their work. The program explores immigration, industrialization, labor history, prejudice and women's history.

"Justice at War." An examination of the plight of Japanese-Americans living on the West Coast during World War II in which students act as Supreme Court justices in a real case brought before that tribunal.

'Walkable' City Workshop At City Hall March 25

Mayor William Phelan will host a workshop and walking tour next week aimed at making Quincy a more pedestrian-friendly city for tourists and residents.

The event, held in conjunction with the Boston Metropolitan Planning Organization, will take place Tuesday, March 25, from 8 a.m. to 12 noon.

The workshop will be held in the second floor conference room at City Hall, which will also be the center of the study area. Outside limits de[end on those attending.

Quincy's "Walkable Community Workshop" is part of a nationwide program co-sponsored by the National Center for Bicycling and Walking. It's one of eight such workshops held in Massachusetts.

The half-day event will include an informative presentation by national experts combining practical presentations on the latest urban designs with hands-on field work.

Anyone with a professional or personal interest in making Quincy a more walkable city is invited to attend.

There is no cost to attend but registration is required. Reply to the Planning Department at 617-376-1362 before 12 noon Friday, March 21.

For further information, contact Roberta Fitzgerald at 617-376-1374 or Richard Meade at 617-376-1365.

Ward 1 Neighborhood Meeting Tonight

Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley is sponsoring a neighborhood meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Adams Shore Library, 519 Sea St., to address a number of redevelopment proposals.

Among the subjects to be addressed are: the redevelopment plan for residential use of 502-516 Sea St., the redevelopment proposal of 380 Sea St. and redevelopment of the old Dunkin Donuts site, 401 Sea St., as a convenience store.

Phelan Announces Plan To Refinance Bond Issues

McNerney attended Monday night's council meeting to stress the importance of refinancing the bond issues at this time.

The city is seeking to refinance three separate general obligation bonds. They are all 20-year bonds that mature respectively in 2013, 2014 and 2015. Refinancing the bonds at this time could save the city between $100,000 and $150,000 total over the remaining life of each bond, Phelan said.

Youngster's 10-Inch Ponytail Will Be Used To Create Hairpiece For Children With Hair Loss

Locks Of Love From 6-Year-Old Annika Phillips

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

For six-year-old Annika Phillips, this was no ordinary haircut.

On Tuesday, Phillips visited Bliss Salon and Spa on 1604 Hancock St., and had her 10-inch ponytail cut off. But this time, her hair was not discarded.

Instead, Phillips chose to donate her hair to Locks of Love, a Florida-based, non-profit organization that provides hairpieces to financially disadvantaged children under the age of 18 with medical hair loss.

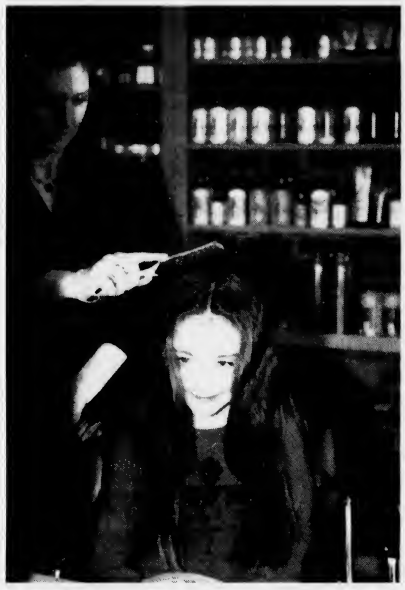
Her ponytail will be sent to the organization to become part of a custom, vacuum-fitted hairpiece made entirely from donated human hair.

Annika's mother, Maria Phillips, said she read about the program in a newspaper article last fall. She brought the matter to the attention of Annika, who was more than willing to participate.

"This was a good incentive for my daughter to get her hair cut, and it is a worthy cause," said Maria, a former Quincy resident.

Most of the children who receive hairpieces suffer from hair loss due to radiation treatment, severe burns, or other auto-immune and dermatological conditions.

More than 850 children have benefited from the program since its inception in 1997. Most donors mail a note and photo along with a bundle of hair. Children make up more than 80 percent of the donors.



Susan Stone, the program's executive director, said Locks of Love restores a child's self esteem. "Wearing a hairpiece allows them to be children again, and not worry about being ridiculed or made fun of," she said. "They can participate in normal, everyday activities, like gymnastics or swimming, and not worry about being stared at."

Stone said it takes 10 to 15 ponytails to make up one hairpiece. The cost of purchasing a hairpiece without financial help would be approximately $6,000, she said. Hairpiece recipients can pick out the color and length of hair, Stone said.

According to the program, a donor's hair should be at least 10 inches in length and must be bundled in a ponytail or braid. Maria said Annika's hair was measured last fall but came up short. So the decision was made to wait a few more months. The result was waist-length hair. "We had a long, hot summer last year and her hair has become very thick with lots of tangles, so it was definitely time for a haircut," said Maria.

Maria wanted to have the haircut done at Bliss, since she is friends with one of its owners, Donna Mavromates. Bliss Salon and Spa opened its doors on March 1.

For more information about the Locks of Love program, call 1-888-896-1588 or visit the website at www.locksoflove.org.

Council Approves Request Naming Concourse In Paul Harold's Memory

The city council Monday night approved Mayor Phelan's request to name the new downtown concourse bridge in honor of the late Paul D. Harold.

Phelan's home rule petition was unanimously supported by the council and seeks to name the concourse "The Paul D. Harold Memorial Bridge," after the former city council president, state senator and Norfolk County registrar of deeds who died last year at the age of 53.

PAUL HAROLD

Phelan said the home rule petition now moves to the state Legislature for approval. The bridge is owned, controlled and maintained by the state, so the naming of it requires legislative approval.

Brewer's Corner Revitalization Meeting Topic

Ward 4 Councillor Bryan Connolly scheduled a meeting to address the future revitalization of the Brewer's Corner neighborhood on Wednesday, March 19 at 6:30 p.m. at Manion's Family Restaurant, 378 Granite St.

Connolly said two new businesses which opened in the area, Manion's and Foreign Auto Parts, a wholesale auto parts distributor which moved from Wollaston last fall, have been very successful thus far.

He is seeking neighborhood input on future plans for Brewer's Corner.

Quincy College changed our lives.

The next time you might meet these students you may not remember them. In fact, we hope you never have to meet them unexpectedly.

They're all students in the Surgical Technology Certificate Program at Quincy College.

They're also all from Quincy.

Quincy College's Surg. Tech. program trains and has clinical placements throughout the state. That's right, our Surg. Tech. students are in the operating rooms of the finest hospitals in the state.

When they graduate, they are in demand. Jobs pay well, and they begin careers that promise success for them and for their loved ones. It all begins in Quincy.

At work there's a pretty good chance that they will be standing right by some of our nursing school graduates, and your surgeon. And at times like that you're not likely to hear their personal stories or learn how Quincy College changed their lives.

Death Separates Friends Who Shared Everything

Paul O'Grady and Robert Herendeen were inseparable, sharing a common life style.

They attended Oktoberfest in Germany together last fall.

They rode their Harley Davidson motorcycles around New England together.

They were on their way to sharing a job; O'Grady was a Quincy firefighter, Herendeen had taken the test.

They even shared a common ancestor as distant cousins.

Last Friday they shared a ride in O'Grady's Mercedes convertible when it went out of control on Fenno Street and crashed, killing Herendeen and leaving O'Grady in critical condition at Boston Medical Center.

O'Grady, 35, a firefighter for nine years, was thrown from the car when it struck a boulder and a tree and overturned at 11:30 p.m. on Fenno Street near Andrews Road.

Herendeen, 34, who was employed as an in-house pipefitter at Gillette Company in South Boston, was extracted from the car by the jaws of life but he died shortly after at the Boston Medical Center.

Police Officer Jim Flaherty said speed was probably a factor in the single car accident. The speed limit on that section of Fenno Street is 30 miles an hour.

Herendeen graduated from Braintree High School in 1987 and spent two years in the Marine Corps, later serving a tour of duty as a recalled reservist in Desert Shield and Desert Storm.

Design Tips To Revitalize Your Home

(NU) – Are you bored with your home?

If so, that's understandable. After looking at the same furniture, the same walls and the same décor for years, who wouldn't want a change?

If you're not ready to buy a new house, consider the next best thing – sprucing up the one you have. By renovating and redecorating, you can create a more livable space now and help increase your home's value for when it's time to sell.

There are many decisions to be made when taking on a remodeling or redecorating project. If you're on a budget, don't fret. Small changes can do wonders for your home's appearance. Here are some cost-conscious tips for renovating and decorating your home with resale in mind from Robin Baron, a successful interior designer and chief executive officer of Robin Baron Home Inc., a home furnishings and interior design company:

• Work with what you already have. Often, giving an existing cabinet a new look or reaccessorizing a room is less expensive than re-doing it.

• Stay Neutral. For resale purposes, play it safe by choosing timeless colors and designs that appeal to many tastes. Stay away from unusual color combinations and trendy decorating schemes that could become dated in a year or two. Keeping designs simple will help lower your costs, too.

• Choose products carefully. Are there less expensive alternatives that will give you the same look for less money? Combine a few expensive pieces with lower priced items to give the room a more upscale look.

• Get an interior designer's opinion. If you're planning to buy new furniture and accessories but lack a designer's eye for putting it all together, get advice from a professional. Thank you can't afford one? You can. When you buy home furnishings and accessories from Robin Baron home, the company's design professionals provide their interior design services – including planning, coordinating and color matching – at no cost.

• Transform your home with paint. You'll be amazed at the difference a new color can make. Painting is one of the least expensive ways to give any room in your house a new look.

• Create space. If costly additions to your home are not featured right now, create an illusion of space. Clutter can make your home appear smaller, so rid your home of clutter. Make creative use of the space you have and add light to give the home an airy feel.

Protect Your Home Electronics From Lightning

Take a moment to calculate the value of all your home electronic gear — televisions, DVDs or VCRs, computers, stereos, game boxes, printers, fax machines, telephones, security systems and other equipment typically found in homes today — and you'll quickly realize the potential damage a lightning strike could do. And it only takes one such strike to turn some of your prized possessions into toast.

Severe thunderstorms may occur only a few days each year in many locales, but when a storm does pass through, the number of strikes it produces can be alarming. Lightning takes more lives and causes more property damage than hurricanes or earthquakes.

And it doesn't take a direct strike to destroy thousands of dollars of electronic equipment. Because most electrical circuits and communications networks connect to the outdoors, a near-miss that hits a tree or other object outside a home can still wreak havoc on equipment installed inside. To minimize the risk, every home should be shielded by some level of lightning protection.

Although much about lightning remains a mystery, the technology behind lightning-protection systems has advanced considerably. These systems are routinely installed in commercial and industrial buildings, and their effectiveness is well documented by organizations such as the Lightning Protection Institute (LPI), a nationwide nonprofit organization.

Lightning protection systems do not attract lightning to structures, nor do they repel it. Rather, these systems intercept the lightning and channel the energy onto a low-resistance path. This safely discharges, or "grounds," the electrical current to the earth.

Computer and electronic stores sell surge suppressors that offer protection from sudden electrical overloads, commonly referred to as voltage surges or spikes. They may be installed in your load center where the electricity enters the home, or they may be plug-in units at the point of use. These latter units should not be confused with true lightning arrestors, however.

A certified lightning protection system for a home may cost anywhere from $1,500 to $4,500, but it provides a much higher level of protection. In lightning-prone areas, many homeowners have learned that they can't afford to be without this protection.

A certified lightning protection system is made up of four separate yet interconnected components that work together to form a multi-layered shield. This includes:

• Lightning rods or "air terminals." These metal devices are installed on the roof to intercept and divert lightning to earth before it can affect a home's electrical circuits.

• Grounding conductors. Typically of heavy-gage copper wire, conductors connect the lightning rods to a ground point and form a path to carry high-intensity electrical surges away from the home.

• Ground terminations (electrodes) such as solid copper-clad rods or rings buried outside the home. Electricity diverted to ground through these electrodes dissipates harmlessly into the earth.

• Surge suppressors. These point-of-use appliances are installed in the home's electrical system or wherever electronic equipment is used and form a last line of defense against transient electrical overloads. (Surge suppressors must be well-grounded to work properly.)

Lightning protection systems must be installed correctly and tested by a certified technician to ensure that all components perform correctly. Ground terminations, in particular, must be checked for resistance, which measures how effectively electricity will discharge into the surrounding earth. Soil and site conditions can vary and, if the electrical ground is faulty, the lightning protection system may not work at all. Conversely, a properly functioning electrical grounding system can improve the operation of electronic equipment.

Fundraiser Sunday For Lipton Cup Regatta

A fund-raiser for the Lipton Cup Regatta on July 12-13 will be held Sunday from 2 to 6 p.m. at the Adams Academy on Hancock Street

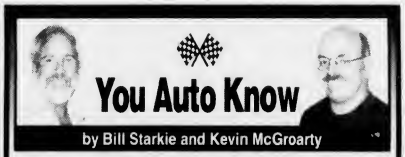
Lee Van Gemert, formerly of Quincy and a life member of the Squantum Yacht Club, will be the featured speaker. He is considered one of the nation's top sailors.

Admission is $10. Refreshments will be served.

The Lipton Cup Regatta was instituted by Sir Thomas Lipton of Lipton Tea fame, who was a world renowned sailor and philanthropist.

Lipton felt "sailing was too good for the soul and too much fun to be left to the wealthy." In the 1930s, he funded sailing regattas at various small sailing organizations and yacht clubs, giving each a beautiful trophy.

The Squantum Yacht Club's Lipton Cup, on display at the Adams Academy, is one of the few Lipton Cup trophies to survive. The Lipton Cup Regatta was revived in the 1970s and today draws boats from all over the Northeast and Canada.



For more information on the Lipton Cup or the Squantum Yacht Club, contact Louise Swanson, secretary to the Rear Commodore, at 617-773-2973.

Archies Golf Tourney April 14

The second annual Archbishop Williams Golf Tournament will be held Monday, April 14, at the Pembroke Country Club.

The event will begin with a 1:30 p.m. shotgun start. Cost is $100 for individuals and $375 for foursomes. Proceeds benefit the school.

ARE YOU IN FOR A SHOCK?

One misconception surrounding shock absorbers and struts is that they function solely to ensure a more comfortable ride. In fact, the primary function of shock absorbers and struts is to help a vehicle maintain steady contact with the road. In addition, properly functioning shocks and/or struts save wear and tear on other components. For instance, tires, steering linkage, ball joints, springs, and CV joints may require premature replacement when shocks and/or struts fail to perform. A shock/strut depends on hydraulic action for resistance that controls the up-and-down motion, also known as "ride control." When this component wears and a leak develops, an under-vehicle inspection will disclose an oily deposit on the tubular part of the component.

Even if your car is leased it still may require shock and strut servicing. Our customers continue to tell us they find our ASE Certified professional service staff to be superior. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is proud of that, and we want you to know we will continue to work toward improving our record. We are located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. We are also your local source for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles

HINT: Have your shocks/ struts inspected at least every 25,000 miles.

Fundraiser For Babe Ruth World Series April 11

The Quincy Babe Ruth World Series Committee will hold a fund-raiser Friday, April 11, to defray the costs of hosting the 2003 14-year-old Babe Ruth World Series.

The event will be held at the Quincy Sons of Italy Hall from 7 p.m. to midnight and will feature music, a buffet, raffles and a cash bar.

Tickets cost $15 per person and can be purchased at the Quincy Sons of Italy Hall. Those interested in buying tickets can see Marie weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. or John on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"This event is a great opportunity to bring the community together to help raise money for this wonderful event," said Dick Lombardi, president of the Quincy Babe Ruth World Series Committee. "Quincy's children will get a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to compete for a national championship and will do so in their own hometown no less."

Twelve teams will compete in the world series from Aug. 15-23 at Adams Field. Teams from eight regions throughout the country, Italy, eastern Massachusetts, Weymouth and Quincy will vie for the world series title. The Italian National Team is being sponsored by the Sons of Italy.

"We want to thank the Sons of Italy and all the other members of our community for their cooperation with the world series," Lombardi said. "In order to make this event a success, we need the broad support of the city, the business community and the public and thus far we have been thrilled with the response we have received. I believe that we are in for a great experience for the city."

Tickets for the world series will go on sale in late April or early May.

Seniors Skate In Old Timers Gold, Silver Medal Tourney Games

Quincy's over 70 hockey team, sponsored by the Egg and I restaurant and Quincy Youth Arena, recently advanced to the gold medal round of the Fleet Bank/Blue Cross-Blue Shield 2003 Old Timers Tournament at Auburn arena.

In the opening game, the Springfield Speed Limits scored first but Quincy evened the score at 1 a few minutes later with a goal by Manson Hall assisted by Ken Kelly. Midway through the third period, Hall netted the game-winner with his brother, Dan Hall, and Ted Rouillard assisting.

After Springfield pulled its goalie, Mike Marlic stole the puck from a Springfield player with 11 seconds remaining and passed to Don Hernberg to seal the game. Goalie Bill Brady turned in an outstanding effort.

In the second game the following day, Quincy cruised to an 8-0 win over the Auburn Rusty Blades.

In the first period, Manson Hall struck first with assists from Dan Hall and captain Fred Cashman. A few minutes later, Dave Egan made it 2-0 with the help of 84-year-old John Chambers and Red Hernberg.

In the middle frame, goalie Ken O'Connell stoned an Auburn breakaway early on. Dan Hall extended the lead to 3-0 when he took a pass from Manson Hall and beat the goalie top right corner.

Egan, assisted by Rouillard and Cashman, snapped a shot past the goalie 5-hole and Dan Hall added a goal just before the period expired for a 5-0 advantage. Manson Hall and Rouillard had assists.

In the third period, Bill Bailey backchecked to help out defensemen Bibby Lewis and Ken Kelly. Coach Billy Parsley made quick line changes and the new line of Dan Hall and Cashman got the puck to Manson who scored.

With the game winding down, Lewis poked the puck under the goalie on a rebound shot by Hernberg and Rouillard added the eighth and final goal.

In the over 60 division, Quincy, sponsored by Hamlin Cabinets, advanced to the silver medal round.

Boston Moby Dicks blanked Quincy in the first game and the Central Mass. Crushers edged Quincy, 2-1, in a hotly contested second game.

Dick McCabe evened the score at 1 with a goal assisted by captain Dick Lyons. The Crushers, though, were able to get the puck by goalie Paul Laubenstien, who played a strong game, in the waning moments for the win.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Oral Health And Nutrition

(NAPS) — It may come as a surprise to some but an apple a day can keep the dentist away — if you munch quickly.

Researchers at Tufts University School of Dental Medicine in Boston say how you eat, rather than what you eat, affects oral health most.

For example, slowly sipping soda or juice all day could be worse than eating a candy bar because the longer sugar stays in contact with teeth, the greater the risk of dental caries.

Tooth decay starts when bacteria, which live in plaque on teeth, feed off the carbohydrates in food and produce acid in the mouth, which erodes the tooth enamel and causes dental caries.

Foods high in carbohydrates (baked goods and candy) or acid (soda, citrus fruits and fruit juices) present the greatest risk to dental health. There are a number of low-acid nutrients that reduce the risk of a particular food; such as protein, fat, phosphorous and calcium.

These low-acid nutrients prevent acid build-up in the mouth, resulting in less tooth decay. Foods such as milk and nuts are "low-risk" foods, not only because they are low in sugar and high in protein, calcium and phosphorous, but because of their non-sticky texture.

"Munch on snacks that are less tooth decay-promoting like low-fat cheeses, raw vegetables, crunchy fruits, popcorn, nuts and artificially sweetened beverages," suggests Carole A. Palmer, Ed.D., R.D., associate professor and co-chair of Nutrition and Preventive Dentistry at Tufts University School of Dental Medicine.

Tufts Dental School experts offer this advice:

• Cut down on snacks. Although eating a very sugary meal is not considered healthful, eating sugary foods rapidly and infrequently may curtail the production of caries. "Keep (carbohydrate-dense) foods in contact with your teeth as little as possible," advises Palmer.

Tufts experts recommend eating as few snacks between meals as possible, and if you must drink sugar-laden beverages, do so with meals — rather than sipping them slowly throughout the day.

• Replace sugary foods with fruits, vegetables and high-protein snacks. Foods high in sugar, such as cakes, cookies and candy, tend to promote tooth decay more than those that are not only lower in sugar, as are fruits and vegetables, but are also high in water and fiber, which lessen the effects of sugar on teeth. Furthermore, unlike carbohydrates, foods high in protein and fat (milk, nuts, cheese) do not cause tooth decay.

• Avoid sticky food. Eating sticky foods puts teeth at a greater risk for dental caries because the food is in contact with the teeth longer. Although grapes and raisins are both healthful fruits, raisins are more harmful to teeth than their fresh fruit counterparts because they are stickier and can sneak into tooth crevices.

• Enjoy high-protein appetizers. The experts suggest eating particular foods before or after a meal or snack could minimize the effect carbohydrates have on acid production in the mouth. For example, eating low-fat cheese (a high protein and calcium food) before sweets limits this chemical change.

Although these dental health findings do not change whether "an apple a day keeps the doctor away," they should affect the way people eat apples.

Three Tips For Healthy Lifestyle

(NU) - Obesity affects nearly one-third of the American population -- about 60 million people -- according to the American Obesity Association, and the number of overweight and obese people has been increasing since 1960.

The good news is some simple lifestyle changes can make a big difference in the way you look and feel. Here are some tips to help you lose weight:

• Avoid fad diets. Ads describing a miraculous way to lose weight quickly are posted everywhere — television, magazines, billboards, flyers posted on your car windshield and pop-ups on the Internet — but that doesn't mean they are true.

• Assess your behavior and your environment. The amount of food you eat and your physical habits are important factors in controlling weight. Today's society — dominated by speed and convenience — provides high-calorie, fattening foods and ways to avoid being active via escalators, elevators and remote controls.

• Adopt healthy habits. Work in at least 30 minutes of moderate activity most days of the week. Consult your physician or health advisor and follow a nutritious, modified eating plan, such as with the Medifast weight management program. The program helps you lose the weight, keep it off and change your lifestyle through its variety of meal replacement products. Meals include shakes, bars, soups, crackers, oatmeal and even hot cocoa. They are heart-healthy and contain soy protein.

Tips To Ease Weary Feet

(NU) - Considering the average person walks the equivalent of four times the circumference of the Earth, it's best not to neglect the health of your feet. Giving dry, callused feet some tender loving care is important year-round. Follow these tips for keeping your tootsies soft, healthy and happy:

• Maintain proper foot care. Keep feet clean and well groomed. Wash your feet daily and be sure to dry them thoroughly, especially between the toes. Trim toenails straight across, not across corners or the sides.

• Moisturize and exfoliate the skin on your feet daily to help prevent dryness and soften calluses. An exfoliating moisturizer like Kerasal, used to both moisturize the skin and remove dead skin cells, can help. Previously available only through podiatrists, this product is now available at retail stores.

• Give careful thought to winter footwear and choose footwear sensibly. Make sure socks and shoes fit properly and are made of materials that breathe -- like cotton, wool and leather.

• Evaluate your footwear each season -- feet can change sizes in both length and width. It is not unusual for last season's shoes to become too small. Replace worn out shoes as soon as possible. Do your shoe shopping later in the day when feet tend to swell the most.

For more information about foot care, log on to www.kerasal.com.

GUMMING UP THE WORKS

According to the American Academy of Periodontology, up to 30% of the U.S. population may be genetically susceptible to gum disease. Despite aggressive oral care habits, people who are genetically predisposed may be up to six times more likely to develop some form of gum disease. This points out the importance of regular check-ups and early treatment. During a periodontal exam, gums are checked for bleeding, swelling, and firmness, as well as movement and sensitivity. The bite is also assessed and full-mouth x-rays can help detect any breakdown of bone surrounding the teeth. Periodontal probing determines how severe disease is by measuring the depth of pockets around the teeth. The deeper the pocket, the more severe the disease.

Preventive dentistry is our goal for every patient. It involves daily care, good nutrition, and periodic check-ups and cleaning that maintain good dental health already achieved. Oral health is a long-term commitment we share with each patient. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we take pride in our ability to provide quality dental care in a relaxed and comfortable environment. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. In healthy gums, the pockets surrounding teeth measure less than 3 millimeters (about one-eighth of an inch).

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The Lion's social life whirls at centrifugal speed this week as you go from function to function. Things slow by week's end, giving you a chance to catch up on your chores.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Don't let your stand on an issue cause a rift with a colleague. Insist on both of you taking time to reassess your positions while there's still room for compromise.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) An opportunity you'd been hoping for finally opens up. But read the fine print before you make a commitment, especially where a time factor might be involved.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your need to know what's going on behind the scenes leads you to make some bold moves. Be prepared with a full explanation of your actions if necessary.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A lot of details need tending to during the early part of the week. The pressure eases by the 20th, allowing you to get back to your major undertaking.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A friend asks you to act on his or her behalf in a dispute. Be careful. You might not have all the facts you need in order to make a fair assessment of the situation.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A new development might require you to cancel some of your plans. But you adapt easily, and by week's end, you could receive welcome "cheering-up" news.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your recent workplace accomplishments boost your self-confidence just as you're about to consider a potentially rewarding, although possibly risky, career move.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your love of the arts is equaled only by your strong sense of justice. People can depend on you to always try to do what's right.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Many wise people have written about one of the most precious of human faculties — Memory. Pleasant memories must be arranged in advance... Memory is the diary that we all must carry about with us... Memory was given to mortals so that they might have roses in December... A bad memory is not one that forgets, but one that remembers the wrong things...

We are all ruled by our memories. It is also said that we can choose which of our memories are to rule us. These memories can be painful or they can bring joy.

Some people have long memories. They cherish grudges for a whole lifetime. They remember unwise and hateful words spoken in anger, or thoughtless acts which hurt. Others, too, have long memories. But these memories are joyful and pleasant. The highlights of all the years are there... favors done in an hour of need. Support given when the burden of life seemed unbearable. Heart-warming reminiscences of friends known, Tender thoughts of family, A recalling of work well done.

Let us remember that memory is a God-given gift. The capacity to forget is also a gift when the things that need to be forgotten are bitter to the taste and incapable of being remedied. Let us make remembrances a blessing instead of a burden...

Robert T. Herendeen, 34

Pipefitter, Member Of Local 537

A funeral Mass for Robert T. Herendeen, 34, of Quincy, a pipefitter and member of Local 537, will be celebrated today (Thursday) at 9 a.m. in Saint Thomas More Church, corner of Hawthorne Road and Elm Street, Braintree.

Mr. Herendeen died March 15 at Boston Medical Center following a car accident in Quincy.

Born in Boston, he attended Braintree schools and graduated from Braintree High School in 1987. He had lived in Braintree before moving to Quincy six years ago.

After graduating high school, Mr. Herendeen served in the U.S. Marine Corps, and then served in the Marine Corps Reserves where he was recalled to active duty and served in the Desert Shield and Desert Storm campaigns.

He later served his pipefitter apprentice training for five years and worked the past several years as a pipefitter for Local 537.

He was employed by the contracting company, Soloco Corporation and most recently was an in-house pipefitter at the Gillette Company in South Boston.

He enjoyed traveling and was a motorcycle enthusiast.

Son of the late Robert T. and Elaine F. (Moynihan) Herendeen, he is survived by three sisters, Susan E. Daley of Marshfield, Laura K. Twomey of Mashpee and Lynda H. LaVangie of Whitman; and many aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews, cousins and friends.

Burial will be in Braintree Cemetery.

Visiting hours were Wednesday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. at the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to Toys for Tots, 2nd Marine Division, P.O. Box 749, Quincy, MA 02269.

Joseph G. Thompson, 96

Retired Engineering Supervisor

A memorial service for Joseph G. Thompson, 96, of Quincy, a retired engineering supervisor, will be held Sunday at 1 p.m. at Russell Funeral Home, 165 Belmont St., Brockton.

He died March 11 at Crestview Nursing Home in Quincy after a long illness.

Mr. Thompson worked at Sturtevant Mill Engineering Co. in Dorchester for more than 40 years.

He served on the USS Holly during World War II.

He was born in Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, and settled in Boston as a young man. He lived in Williston, Fla., for more than 30 years before moving to Quincy three years ago.

He was a member of Williston Golf and Country Club in Florida.

He is survived by his wife, Anne A. (Scherban) Thompson; a daughter, Roberta E. Gelsi of Hanover; a son, James W. Leehan of Colorado; five grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

He was the former husband of Marjorie (Clements) Thompson and father of the late Bernadette Anne Burgess.

Donations may be made to the Salvation Army, 6 Baxter St., Quincy 02169.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

CITY OF QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS
Department of Public Works
William J. Phelan, Mayor
Jay J. Fink, P.E., Commissioner
ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

Sealed bids for the Quincy Shore Drive Sewer and Water Main Improvements Project — Phase I for the City of Quincy, Massachusetts, will be received at the Offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169, until 10:00 a.m. prevailing time, on April 16, 2003 at which time and place said bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.

The scope of work includes replacement of approximately 660 l.f. of 8-inch sanitary sewer and 1,830 l.f. of 10-inch sanitary sewer on Quincy Shore Drive; approximately 8,680 l.f. of 8-inch sanitary sewer, 250 l.f. of 10-inch sanitary sewer, and 410 l.f. of 12-inch sanitary sewer on the adjacent side streets. Due to the poor nature of the soils in this area, approximately 2,795 l.f. of the sewer will be supported by a pile system. The scope of the work also includes replacing approximately 2,650 l.f. of 8-inch water main on Quincy Shore Drive, and abandoning the portion of the 6-inch water main on Beach Street between Quincy Shore Drive and Cummings Avenue. Water services will be transferred from the 6-inch water main to the 10-inch water main on Beach Street. The Contractor shall be given 450 calendar days to complete the project, beginning with the start date fixed on the "Notice to Proceed."

Bid Security in the form of a bid bond, cash, certified check, treasurer's or cashier's check payable to the Owner, is required in the amount of five percent of the bid, in accordance with Section 00200, INSTRUCTIONS TO BIDDERS.

The instructions to Bidders, Form of General Bid, Agreement, Plans, Specifications, Performance and Payment Bond, and other Contract Documents may be examined at the following:

Department of Public Works, Quincy, Massachusetts
Weston &Sampson Engineers, Inc., Peabody, Massachusetts
Dodge Reports, Lexington, Massachusetts

Copies may be obtained at the Office of the Commissioner of Public Works, located at 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169, from 8:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., upon payment of a fee of $50 for each set. Deposits for plans and specifications may be refunded if they are returned in a timely manner and received in good condition.

Contract Documents and plans will be mailed to prospective bidders upon request and receipt of a separate check for $25 to cover handling and mailing fees. This amount is not refundable. Both checks shall be made payable to the "City of Quincy."

The selected contractor shall furnish a performance bond and a payment bond in amount at least equal to one hundred percent (100%) of the contract price as stipulated in Section 00700 GENERAL CONDITIONS of these specifications.

Minority Business Enterprise (MBE) and Women's Business Enterprise (WBE) policies of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and the City of Quincy are applicable to this Contract and the total dollars paid to the SRF construction loan funded portion of the contract. The goal for this project is to achieve a minimum: (a) minority employee work force hour goal of ten (10) percent; (b) women employee work force hour goal of five (5) percent; (c) ten 10 percent participation of Minority-owned Business Enterprise (MBE), and (d) five (5) percent participation of Women-owned Business Enterprise (WBE). MBE and WBE participation shall be by state-certified MBEs and WBEs. The Bidder shall submit completed MBE/WBE forms (EEO-DEP-190 & EEO-DEP-191) and Vendor Information Forms (VIF) with the bid. Failure to comply with the requirements of this paragraph may be deemed to render a proposal non-responsive. No waiver of any provision of this section will be granted unless approved by the Department of Environmental Protection.

This project is funded in part by the Massachusetts Water Pollution Abatement Trust (the "Trust).

All bids for this project are subject to applicable bidding laws of Massachusetts, including General Laws Chapter 30, Section 39M as amended.

Attention of bidders is particularly called to the requirements as to conditions of employment to be observed and minimum wage rates to be paid under the contract as determined by the Department of Workforce Development under the provisions of the Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 149, Section 26-27D, inclusive, as amended.

The Bidder agrees that this bid shall be good and may not be withdrawn for a period of 60 working days, Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays excluded after the opening of bids.

Compliance with The City of Quincy's Ordinance requiring contractors working on city-supported construction projects to hire a certain percentage of Quincy residents is mandatory.

This project requires compliance with the Massachusetts Diesel Program (MDRP) by use of after-engine emission controls that are EPA certified, or their equivalent, on at least 50% of the off-road (non-registered) diesel vehicles/equipment used at the job site.

The Owner reserves the right to waive any informalities or to reject any or all bids.

INVITATION FOR BID

CITY OF QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS
Department of Public Works
William J. Phelan, Mayor
Jay J. Fink, P.E., Commissioner

INVITATION FOR BID

Sealed bids for construction of the North Quincy Lateral Sewer Improvements - Phase I for the City of Quincy, Massachusetts, will be received at the Offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169, until 10:30 AM prevailing time, on April 16, 2003 at which time and place said bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.

The scope of work includes: replacement of approximately 3,330 l.f. of 8-inch sanitary sewer on various streets; replacement of approximately 285 l.f. of 10-inch sanitary sewer; replacement of approximately 290 l.f. of 12-inch sanitary sewer; cleaning, inspection, testing, and sealing of approximately 19,100 l.f. of 8- to 12-inch VC sewer; cleaning, inspection, testing, and sealing of approximately 2,700 l.f. of 15- to 20-inch VC sewer; root treatment of 7,800 linear feet of VC sewer; spot repairing 130 l.f. of VC sewer; cutting 2 protruding services; testing 24 service connections; grouting approximately 48 service connections; and rehabilitating 400 v.f. of brick manholes.

Bid Security in the form of a bid bond, cash, certified check, treasurer's or cashier's check payable to the Owner, is required in the amount of five percent of the bid, in accordance with Section 00200, INSTRUCTIONS TO BIDDERS.

The instructions to Bidders, Form of General Bid, Agreement, Plans, Specifications, Performance and Payment Bond, and other Contract Documents may be examined at the following:

Weston & Sampson Engineers, Inc., Peabody, Massachusetts
Dodge Reports, Lexington, Massachusetts
Department of Public Works, Quincy, Massachusetts

Copies may be obtained at the Office of the Commissioner of Public Works, located at 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169, from 8:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., upon payment of a fee of $50 for each set. Deposits for plans and specifications may be refunded if they are returned in a timely manner and received in good condition.

Contract Documents and plans will be mailed to prospective bidders upon request and receipt of a separate check for $25 to cover handling and mailing fees. This amount is not refundable. Both checks shall be made payable to the "City of Quincy."

The selected contractor shall furnish a performance bond and a payment bond in amount at least equal to one hundred percent (100%) of the contract price as stipulated in Section 00700 GENERAL CONDITIONS of these specifications.

Minority Business Enterprise (MBE) and Women's Business Enterprise (WBE) policies of the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA), the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and the City of Quincy are applicable to this Contract. The goal for this project is a minimum (a) minority employee work force hour goal of ten (10) percent; (b) women employee work force goal of six point nine (6.9) percent (c) 10 percent MBE participation by state-certified MBEs and (d) 5 percent WBE participation by state-certified WBEs. The Bidder shall submit completed MBE/WBE forms with the bid. Failure to comply with the requirements of this paragraph may be deemed to render a proposal non-responsive. No waiver of any provision of this section will be granted unless approved by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority.

All bids for this project are subject to applicable bidding laws of Massachusetts, including General Laws Chapter 30, Section 39M as amended.

Attention of bidders is particularly called to the requirements as to conditions of employment to be observed and minimum wage rates to be paid under the contract as determined by the Department of Workforce Development under the provisions of the Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 149, Section 26-27D, inclusive, as amended.

The Bidder agrees that this bid shall be good and may not be withdrawn for a period of 60 working days, Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays excluded after the opening of bids.

Compliance with The City of Quincy's Ordinance requiring contractors working on city-supported construction projects to hire a certain percentage of Quincy residents is mandatory.

The Owner reserves the right to waive any informalities or to reject any or all bids.

Boat Safety Course April 12

Massachusetts Environmental Police will hold a basic boating public safety course beginning April 12.

Scheduled for three consecutive Saturdays, the course will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Maritime Center, 138 Bayview Ave., next to the Quincy Yacht Club.

The free course is designed to foster safe boat operation through increased awareness of required safety equipment, safe boating practices and legal responsibilities.

Youth, ages 12-15, who successfully complete the course will be issued a Safety Certificate allowing them to operate a motorboat without adult supervision, as required by state law. The course will also satisfy the state requirements for personal watercraft uses who are ages 16-17.

Pre-registration is required. For course information or to register, contact the Massachusetts Environmental Police Department Boat & Recreational Vehicle Safety Bureau at 617-727-8760 or 508-790-9360.

time budget for the fire department could range from $800,000 to $1.2 million for fiscal 2003. Approximately $600,000 was budgeted for overtime costs in fiscal 2003, according to the mayor's office.

O'Connell said he was forced to take Rescue 1 out of service because the department is stretched too thin and cannot adequately man all fire apparatus. He said each piece of apparatus must have three operators; anything less is unsafe for firefighters, he said.

About 23 firefighters retired last summer and only 14 have been replaced. As a result, firefighters have been using overtime to cover the shifts.

"I need men," O'Connell told the council. "That's what I need."

O'Connell said taking Rescue 1 out of service was a better alternative than shutting down an engine truck. He said response times to calls would not change and "the person on the street won't see any difference."

Rescue 1 is housed at the Quincy headquarters on Quincy Ave. and is regularly staffed with an officer and two or three firefighters.

Mayor William Phelan said O'Connell is searching for other ways to offset overtime costs.

Phelan said the chief made the right decision under the circumstances, because "we are not going to create an unsafe working environment."

But he said overtime costs in municipal fire departments have been a problem for many cities and towns.

"We are struggling with overtime in the fire department," said Phelan. "The department has to understand that there are limits in the budget and we must live within our means."

O'Connell said he would make another request for an appropriation if necessary.

Another 23 firefighters are scheduled to retire before Labor Day, O'Connell said. But the department has taken the necessary steps to hire new firefighters. They should be hired by May 1 and ready for work in July, O'Connell said. The department is making every effort to ensure that this year's situation is not repeated, he said. Applicants are being screened now, he said.

About 30 Quincy firefighters picketed outside city hall to register their opposition to the move. They held signs that read, "Your Safety is in our Numbers."

Bill Ariente, president of the Quincy Firefighters Association, made a forceful presentation to the council and compared the situation to "taking the guns out of the holsters of police, taking books out of the hands of teachers."

But Ariente was quick not to blame O'Connell for the predicament. "Over a year ago Mayor Phelan said Mayor Sheets woefully underfunded the overtime budget, and Mayor Phelan did the exact same thing after we told him time and time again. Chief O'Connell didn't make up this budget and he was dealt a terrible hand."

But Phelan said: "Before I came into office I took steps to begin the process for hiring more firefighters."

Council President Dan Raymondi said Phelan purposely failed to provide adequate funding for the overtime budget.

"The mayor purposely underfunded the budget and he did not hire firefighters in a timely manner last year. As a result, we have a piece of equipment that saves lives out of commission," said Raymondi. "We are cutting back on public safety when we need it most."

Councillor McCauley said it is important for the mayor and fire department to plan ahead to ensure there is no gap resulting from the loss of firefighters due to retirement.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin said the fire department spent $1.2 million and$1.6 million in overtime costs in fiscal 2001 and 2002, respectively.

Thomas Largey, the mayor's director of operations, said Phelan funded the overtime line item in the budget at $600,000, which has been commonplace for past administrations.

"Thankfully, the administration was able to identify $3.4 million in appropriations and the council passed it by a 7-2 vote," said Largey. "We are making the funding requests that we think are appropriate. Bearing in mind, one of our financial goals is to increase our reserves. It is interesting to note that some of these same critics who voted against the 3.4 million appropriation are the most vociferous in demanding the mayor spend it at a higher rate than the mayor deems appropriate."

Coughlin and Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley introduced an order calling for the city to adopt the National Fire Protection Association's standards for minimum staffing levels. If adopted, staffing levels for the fire department would be markedly increased. The order was placed in the council's public safety committee for further review.

ABOUT 30 FIREFIGHTERS picketed outside City Hall on Monday night to protest Chief Paul O'Connell's decision to take Rescue 1 out of service. Firefighters later entered the City Hall council chamber to hear O'Connell discuss the issue. Quincy Sun photo by Robert Noble

A Way To Show Their Pride

City Has Blue Star Banners For Families Of Those On Active Duty

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Family members with immediate family on active duty in the military can show their pride by hanging a Blue Star Banner in the window of their home.

At a ceremony Monday, Mayor William Phelan and the Quincy Veterans' Services Department recognized those serving in the war against terrorism by offering Blue Star Banners to their families.

Phelan, along with Henry "Hank" Bradley, director of Veterans Services, gave the banners to Patricia Queeney Donovan and Claire Linehan.

Donovan's son, Christopher, 21, is a Lance Corporal with the Marines and is stationed in the Persian Gulf. Linehan's son, Matthew, 26, is a Captain in the Army and is stationed in Fort Hood, Texas. A banner was also set aside for Kathy Kane, whose son, Daniel, is stationed in California with the Marines. Kane was not present because she is visiting her son, said Bradley.

Blue Star Banners were displayed in front windows during World War I and II to show a family's pride in their loved ones serving in the military. Each banner contains blue stars to signify the number of family members on active duty.

"I'm so proud of my handsome boy, he is my pride and joy," said Donovan, who will hang the banner in her front window. She has been watching TV coverage of the Iraq war since it began last week. "I'm a wreck, and I get very emotional," she said.

Donovan said her son wanted to be a Marine ever since he was a boy. He contacted her two weeks ago prior to being sent to the Persian Gulf area.

She had a message for those protesting the war: "People forget that there are so many family members who have someone serving in the military. People fought and died for this country. People need to remember that."

Bradley said the idea of giving banners brings the war close to home.

"We wanted to recognize how close to home this war really is," said Bradley. "When neighbors see these banners in someone's window it brings the military action to their neighborhood."

Bradley said the department is in the process of compiling a database of those Quincy residents currently on active duty. From this database the department will set up support group meetings for families at Quincy Medical Center.

Bradley urged residents with immediate family in the military to contact Quincy Veterans Services at 617-376-1191.

Yard Waste Collections Start April 14

The 2003 yard waste collections in Quincy will begin Monday, April 14, one week earlier than usual.

The collection will be made on the residents' regular trash day, every week from April 14 through June 28.

The drop-off facility at the Public Works yard, 55 Sea St., near the recycling drop-off center, is open to residents year 'round, Monday to Friday, from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

Proof of Quincy residency must be shown to the attendant.

Mayor William Phelan said he and DPW Commissioner Jay Fink decided to continue the curbside service despite the current fiscal crisis in an effort to maintain Quincy's high level of community service.

The curbside schedule will change during the summer to every other week from July 7 through Nov. 28.

Yard waste should be placed curbside by 6:30 a.m. on collection day and set apart from regular trash.

It should be placed in brown leaf bags, open boxes or open barrels with no lids.

Yard waste consists of grass clippings, leaves and very small twigs. Brush should be cut into 3-foot lengths and tied with a string or rope.

Yard waste materials are taken to the DPW yard where the leaves and grass are composted over a nine-month period for use on city-owned properties.

The brush is processed through a tub grinder to create a product for reuse.

For more information, contact 617-376-1957 Monday through Friday or leave a message on the 24-hour hot line 617-770-BINS and calls will be returned during business hours.

Robert Noble Recalls Uncertainty

Treatment Depends On Captor, Says WWII POW

By TOM HENSHAW

Robert Noble of Quincy knows how the American servicemen and women who are prisoners of war in Iraq must feel — well, almost.

Noble, an infantryman in Gen. George Patten's 3rd Army, was a prisoner of war of the Germans for 122 days in the tag end of World War II.

While he didn't face the same brutalities to which the prisoners in Iraq are subjected, there was still the uncertainty over what was about to happen to him.

"It depends on who captures you," said Noble, who was one of 25 prisoners taken in a German surprise attack Dec. 16, 1944.

ROBERT NOBLE

"I couldn't say we were frightened. We figured the war would be over soon. But we were concerned. We couldn't say what was going to happen to us.

"We were fortunate to be captured by the German army. We were always under army control. Some of the airmen who were shot down and caught by German civilians didn't fare so well."

The big difference between the warfare of today and yesterday, said Noble, is a matter of how fast information travels from the battlefield to the homefront.

"My family back here didn't know I was a prisoner of war until two days after I was liberated," he said. "I was listed as missing in action.

"A reporter from one of the Chicago papers came and took down our names. The Chicago paper called the Boston Post which called our families.

The Egg & I Closing, New Cafe Planned

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

After 20 years of business in Wollaston, The Egg & I restaurant will close its doors on April 1 as Debra and Marie Mignosa, daughters of the owner begin a new venture and open a cafe at 94 Washington St.

The License Board granted the request at Tuesday's meeting.

The second Egg & I was on Willard St., West Quincy. That is presently Anna's Hungarian Kitchen.

The restaurant will have a new concept in that instead of serving traditional breakfasts, it will offer coffee, rolls, and then lunch featuring soups and sandwiches. It will have four tables for 12 seats and a bar that has four stools.

Also a change is that the cafe will not be open on Sundays as was The Egg & I causing Chairman Joseph Shea to comment, "it will be like you're on vacation."

Dennis Harrington, counsel for the Mignosas said the cite of the restaurant is a former Florist Shop. The hours of operation for the 16 seat cafe will be Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on Saturdays from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Shea said that Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro "enthusiastically supports" the application.

Mignosa said it is hoped that the restuarant will open sometime in June.

LICENSE BOARD BRIEFS

•Continued a hearing regarding the request of Marina View Corps. doing business as Amelia's Restaurant at Marina Bay for the transfer of the all alcoholic common victualer and entertainment license held by Earhart's Inc.

Police Chief William Falco said he would not support the request of Antonio Ruscito as the new manager because of his lack of experience. Atty. Donald J. Orkin told the board they would submit another name for the April 8 meeting.

•Granted a beer and wine license to Melissa Ann Newton, manager of Creeds Crossing Religious Articles, 25 Beale St. to sell sacramental wine for church use only.

•Granted a request of The Corner Food Mart Corp. doing g business as the Corner Food Mart, 1060 Hancock St. for a corporation change, change of directors and Keno License. Kim Kelly Vo is manager and corporate officer.

To Handle Terrorism Threats, Disasters, Evacuations

Emergency Management Better Prepared

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

In the age of increased security, Emergency Management Director Tom Gorman said the department is making great strides in improving services for residents.

Gorman appeared before the city council's public safety committee Monday night and presented a progress report on the state of the Emergency Management Agency. Since assuming the position of director in September 2002, Gorman said the agency is better prepared to deal with emergency situations, such as threats of terrorism, man-made disasters and evacuations.

To date, the agency has secured nearly $100,000 in grants to strengthen its capabilities.

"Since Sept. 11, Emergency Management has become a much more important department," Gorman said. "As threats continue, it will become a major department in the city – maybe not today or tomorrow, but someday."

Gorman said he has been working with city departments to coordinate services and improve communication among the agencies.

City officials and employees are becoming better educated by taking classes on such topics as terrorism and bio-chemical threats.

THOMAS GORMAN

Although he doesn't have a big budget, Gorman said he has been able to secure new equipment and supplies by securing various state and federal grants. The department consists of Gorman and his assistant, Mary Phelan.

Gorman works with the Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency (MEMA) and Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to secure grants and funding for services and equipment.

He has worked with Health Commissioner Drew Scheele to inspect and improve the condition of the city's four existing shelters at Quincy High, North Quincy High, Squantum and Athern Hough.

A $31,000 equipment grant has allowed the city to purchase two, 16-foot trailers to be used as portable shelters throughout the city.

He said the trailers will allow the city to set up a shelter in any location.

"If there is an event in West Quincy or North Quincy, we can move these shelters there," said Gorman. The roaming trailers will be stocked with food, cots, blankets and other equipment needed to operate a shelter.

With the help of state grants, the agency has purchased survival suits, medical kits and power generators, he said.

Gorman said he is seeking volunteers to aid the agency, especially regarding the operation of shelters. He said soon the Red Cross would be offering classes on shelter management to volunteers.

"Volunteers are very necessary," said Gorman. "It is important to keep interest up in volunteerism."

In addition, he said he is working with local businesses to help develop or improve emergency evacuation plans.

The city is taking part in a study plan to control flooding and tidal surges in the south shore area, Gorman said. City officials met with the Metropolitan Area Planning Council and MEMA last month to begin mapping shoreline areas to improve flood control. The 18-month study will allow the city to identify possible flooding problems in the case of tidal surges and heavy rain. Computer models will predict problem areas based on circumstances, he said.

"The federal government has told cities and towns they need to address their flooding concerns because they do not want to continue to provide disaster relief funds for the same problems," said Gorman. "They want us to address our own problems and protect our property."

DPW officials and city engineers will be working with state and federal agencies to map out the city from the air, said Gorman.

Committee members praised Gorman for his efforts.

"In a short period of time, you have put a lot of things in order," said Committee Chairman Greg Hanley. "Someone should pin some sort of medal on your chest."

"It seems like we are on top of our game here," said Ward 4 Councillor Bryan Connolly.

Although not members of the committee, Council President Dan Raymondi and Councillors Frank McCauley and John Keenan attended the meeting.

Raymondi said he received numerous complaints from senior citizens who were unable to shovel out after the President's Day snowstorm. In the past, he said the Emergency Management Agency provided volunteers to assist seniors in shoveling out. That practice has ended, he said.

Raymondi also pressed Gorman on purchasing more heavy -duty pumps to pro

Local Emergency Planning Committee Established

The Emergency Management Agency has developed a Local Emergency Planning Committee entrusted with addressing emergency-related concerns in the city. The committee members are: Rep. Stephen Tobin, City Clerk Joseph Shea, Treasurer Jim Chiccino, Ron Donovan, Police Captains Robert Crowley and Jim McNeil, Fallon Ambulance representative Matthew Higgins, Fire Lt. James Kennedy, Fire Capt. John Cummings, Health Commissioner Drew Scheele, Quincy Medical Center representatives Ed Browne and Steve McElroy, MBTA Supt. Frederick Jones, WJDA media represenative Joe Catalano, Curry Hardware owner Rober Curry, Twin Rivers Technologies Director Mike Glinski, DPW Commissioner Jay Fink, Quincy Public Schools Director of Security and Transportation Ken McPhee, Emergency Management Director Tom Gorman, Dennis Barry, and Sprague Energy Corp. representatives Rob Marks and Steve Cipullo.

Gorman said Public Safety Committee Chairman Greg Hanley would be added to the list as a representative from the city council.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On March 24, 1603, Queen Elizabeth I of England dies after 44 years of rule, and King James VI of Scotland ascends to the throne, uniting England and Scotland under a single British monarch. The long reign of Elizabeth coincided with the flowering of the English Renaissance.

• On March 27, 1912, in Washington, D.C., the wives of President William Taft and the Japanese ambassador plant two Yoshina cherry trees on the Potomac River near the Jefferson Memorial. The event celebrated a gift by the Japanese government of 3,020 cherry trees to the United States. After World War II, cuttings from the cherry trees were sent back to Japan to restore the Tokyo collection that was decimated by American bombing attacks during the war.

• On March 26, 1953, American medical researcher Dr. Jonas Salk announces on a national radio show that he has successfully tested a vaccine against poliomyelitis, the virus that causes the crippling disease of polio.

• On March 29, 1973, two months after the signing of the Vietnam peace agreement, the last U.S. combat troops leave South Vietnam as Hanoi frees the remaining American prisoners of war held in North Vietnam.

• On March 28, 1979, at 4 a.m., the worst accident in the history of the U.S. nuclear power industry begins when a pressure valve in the Unit-2 reactor at Three Mile Island fails to close. In the more than two decades since the accident, not a single new nuclear power plant has been ordered in the United States.

• On March 30, 1981, President Ronald Reagan is shot in the chest outside a Washington, D.C., hotel by John Hinckley Jr., a deranged drifter.

• On March 25, 1994, at the end of a largely unsuccessful 15-month mission, the last U.S. troops depart Somalia, leaving 20,000 U.N. troops behind to keep the peace and facilitate "nation building" in the divided country.

Two Big Questions -- Maybe Three

Will Dan Raymondi — or someone else — challenge Bill Phelan for the keys to the mayor's office?

Or, will Phelan get a free ride to a second term?

Those are the two big political questions as Election Year 2003 bumps into the first robins of spring and crocuses peeping up.

Time is moving.

Raymondi isn't saying what he plans to do. And for that matter, Phelan hasn't officially said he will seek re-election but is expected to.

PHELAN

RAYMONDI

The pair reportedly have pretty much matching war chests to finance a mayoral battle. In the six-figures. A lot more than Raymondi needs to seek another term as Ward 2 councillor.

BURGIN

SHEETS

Only three incumbent mayors in the city's 114-year history have run for re-election without opposition: Tom Burgin in 1940, Frank McCauley in 1983 and James Sheets, not once but three times, in 1991, 1993 and 1997.

Sheets, who was elected to six two-year terms, is Quincy's mayoral longevity champ with 12 years under the city's Plan A charter.

Amelio Della Chiesa also served 12 years but only eight were under Plan A and four as a Plan E mayor when a city manager actually ran the city. Under Plan E, the mayor was elected by council colleagues, presided over council meetings and was a ceremonial head.

DELLA CHIESA

Phelan was a surprise mayoral candidate in 2001, coming out of virtual political no-where (second year on the school committee) to shock the political scene with a 17-vote upset win over Sheets in his bid for a seventh term.

Which leads to a third question:

Remove Christmas Decorations From Cemeteries

The Cemetery Board of Managers requests that Christmas decorations, wreaths and other items be removed from all lots in the city's cemeteries by or before March 30.

Board Chairman Richard T. Sweeney Jr. said the items, if not removed, could interfere with the proper maintenance of the cemeteries.

Faxon Park Cleanup Set For Saturday

The Quincy Park Department's Environmental Treasures Program is organizing a cleanup of Faxon Park Saturday, March 29, at 10 a.m.

Volunteers are needed to help pick up trash and clear the trails.

Meet at the parking lot at the top of the park. Bring pruners and gloves if you have them. The Park Department will provide trash bags.

If the weather permits, volunteers are invited to bring a lunch and celebrate the spring and the work effort with the first picnic of the year.

Call 617-376-1254 for more information.

Could there be another surprise candidate waiting in the wings this year to challenge Phelan if Raymondi doesn't? There's some speculation there could be.

Only one mayor in recent years has been deprived of a second term. That was Joseph LaRaia who was defeated by Arthur Tobin in 1977.

LaRAIA

TOBIN

Tobin, who challenged an incumbent mayor as city council president, is now Phelan's father-in-law.

And for political coincidence — or irony — Phelan as the incumbent mayor may have a city council president trying to derail him from a second term.

There should be answers to those questions (will Raymondi run, will there be a free ride, or a surprise candidate) fairly soon.

The clock is ticking toward D-Day (Decision Day) for anyone thinking of running for mayor.

Stay tuned.

LEO KELLY has been saying he is definitely running for his old Ward 1 City Council seat.

KELLY

And, some political observers have been wondering if he really means it. Well, he means it.

Kelly has a campaign kickoff fundraiser set for Wednesday, April 23, at the Bryan VFW Post on Broad Street.

Now chairman of the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission, he was elected to six terms in Ward 1 and served two terms as city council president.

The Ward 1 race for the seat being vacated by current occupant Greg Hanley is shaping up as one of the hottest in this year's election.

TWO OTHER CANDIDATES for the Ward 1 council seat have fund-raisers coming up.

Jim Bottary has his set for Saturday, April 5, 7 to 11 p.m. at the Bryan Post.

And Sean McArdle has a Palm Sunday April 13 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. breakfast buffet at the Quincy Yacht Club, sponsored by friends.

IF YOU REMEMBER when Miltons was located in Quincy, you'll certainly remember Jack Cosseboom.

Jack is retiring after a 44-year career of wardrobing generations of customers here and at Miltons' now South Shore Plaza location.

A retirement party for Jack was scheduled for there last night (Wednesday) 7 to 9 p.m. A portion of the evening's sales will go to the Michael J. Cosseboom Memorial Scholarship Fund.

GOOD FRIEND Joe Fasci, who left Quincy some years ago to settle deep in the heart of Texas, has decided not to run for sheriff. "Mainly because," he says, "I don't look well in a cowboy hat and I am not overly fond of horses."

Joe, who lives in Granbury, recently celebrated his 76th birthday but keeps young and pretty busy helping veterans and assisting patients at hospitals.

But there's time for fun, too. Like the "Outrageous Outhouse Race, part of the annual Granbury Birthday weekend celebration. "And they say Texans have no culture," he says.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1927 postcard view of the then new Atlantic Fire Station at 311 Hancock Street across from North Quincy High School. This modern, fully equipped building was set upon pilings driven into the edge of what was known as the Montclair marshes seen in the background. This was the second Atlantic station, the old one was a wooden building with primitive fire fighting equipment located on Newbury Avenue. Because of the rapid residential growth in this part of the city at the time, the City Council, at the urging of Fire Chief Alfred Mead, had approved 10 additional firemen, two new fire engines and a new firehouse for this district. Shown here on opening day were the new Seagrave ladder truck on the left and a powerful new Seagrave pumping engine on the right, along with the men who were stationed here. In 1927 this was the third busiest station in Quincy responding to 221 alarms. Over time, unknown to anyone, the pilings holding up this building had shifted in the marsh's peat. In September, 1961, after a routine inspection, it was unexpectedly determined that the station was in danger of immediate collapse. It was swiftly abandoned and later demolished. A new station built on the same site was opened in 1963.

Maintaining An Excellent School System A High Priority

It is clear that the current economy will severely affect government services at all levels in the next fiscal year and, possibly, years to come. The Quincy Citywide Parents' Council, representing parents from across the city, has discussed the potential disaster this presents for the city and has voiced its concerns to the School Committee. There are three main issues.

1. There is a pressing need for all citizens and businesspeople of Quincy to be made aware of the importance of excellent, effective schools to the city's quality of life — raising property values, reducing crime, providing qualified workers, bringing income to the city.

2. Parents must look more closely at their children's education and realize the losses they have endured this year with increased class sizes; cuts in reading, music, health, foreign language and many special programs; and fewer library books, new texts and other supplies. Further budget cuts will be disastrous to many, many children.

Also, most programs running after school are paid for with monies from outside the budget, mainly from grants. Many dedicated teachers put in extra time to qualify for these grants. Laid-off teachers or those with many more students to teach can not write grants and many grants from government agencies will not be available if those agencies' budgets are cut also.

3. Despite the immediate budget problems, it is also very important that we not neglect the future. The long-term plan to build a new Quincy High School, renovate the current high school to a new Central Middle School and renovate Sterling Middle School has met setbacks.

Although the process is continuing, time passes and the physical conditions of Central, Sterling and the current high school deteriorate. Although we trust that the students and staff in those buildings are not in danger, we are concerned that any one of these buildings could have a problem (roof, heating) that would make it uninhabitable and, the longer the building plan is delayed, the more likely that would happen.

We do not see the value in spending a lot of time or energy preparing for a building problem that may not occur, but the threat is there, it has to be acknowledged. People in the city — parents, taxpayers and city officials — must be aware and prepared.

Before the city's departments' budgets are prepared for next year, we urge all citizens to carefully and seriously think about the importance of maintaining an excellent school system and to let our elected officials know that it deserves a high priority.

Roseann Russell, President
Quincy Citywide Parents' Council

Concerned About Proposed Wollaston Supermarket

Wollaston residents and businesses, please review carefully and be attentive to the 88 Supermarket wanting to occupy the building on Hancock Street, previously occupied by CVS.

The issues I'm concerned of are: traffic congestion, sanitation and expansion. Many of you have probably shopped at "88" in Boston's Chinatown and have experienced the traffic congestion in that business area. Imagine the congestion in the mixed residential/business area of Wollaston? It will be awful.

What about expansion plans? To me, the building now is too small for a typical size "88." Make sure about "88" plans.

When all is said and done, "88" belongs in a shopping mall or a business zone, not a mixed residential/business zone like the one it wants to occupy in Wollaston.

Burgin Decides To Leave City Political Scene

This Week
46 Years Ago

City Councillor Thomas S. Burgin announced he would not run for re-election or for mayor but that he might go for Governor's Council if Charles J. Gabriel (R-Hingham) decides to give up the seat.

The 54-year-old Burgin has served Quincy as a city councillor, state rep and mayor since 1924 when he was first elected as one of the youngest councillors in the city's history.

"Possibly, at some future time, should it be the desire of our citizens, there may be a further opportunity for added responsibilities in either our state and national governments," said Burgin.

Burgin was considered the only possibly strong candidate against Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, twice chosen by his council colleagues but who would have to face the electorate when Plan A replaces Plan E on Jan. 1.

Gabriel was reported ready to abandon his post on the governor's council to run for the Congressional seat held by Cong. Donald W. Nicholson (R-Wareham).

10 PERCENT RAISE PROPOSED

Mayor Della Chiesa announced the City Council reached agreement in closed session on a 10 percent raise for city employees, effective July 3, with no raise more than $500.

The mayor said the increase for all but teachers, engineers and some city hospital workers, would bring the 1957 tax rate up to a little under $66 compared to $66.60 for the previous year.

Patrolman William H. O'Connell, chairman of the wage increase committee, said the city policemen were dissatisfied with the proposed 10 percent hike and "some of the fellows are looking around now."

MSGR. MORAN HONORED

Rt. Rev. Msgr. Stephen F. Moran, pastor of St. John's Church, was given a surprise "This Is Your Life" testimonial, attended by former Gov. Paul A. Dever, Boston College football coach Mike Holovak and Mrs. James Michael Curley.

Orienteering Program At Faxon Park Sunday

The Quincy Park Department's Environmental Treasures Program will host a free orienteering program Sunday, March 30, from 1 to 3 p.m. at Faxon Park.

The New England Orienteering Club will provide an orienteering demonstration for people of all ages, including a string course that has been developed for children as young as three years.

Families and individuals can gather at any time between 1 and 3 p.m. in the parking lot at the pavilion at the top of Faxon Park to receive instructions and a free map.

They can follow the map at their own pace to markers (called controls) where there will be a hole punch for them to stamp their papers to show they have found the control. Small children can get stickers at the controls.

The snow, rain or ice date in Sunday, April 5 from 1 to 3 p.m. Participants can call 617-472-0799 on the day of the event for a recorded announcement to determine if the program has been rescheduled.

Toastmasters' Contest April 3 At City Hall

Quincy Teen Mothers Program 25th Anniversary Gala Tonight

The Quincy Teen Mothers program will celebrate its 25th anniversary tonight (Thursday) and use the occasion to thank everyone who has made the program a success.

The 2003 Benefit Gala will be held at the Neighborhood Club. The reception begins at 6 p.m., followed by dinner at 7 p.m. Individual tickets may be purchased at $50 each or purchase a table of 10 for $450.

"This is to say 'thank you' to all the contributors and supporters who helped make this program so successful for the past 25 years," said Janice Walsh, director of the program.

Since its inception the program has helped more than 250 young mothers earn their high school diploma or GED.

Quincy Teen Mothers receives funding from the school department, state grants and privation donations.

"This is a unique program in that it is a real school-community partnership," said Walsh, who has been involved with the program for 18 years. "We could not have lasted for so many years without the support of all these groups."

Walsh said Quincy Teen Mothers was one of the first programs of its kind in the state, and it remains one of the most successful.

"Other programs have come along and modeled themselves after our program," she said. "Unfortunately, some of them don't have the support we have here in Quincy."

QUINCY TEEN MOTHERS Coordinator Janice L. Walsh was recently presented with a special commendation by Council President Day Raymondi in recognition of the organization's 25th anniversary. The program assists teenage mothers in their quest to graduate from high school or receive a GED.

Walsh noted that two employees - teacher Kate Cryan and nursery staffer Marie Will - have been with the program since it began 25 years ago.

Quincy Teen Mothers is part of Quincy High School and conducts classes there or in the Bethany Congregational Church at Coddington St. Walsh said 10 students are expected to graduate this year.

Steve Moynihan, president of the advisory board for the Quincy Teen Mothers Program, said his involvement has been a rewarding experience.

"It is such a joy to see these young women get their lives back on track," said Moynihan, who was the program's first treasurer.

Dr. Lawrence Creedon, former Superintendent of Schools, said the current staff is doing an excellent job.

"Graduates of the program have moved on in their lives in many positive directions," he wrote in a letter to Moynihan. "In itself this is a demonstration as to the wisdom of the program." Creedon is a past president of the program.

Moynihan said the program will hold its annual Boston Harbor cruise in June and a golf tournament in September.

Extension Granted For Squantum Gardens Financing

Mayor: Naval Terrace Residents Will Not Be Displaced

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Mayor William Phelan has received assurances from the federal government that the residents of 48 apartment units at the Naval Terrace in Squantum will not be displaced, even if the property owner defaults on its financing responsibility to the Squantum Gardens project.

Elder Housing Corporation, a non-profit organization that wants to build 223 apartment units on the East Squantum St. site, also received a June 30th extension on its deadline for submitting plans to finance the project, according to Phelan.

"The administration remains hopeful that Elder Housing Corporation will be able to perfect its financing package by the new deadline and stands ready to assist in every reasonable way," said Largey.

Phelan said he and U.S. Rep. William Delahunt made impassioned pleas to the federal government asking them not to displace the residents and for the deadline extension., said Largey.

"This was a combined effort, but Congressman Delahunt was a driving force behind this development," said Phelan. "We wanted to make sure those folks at the Naval Terrace were protected and Elder Housing was able to obtain an extension for proper financing."

The federal Housing and Urban Development (HUD) owned the land but deeded the property to Elder Housing in January 2001 for $1. The federal government reserved the right to take back the land if Elder Housing was not able to secure financing.

In exchange for the extension on the deadline, the city loses a "cure-all" stipulation in the project which gave the city 30 days to take control of the project should Elder Housing fail to secure proper financing, Largey said. But he said the administration is anticipating ways to aid Elder Housing Corp. if it is unable to secure proper financing by June 30.

Largey said the mayor initially expressed reservations about the project because it fell so far behind due to Elder Housing's inability to secure financing.

"Notwithstanding that initial uneasiness, over the course of the last year the administration was able to have a voice on the Elder Housing's board of directors, and the mayor has become increasingly comfortable with the likelihood of the project's success," said Largey.

He said the administration has committed itself to ensuring that the residents of Naval Terrace were not displaced under any circumstances.

Squantum Gardens currently houses duplexes that once contained Navy personnel assigned to the South Weymouth Naval Air Station.

Elder Housing Corp. plans to raze most of the buildings and replace them with one, five-story apartment building and two, three-story apartment buildings.

Naval Terrace, consisting of 24 duplexes, is located on a portion of the land. Senior citizens live in those apartments.

Largey said the city became involved because the project stands to become a large benefit to the community.

High Cost Of Prescriptions AARP Topic

The high costs of prescription medicines will be the topic at a meeting of the Quincy AARP, City of Presidents Chapter, Tuesday, April 2, at 1 p.m. in the community room at Roche Brothers on Falls Boulevard.

The speaker will be Walt Sanders, a former Channel 4 newscaster for some 37 years, who will discuss Massachusetts' unique Prescription Advantage program which faces a $10 million cut due to budgetary shortfalls.

At the meeting, the AARP will take reservations for the annual June Luncheon to be held June 4 at 12 noon in the Common Market.

Orienteering Program At Faxon Park Sunday

The Quincy Park Department's Environmental Treasures Program will host a free orienteering program Sunday, March 30, from 1 to 3 p.m. at Faxon Park.

The New England Orienteering Club will provide an orienteering demonstration for people of all ages, including a string course that has been developed for children as young as three years.

Families and individuals can gather at any time between 1 and 3 p.m. in the parking lot at the pavilion at the top of Faxon Park to receive instructions and a free map.

They can follow the map at their own pace to markers (called controls) where there will be a hole punch for them to stamp their papers to show they have found the control. Small children can get stickers at the controls.

The snow, rain or ice date in Sunday, April 5 from 1 to 3 p.m. Participants can call 617-472-0799 on the day of the event for a recorded announcement to determine if the program has been rescheduled.

Toastmasters' Contest April 3 At City Hall

The Toastmasters International and Tall Tales Speech Contest's area level contest will be held Thursday, April 3, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the second floor conference room at Quincy City Hall.

The event is free and open to the public. Light refreshments will be served. George Monat, Division 5 governor, will present the awards for the best speaker.

Quincy is host to four Toastmasters clubs, South Shore Ramblers of QNA Quincy, State Street Talkers of State Street, Quannapowitt Toastmasters and Quincy Toastmasters.

Quincy Teen Mothers Program 25th Anniversary Gala Tonight

The Quincy Teen Mothers program will celebrate its 25th anniversary tonight (Thursday) and use the occasion to thank everyone who has made the program a success.

The 2003 Benefit Gala will be held at the Neighborhood Club. The reception begins at 6 p.m., followed by dinner at 7 p.m. Individual tickets may be purchased at $50 each or purchase a table of 10 for $450.

"This is to say 'thank you' to all the contributors and supporters who helped make this program so successful for the past 25 years," said Janice Walsh, director of the program.

Since its inception the program has helped more than 250 young mothers earn their high school diploma or GED.

Quincy Teen Mothers receives funding from the school department, state grants and privation donations.

"This is a unique program in that it is a real school-community partnership," said Walsh, who has been involved with the program for 18 years. "We could not have lasted for so many years without the support of all these groups."

Walsh said Quincy Teen Mothers was one of the first programs of its kind in the state, and it remains one of the most successful.

"Other programs have come along and modeled themselves after our program," she said. "Unfortunately, some of them don't have the support we have here in Quincy."

QUINCY TEEN MOTHERS Coordinator Janice L. Walsh was recently presented with a special commendation by Council President Day Raymondi in recognition of the organization's 25th anniversary. The program assists teenage mothers in their quest to graduate from high school or receive a GED.

Walsh noted that two employees - teacher Kate Cryan and nursery staffer Marie Will - have been with the program since it began 25 years ago.

Quincy Teen Mothers is part of Quincy High School and conducts classes there or in the Bethany Congregational Church at Coddington St. Walsh said 10 students are expected to graduate this year.

Steve Moynihan, president of the advisory board for the Quincy Teen Mothers Program, said his involvement has been a rewarding experience.

"It is such a joy to see these young women get their lives back on track," said Moynihan, who was the program's first treasurer.

Dr. Lawrence Creedon, former Superintendent of Schools, said the current staff is doing an excellent job.

"Graduates of the program have moved on in their lives in many positive directions," he wrote in a letter to Moynihan. "In itself this is a demonstration as to the wisdom of the program." Creedon is a past president of the program.

Moynihan said the program will hold its annual Boston Harbor cruise in June and a golf tournament in September.

Extension Granted For Squantum Gardens Financing

Mayor: Naval Terrace Residents Will Not Be Displaced

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Mayor William Phelan has received assurances from the federal government that the residents of 48 apartment units at the Naval Terrace in Squantum will not be displaced, even if the property owner defaults on its financing responsibility to the Squantum Gardens project.

Elder Housing Corporation, a non-profit organization that wants to build 223 apartment units on the East Squantum St. site, also received a June 30th extension on its deadline for submitting plans to finance the project, according to Phelan.

"The administration remains hopeful that Elder Housing Corporation will be able to perfect its financing package by the new deadline and stands ready to assist in every reasonable way," said Largey.

Phelan said he and U.S. Rep. William Delahunt made impassioned pleas to the federal government asking them not to displace the residents and for the deadline extension., said Largey.

"This was a combined effort, but Congressman Delahunt was a driving force behind this development," said Phelan. "We wanted to make sure those folks at the Naval Terrace were protected and Elder Housing was able to obtain an extension for proper financing."

The federal Housing and Urban Development (HUD) owned the land but deeded the property to Elder Housing in January 2001 for $1. The federal government reserved the right to take back the land if Elder Housing was not able to secure financing.

In exchange for the extension on the deadline, the city loses a "cure-all" stipulation in the project which gave the city 30 days to take control of the project should Elder Housing fail to secure proper financing, Largey said. But he said the administration is anticipating ways to aid Elder Housing Corp. if it is unable to secure proper financing by June 30.

Largey said the mayor initially expressed reservations about the project because it fell so far behind due to Elder Housing's inability to secure financing.

"Notwithstanding that initial uneasiness, over the course of the last year the administration was able to have a voice on the Elder Housing's board of directors, and the mayor has become increasingly comfortable with the likelihood of the project's success," said Largey.

He said the administration has committed itself to ensuring that the residents of Naval Terrace were not displaced under any circumstances.

Squantum Gardens currently houses duplexes that once contained Navy personnel assigned to the South Weymouth Naval Air Station.

Elder Housing Corp. plans to raze most of the buildings and replace them with one, five-story apartment building and two, three-story apartment buildings.

Naval Terrace, consisting of 24 duplexes, is located on a portion of the land. Senior citizens live in those apartments.

Largey said the city became involved because the project stands to become a large benefit to the community.

High Cost Of Prescriptions AARP Topic

The high costs of prescription medicines will be the topic at a meeting of the Quincy AARP, City of Presidents Chapter, Tuesday, April 2, at 1 p.m. in the community room at Roche Brothers on Falls Boulevard.

The speaker will be Walt Sanders, a former Channel 4 newscaster for some 37 years, who will discuss Massachusetts' unique Prescription Advantage program which faces a $10 million cut due to budgetary shortfalls.

At the meeting, the AARP will take reservations for the annual June Luncheon to be held June 4 at 12 noon in the Common Market.

Treatment Depends On Captor, Says WWII POW

"Two days later my family got the prisoner of war card the Germans had us fill out and then a letter telling the family that I had been released.

"I was not physically abused although some of the men were. The worse was spending four days in a box car where you really couldn't stand or sit for long. It still bothers me in my lower legs."

The prison camp in northern Germany in which Noble was held was liberated by the British.

"We knew they were coming," he said. "They had searchlights that illuminated the clouds. It was very exciting. The German guards left us alone. For three or four days our rations were very meager. I lost 40 pounds as a prisoner."

On the morning of April 16, 1945, Noble and his fellow prisoners awoke to find that their German guards had disappeared and they saw a British tank outlined against a nearby ridge. Their days as POWs were over.

"For the next three or four days we went from black bread to white bread," said Noble. "All we had to eat were cans of bully beef. We got sick of it."

Finally, they were evacuated by a Canadian Air Force plane and flown to England where they were turned over to the U. S. Army.

One of Noble's few reminders of his days as a prisoner of the German is his membership in the American Ex-Prisoners of War. He has served two terms as state commander.

New Japanese Restaurant Approved For Downtown

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Quincy Center will now have a new Sushi styled restaurant at 1546 Hancock Sr. called Fuji II. The License Board granted BNJ, Inc. an all alcoholic common victualer and entertainment license to Peter Tse manager pending occupancy permit, and change of use..

The site is a former insurance agency.

Fuji I is located on Hancock St. in Wollaston, and according to Edward Fleming, counsel, the concept was well received but the owners including Jimmy Laing were unable to enlarge the eatery and thus sought a different location.

The 4,200 square foot restaurant will have 116 seats and feature live and recorded entertainment until 10 p.m.

Owners were told that a change of use will necessitate a meeting with the zoning board although Atty Edward Fleming explained that because the insurance agency was zoned for business, changing it to a restaurant wouldn't be a problem.

Initially the owners wanted to stay open until 2 a.m., but according to Police Chief William Falco, "it is difficult to have patrons still eating at 2 a.m. and dispensing with any alcoholic drinks they may still have."

Later after a discussion, Fleming said the owners retracted their request for a 2 a.m. closing and said they will close at 1 a.m. instead. They can ;however, come back to the board in December with a reworked layout such as at Cathay Pacific who are allowed to remain open until 2 a.m. because of a different layout with the bard and entertainment in another area of the restaurant.

The restaurant is slated to open in early June

Bernazzani School Kids Win 'Coats For Kids' Prize

Youngsters from the Bernazzani Elementary School in Quincy have won third place in eighth annual Anton's Cleaners Coats for Kids drive to collect warm winter coats for needy children, men and women.

The size of the donation is calculated on a pupil-per-donated coat ratio and not on the number of coats collected. The ratio figures were not available.

For their efforts, the Bernazzani students will receive a make-your-own-sundae party from Brigham's Ice Cream and the school will get a gift certificate to Hammett's Learning World and four Boston Bruins tickets.

The 240 elementary and middle schools that participated in the drive throughout eastern Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire collected a record number of 51,271 donated coats making this year's drive the most successful yet.

Anton's Cleaners cleaned every donated coat free of charge and passed them on to be distributed by the Salvation Army and the local Community Action Program.

"Students at schools like the Bernazzani Elementary School are an important reason why Coats for Kids has become such a popular and important program each winter," said Charles A. Anton, president of Anton's Cleaners.

Quincy College changed my life.

I never imagined any of this.

In what seemed like the blink of an eye, an accident changed my life forever. At 18 years old, I was starting from scratch. Fortunately I had a supportive family and a network of friends to help me along the way.

Whatever plans I might have had were going to have to be modified. My educational journey led me to Quincy College in 1994. There were many reasons why I selected Quincy, but I had no idea what to expect once I enrolled.

I've told the story many, many times, but it's all true. At Quincy, everyone reached out to help me, and to challenge me. They understood my point of view, but they never once cut corners or lowered expectations. When I started to slack, they pushed me.

When I graduated in 2001, I felt an enormous sense of pride and ability. That same network of friends and family was there to join me in the celebration. And, that circle of friends had grown to include faculty, staff and fellow students.

In 2002 I was fortunate to be appointed to the Quincy College Board of Governors, as an alumni member. The chance to give back to the college was an opportunity I couldn't resist.

I know that times change, and things don't always go smoothly for people. I do know that for people like me, for nearly 50 years, Quincy College has been there to help.

M/Sgt. ROBERT SWEENY

Master Sgt. Robert H. Sweeny, son of former School Committeeman Charles Sweeny, is stationed in Kuwait City in charge of a U. S. Air Force maintenance unit.

"He's been there since January," said Charles Sweeny. "He's supposed to come home in April but I doubt he will now. He's probably there for the duration.

The younger Sweeny, who is a graduate of Quincy High School and attended what was then Quincy Junior College, has been in the Air Force of some 20 years.

His unit is based at Travis Air Force Base, Calif., where his wife, Kathy, and his son, Ricky, await his return.

His father, Charles and his mother, Betty, live on Ames Street in West Quincy. The elder Sweeny is a member of the board of governors of Quincy College.

Ron Iacobucci Announces For School Committee Seat

RON IACOBUCCI

Ron Iacobucci, 47, of Adams Street announced his candidacy Wednesday for the School Committee.

Iacobucci, CEO of the South Shore and Neponset Valley Foundation, a non-profit organization that will oversee the Mini-Fenway Park project planned for Quincy, said in his announcement:

"As a parent with three children, I have a strong commitment to the success of the Quincy public school system.

"Many important issues face our school system today. An open seat in the School Committee provides an opportunity for new leadership.

"I will bring a wealth of knowledge, skills and experience acquired in both the public and private sectors as well as a record of getting things done on issues involving children and education.

"My background, together with my energy and enthusiasm will give me the ability to work with the current School Committee members to promote positive change for the children, parents, dedicated teachers and taxpayers of Quincy."

Iacobucci and his wife, Elizabeth, are parents of a daughter, Deanna, 16, a sophomore at North Quincy High School; Christopher, 4, and Matthew 2.

"My wife and I are blessed but we also have been challenged," Iacobucci said. "Our youngest child has been diagnosed as autistic, so we have a strong interest in special needs."

Iacobucci is a graduate of Boston College with a degree in communications and political science.

"As a student leader and a graduate of the Quincy public schools, I was encouraged over 30 years ago to run for the School Committee," he said.

"I didn't run at that time, but a wife and three children can change your whole perspective on what matters most. Education is now what matters most and with the help of the voters of Quincy, I will make a difference for all our children as a member of the School Committee. I will run a campaign of ideas. Ideas that will make a difference for our school system."

Iacobucci said he is planning his first fundraiser and will soon announce his campaign team.

"I have always campaigned on the importance of accessibility," he said. "It is extremely important that an elected public official be available to listen to people and address their concerns. I will continue to do that as a candidate and as a member of the School Committee."

Those interested in expressing ideas or concerns or participating in Iacobucci's campaign are invited to call 617-479-2718.

A fourth generation firefighter, O'Connell was born in Quincy and attended the Snug Harbor School, Sterling Junior High School and Quincy High School.

O'Connell resides in Stoughton with his wife, Judy, and two children, Brian and Jennifer.

At this year's event, two Quincy Vietnam veterans , Gerard Nichol, a Quincy Police officer, and Julian Terry, a retired businessman, will read the names of the deceased veterans of the Vietnam War.

Four QHS Seniors Receive Early Appointments To Mass. Maritime

Four graduating Quincy High School seniors have received early appointments to the Massachusetts Maritime Academy in Buzzard's Bay.

They are Mark Dondero, son of Hank and Joanne Dondero; Shaun Gibbons, son of Richard and Eleanor Gibbons; and Ryan and Brendan Conley, twin sons of Stephen and Deborah Conley.

Dondero, Gibbons and Ryan Conley are member of the varsity baseball team at Quincy High while the Conley twin we varsity hockey players.

It is an unusual accomplishment for four member of the same high school class to enter the academy with early appointments, which are reserved for students with high academic achievement and a singular interest in the academy.

After a week's orientation in August, the four entering freshmen will become cadets in the class of 2007.

Marshall School Offering Two $500 Scholarships

The Clifford H. Marshall Elementary School is offering scholarships to high school seniors who graduated from the Point-Webster School or Marshall School and who plan to further their education.

Applications for the Joy Hanlon Scholarship and the Point-Webster Scholarship are available in the main office of the Marshall School.

Completed applications should be submitted to: Philip Connolly, Principal, Clifford H. Marshall School, 200 Moody St., Quincy 02169.

Deadline for returning the application is April 30. The $500 scholarships will be awarded at the conclusion of the annual spring concert.

Contributions to the scholarship fund are welcomed.

Former Custom House Restaurant Sells For $800,000

Daniel J. Flynn & Co., a Quincy-based full service real estate firm, has auctioned a former restaurant property located at 125 Sea St., Quincy.

The property sold for $800,000 to two local real estate investors, Mark Raimondi and Thomas Tuffo. The site consists of a 36,463 square foot lot with an 11,568 square foot building. It was last utilized as the home of The Custom House restaurant, which closed its doors several months ago.

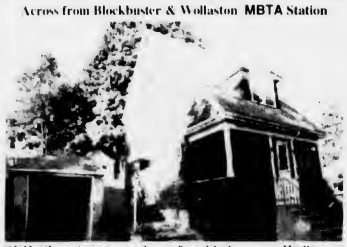
More than 50 people attended the foreclosure sale, which took place March 12 at the Sea St. site. CEO Daniel J. Flynn III served as auctioneer, encouraging spirited bidding that created fierce competition among the registrants.

Bidding started well below market value at $100,000, but under Flynn's direction, the final sale grew to eight times the original bid as registrants clamored to top the highest offer. In the end, Flynn & Co. had generated an $800,000 sale price for Horizon Bank and Trust Company, the mortgagee of the property.

In addition, back-due taxes and municipal liens in excess of $169,000 will be paid to the City of Quincy as part of the transaction.

"We've attracted a tremendous amount of interest to this foreclosure sale, which in the end paid off the mortgagee and for the City of Quincy," Flynn said.

"We are witnessing a growth pattern in the popularity of real estate auctions, a trend that is being driven by the slumping economy. People are looking for bargains. There are no shortgage of properties in foreclosure, and we expect that trend to continue," Flynn said.



The purchase and sale of the property is expected in early April. Daniel J. Flynn & Co. will be marketing the property for lease.

Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc., is a full service real estate firm specializing in commercial sales and leasing, residential real estate and real estate auctions. For more information, call 617-479-9000, or visit the company website at www.djflynn.com.

Advanced registration is required. Call 617-770-2227, ext. 31 or visit www.neighborhoodhousing.org.

Century 21 Annex Realty Office, Realtors Recognized For Outstanding Sales

Century 21 Annex Realty, Inc. in Quincy announces two local Realtors and the office have received awards for outstanding annual sales.

Realtors Mary Collins and Gus Confalone, both of Quincy, were recently recognized as "Centurion Producers." Century 21 Real Estate Corporation bestows this distinction on the basis of continuous annual sales success.

Centurion Producers are those real estate agents who earn $175,000 in adjusted gross commissions (AGC) or 60 award units within a calendar year.

"Our Centurion Producers demonstrate superior levels of customer service and industry knowledge," said Art Foley, Century 21 Annex Realty Broker/Owner and Licensed Real Estate Appraiser. "Their clients' satisfaction has led to both outstanding sales performance and this valuable industry acknowledgment."

Foy also announced the Quincy office recently received "Centurion" status from the Century 21 Real Estate Corporation. The award is given to real estate offices that achieve or exceed adjusted gross commissions of $1,500,000 or 400 award units within a calendar year.

Preventing, Controling Mold In The Home

(NU) — The growth of mold in buildings not only presents health-related problems, but also requires expensive home repairs.

Some homeowners who find mold in their home have to completely remove and replace walls and ceilings where the mold growth has been discovered.

Mold can grow when its food sources — such as wood construction materials and furniture, paper in drywall and wallpaper, and organic fibers in fabrics, carpet backings and dust — are exposed to high levels of moisture.

The National Concrete Masonry Association suggests taking these precautionary steps to avoid mold growth:

• Look for visible signs of moisture and eliminate the source.

• Regularly maintain roofs, walls and openings. Replace caulking and repaint as needed.

• Keep the maximum relative humidity levels in your home at about 40 percent during the heating season and below 60 percent during the cooling season as recommended by the National Association of Home Builders.

• Install bath and kitchen fans. Vent fans and clothes dryers to the outside of the building.

• Seal all outlets, sill plates and through-wall penetrations including doors and windows to minimize uncontrolled air infiltration.

• Inspect the roof, windows and siding after storms to identify missing shingles, damaged flashing and visible water leaks.

Lighter-weight materials used in many new homes provide more food sources for mold to grow. Alternatively, walls built with concrete masonry do not provide a food source for mold. Concrete masonry also will not decay or rot when exposed to moisture or mold.

When infected by mold, wood and drywall will most likely require complete removal while concrete masonry can be cleaned. For more information, visit www.ncma.org/cleaning.

Phelan Meets With Romney Aide On Downtown Revitalization

Mayor William Phelan met with a high-ranking official from Gov. Mitt Romney's administration Tuesday to discuss the revitalization of downtown Quincy and many other issues regarding economic development.

Phelan met with Doug Foy, the Secretary of Commonwealth Development, which oversees many other branches of state government.

"We had a extremely positive meeting and talked about many issues facing Quincy," said Phelan. "This was an introductory meeting with Mr. Foy designed to help educate him regarding the city's needs. He was genuinely impressed and enthusiastic about the possibilities for the revitalization of the Quincy Center area."

Phelan said many topics were discussed, including open space issues, the new Quincy High School, the Crown Colony onramp, and state funding of projects within the city.

Phelan said he expects Foy to conduct a tour of city soon.

"Mr. Foy has agreed to visit the city and work with us in the coming months and ensure that the revitalization of the downtown becomes a reality," said Phelan.

Quincy Captures Tree City USA Designation For 7th Year In Row

The National Arbor Day Foundation and the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Management announces the city of Quincy has been named Tree City USA for the seventh consecutive year.

The city of Quincy is being recognized for its commitment protecting the urban forest through maintenance, professional practices, education and replacement during 2002.

"We are extremely proud to be recognized for our efforts," said Mayor William Phelan. "We live in a beautiful city and our street trees are a vital aesthetic component of our city's beauty.

"We also recognize the many other benefits that trees provide and we are thankful to the national Arbor Day Foundation and the Department of Environmental Management for bestowing this honor on Quincy."

Quincy was recognized for committing resources to maintaining its urban forest, planting new trees, conducting an Arbor Day celebration and educating its residents about the importance of trees.

"It's an honor to be named Tree City USA again," said Tom Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Department. "Each year we strive to improve upon our efforts to protect our urban forest. It is our hope to maintain this designation for years to come."

Koch was appointed executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Department in 1995. Quincy has received the Tree City USA designation each year since 1996.

"I wish to thank Mayor Phelan and the Quincy City Council for their support of the forestry program," he said. "Our trees add value to our properties and our neighborhoods and thus are an investment in the future of our great city."

THOSE WHO DIED. Neil McCool (left), adjutant of the Caddy Detachment, and Alan McDonough, chaplain, read the names of the four Marines from Quincy who died with Pfc William Caddy on Iwo Jima in 1945. They were Pfc Malcolm McPherson, Pfc Joseph J. Brennan, Pvt. John W. Jackson and Pvt. John R. Koski.

'Smiles On Faces Are Extraordinary'

Special Ed Students Flourish In Learn To Skate Program

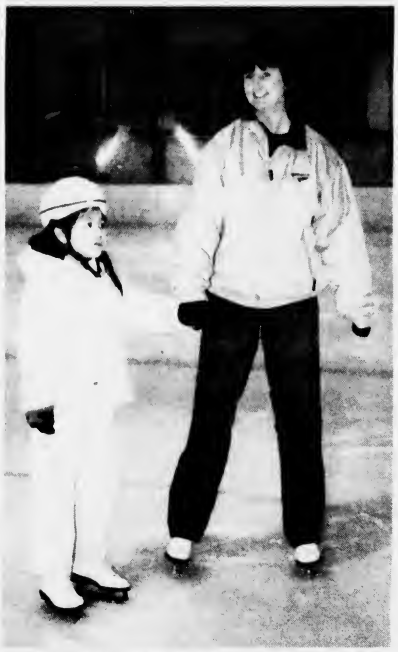
By CHRIS POISSON

After eagerly anticipating the day's arrival, their smiles illuminate when they finally step onto the sheet of ice.

Special education students in Quincy public schools absolutely love this day — when they're able to lace their skates and glide around the ice at Quincy Youth Arena.

"The smiles on their faces are extraordinary," said Judy Todd, director of special education for Quincy public schools. "It gives you the tingles to watch them and see how much they enjoy it."



Dan McHugh, an adaptive physical education teacher for Quincy public schools the past eight years, created the skating program three years ago upon meeting Quincy Youth Arena manager Michelle Stenberg, who offered to donate ice time for free. McHugh jumped at the bid.

"Michelle has a huge heart," McHugh said. "The city is so fortunate to have people like her supporting our public schools, particularly regarding the special education programs. Without their support the programs don't exist."

"This is one of the most rewarding programs I have ever had the joy of participating in," Stenberg said. "From Judy Todd on down to Dan McHugh and the likes of dedicated teachers like Nancy McPartlin, Quincy should be so proud of this program."

There's more generosity that has enabled the program to flourish.

Chris Barrett of Quincy has donated all the kids' equipment the past three years in memory of his son, Steven, a 1995 Quincy High School graduate and hockey captain who died three and a half years ago at age 22.

NORAH BLANEY, special needs tutor, holds Tipamas Phet-Iam's hand as she skates.

Barrett holds an annual golf tournament in his son's memory and part of the money raised is used to fund the equipment for the skating program.

"He skated since he was 4 years old at Quincy Youth Arena and he played for Quincy High School," Barrett said. "He had hockey in his blood. We try to do things like this to honor his memory.

"Every year we donate whatever they need and we're going to continue to do it. It's a nice way to keep his memory alive and help the needy. It's a pleasure on our part. It's nice to see the kids get out there and have fun."

"It's extraordinary," Todd said of the program. "It's something that couldn't happen without the generosity of Quincy Youth Arena, Mr. Barrett and the Kiwanis Club. It doesn't cost us a thing. It's wonderful."

The program, which begins in October and ends in late spring, is held for three different groups.

Middle school students in behavior growth and development (BGD) classes meet on Tuesdays, twice a month, and elementary students in BGD classes meet every other Thursday.

These kids don't get a free ride to the rink; they have to earn the trip with good behavior. "They earn it every time," said McPartlin, a teacher at the Clifford Marshall Elementary School. "They're pretty invested in it. They love it."

And every Wednesday morning McHugh works with about 15 autistic children, ages 3 to 6, who are apart of intensive special needs programs. "These kids are doing awesome," said McHugh, who started this session this year. "A lot of them are skating independently now."

Besides the physical work, the program also advances the kids' skills and increases their confidence in social settings.

"It's kind of neat," McHugh said. "The kids get a chance to get out of school and expose themselves to different social situations. It works on their social skills and it boosts their self-esteem. They really look forward to this.

DAN McHUGH instructs Joseph Mulkerrins on skating techniques.

"It's nice to see the kids. They're always smiling. It's uplifting and heart-warming. Some of the students' development can be so slow. And when you see them improve from week to week, it's fun and encouraging. You can tell they're having a blast, an absolute ball."

"Dan McHugh deserves a great deal of credit," Todd said. "He's amazing. Everyone wants to have him as their adaptive physical education teacher. He loves what he does and he loves the kids. When he comes into the room their faces light up. We're lucky to have him in the school system."

Mite A Travel Hockey Team Wins Lake Placid Tournament

The Quincy Youth Hockey Mite A travel team recently captured the American Cup Youth Hockey Tournament championship in Lake Placid, N.Y.

In the championship game, Alex MacIsaac netted a pair of goals to lead Quincy to a 3-2 victory over the Long Island Gulls. Sean Grady added the other goal and David O'Connell and Kevin White had assists.

Quincy opened the tourney with a 4-4 tie against the New Hampshire Junior Wildcats. Grady potted two goals and Michael Brooks and MacIsaac had one apiece. Kieran Hannon and Rudy Tryon notched assists.

Quincy topped the New York Bobcats, 3-1, in the next game. MacIsaac (assist), Grady and Cody Huntington all scored. P.J. Gorman, Chris Baker, Justin Keenan, Hannon and Brooks tallied assists.

Quincy dropped a 3-2 decision to the Long Island Gulls in the third game. Grady scored both goals and Aaron Marcel had an assist.

Beside the tournament, the team, which had fun playing where Team USA won Olympic Gold in 1980, visited Lake Placid Village and enjoyed dogsled rides and watching national ski team practices.

AMERICAN CUP CHAMPS — The Quincy Youth Hockey Mite A travel team recently took first place in the American Cup Youth Hockey Tournament. Kneeling, from left: Cody Huntington, P.J. Theresa Jones, Kristen Lacey Running In Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge

Quincy residents Theresa Jones and Kristen Lacey will be running 26.2 miles to save lives as participants in the 14th annual Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge (DFMC).

The DFMC team will join the runners taking part in the 107th Boston Marathon.

Jones and Lacey, along with DFMC teammates from 20 states, will run Massachusetts' historic marathon route from Hopkinton to Boston to raise $3 million for cancer research.

By raising a minimum of $2,000 each to be a team member, DFMC runners are funding the Claudia Adams Barr Program in Innovative Basic Cancer Research at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston.

To contribute to the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge, send checks payable to "Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge" to DFMC, 10 Brookline Place West, Brookline, MA 02445-7226 or visit www.danafarber.org/dfmc.

Ryan Grossman Wins 'Sports Dream Breakfast'

Ryan Grossman of North Quincy recently won two tickets to attend the Sports Dreams Breakfast hosted by Dunkin' Donuts and New England's professional team athletes as his sports fantasy prize in the 2003 Dunkin' Donuts "Sports Dreams" promotion.

The peel-and-win promotion was featured on more than 31 million medium, large and extra large hot beverage cups at close to 1,500 Dunkin' Donuts franchises in the Boston, Providence, Springfield and Hartford markets.

Paul Markarian On MAAC All-Rookie Hockey Team

Freshman Paul Markarian of Quincy was named to the MAAC Hockey League All-Rookie Team.

A forward at Bentley, Markarian tallied 29 points and scored a team-high 15 goals.

Markarian, a North Quincy High School graduate, netted both goals in Bentley's 2-1 win over Holy Cross in the season finale that clinched the fifth seed in the MAAC tournament.

In the opening round, he assisted on Bentley's first goal in a 2-0 victory over Sacred Heart.

WHAT'S STOPPING YOU?

The day fast approaches when technological advances will make it possible for passenger vehicles to use ceramic discs in their braking system. Until recently, a brake made from conventional brittle ceramic materials would have disintegrated under the slightest pressure. Now, manufacturers are using fiber-reinforced brake materials, which are suitable for use in brake technology. The advantages of ceramic brakes are that they are not subject to wear, are maintenance-free, and are heat-and rust-resistant. While this technology was once deemed too expensive for use in cars, a newly developed combination of carbons and silicon may make the production of ceramic brakes less expensive and more widely available. Vehicle owners will appreciate the improved efficiency and durability that ceramic disks bring.

Are your brakes squealing or chattering? It may be time for a disc replacement. Rely on our ASE Certified service technicians. To help you do this, a professional service team at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is available at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Open: Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored.

HINT: Ceramics retain their heat resistance up to 2000 degrees Celsius. Only then do they lose their dimensional stability.

Are Your Spring Sniffles The Common Cold?

(NU) — People often think warm weather means the end of the cold and flu season. But that doesn't mean you won't get a spring cold.

Colds are more common in the fall and winter because most of the 200 known viruses that cause colds are more active during that time. Additionally, colder weather keeps people indoors where viruses are believed to spread more easily from person to person in confined spaces.

Nonetheless, a spring cold is not that uncommon. In fact, certain viruses that cause colds are most active in spring, summer and early fall. To complicate matters, spring also is the time for allergy season. Thus, if you suffer from allergies, it may be hard to know whether your symptoms mean you have a cold or allergies.

Colds and allergies can have some of the same symptoms, like a runny nose, watery eyes and sneezing. However, a cold also can include a fever and aches and pains, and its symptoms emerge gradually while allergy symptoms often begin immediately upon exposure. Cold symptoms typically last about a week, but allergy symptoms can last longer, depending on how long you're exposed to the source of the allergy.

Once you've determined that what you're suffering from is a cold, it's time to gear up for the fight. After all, Americans suffer up to 1 billion colds each year, accounting for 58 million workdays and 22 million school days lost each year. While there is no cure for the cold, there are steps you can take for faster relief.

For instance, Cold-Eeze, a formula made with zinc gluconate glycine, is proven to help reduce the duration of the common cold by 42 percent, according to its manufacturer, Quigley Corp. Cold-Eeze products are available over-the-counter at independent, chain food and drug stores.

Of course, prevention is always the best remedy. To help keep colds away, wash your hands frequently throughout the day, especially before eating or touching your face or eyes. And because stress is believed to lower your resistance to infection, take steps to reduce stress in your life and practice good lifestyle habits such as eating a balanced diet and getting adequate sleep.

Finally, be mindful of touching surfaces — cold viruses can be spread by touching objects like doorknobs and telephones — and do not share food, drinks, utensils or dishes with someone who has a cold.

Cardiovascular Screenings At Manet Community Health Center

The Boston Heart Party™ will sponsor free cardiovascular screenings for women aged 35 and over Saturday, April 5 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Manet Community Health Center, 110 West Squantum St., North Quincy.

Walk-ins are welcome.

The screenings are part of the fifth annual Boston Heart Party™ which encourages women in Quincy to educate themselves about cardiovascular disease (CVD) and elevate their awareness of risk factors they can manage such as blood pressure and cholesterol.

Sponsored by Pfizer Inc. and several Boston-area healthcare organizations, The Boston Heart Party™ offers free CVD screenings and motivates women to know their numbers for blood pressure, cholesterol and glucose.

CVD is the leading cause of death for women in Massachusetts. The Boston Heart Party™ educates women in eastern Massachusetts about cardiovascular disease. Since its inception in 1999, the campaign has provided free screenings to more than 14,000 people (10,336 women and 3,872 men.)

Healthcare professionals administer the screenings, which include blood pressure measurement, cholesterol and glucose testing, and an individualized profile that examines risk factors such as smoking, high cholesterol or blood pressure, diabetes, age and family history.

In addition to Pfizer Inc., sponsors of The Boston Heart Party™ include Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates, the physicians of Primary Care, LLC and Boston Medical Center.

For more information, call 617-471-4715.

Super Fitness Celebration Saturday

Super Fitness of Quincy Center, 150 Parkingway, will host a Spring Fling Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. celebrating its 11-year anniversary.

The celebration will provide all attendees an opportunity to tour the 37,000-foot facility, meet the staff and work out with a personal trainer. In addition, all participants will receive a two-week complimentary membership.

The club went through a major expansion in 2002 and offers state of the art circuit training area, free weights, women's only section and diversified classes.

There will also be an appearance by an NFL cheerleader, who is a personal trainer at Super Fitness. There will be drawings, refreshments, prizes including a free one-year membership.

Healthy Ideas

(NAPS) - When patients use the Internet to communicate with their physicians, it creates the opportunity for physicians to provide very specific, targeted information to patients. Physicians can direct patients to an appropriate Web site or section of a site, allowing doctor and patient to literally be "on the same page." It facilitates documentation for the patient record, and provides a level of comfort for patients who can refer back to the information as often as needed. The best way to do this is through an accredited Internet health information resource, such as www.LaurusHealth.com.

Osteoporosis is on the rise. According to the National Osteoporosis Foundation, new studies project that the number of women with osteoporosis will increase to 10.5 million by 2020. This rise in prevalence is projected to have a significant impact on the number of osteoporotic fractures.

How long does it for cold and flu germs to make their way around an office? Not long. Cold and flu viruses not only thrive on staplers, doorknobs and phones, they can easily become germ transfer stations. Clorox Disinfecting Wipes make it easy to clean and disinfect in one easy step. They kill 99.9 percent of viruses that cause cold and flu, as well as bacteria commonly found in kitchens and bathrooms.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

GETTING INTO BETTER SHAPE

If you have teeth that are crooked, chipped, cracked, or even overlapping one another, there is a quick and easy procedure that may solve these dental problems. Tooth reshaping, or dental contouring, involves the subtle and artful reduction of small amounts of enamel to alter the shape, length, or position of a tooth. The procedure involves the use of a sanding drill or laser to eliminate to minimize imperfections by gradually removing small amounts of surface enamel. Abrasive strips are then used to shape the sides of the teeth. When just the correct amount of material is removed, the teeth are smoothed and polished. This procedure is quick and usually does not involve the sue of anesthetic.

The importance of an attractive smile should not be underestimated. Your personal satisfaction with your oral health and appearance is important. We are a highly qualified and experienced team of professionals - and we're here to help you make the most of your smile. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we are proud of our staff - a staff dedicated to helping you look and feel better. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. In some cases, tooth reshaping may be combined with bonding to complete the process of improving the look of a smile.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

We all have many keys on our key chains . . . big ones. . . small ones. . . shiny ones. . . dull ones. How many times have you tried to open your door at home or your car only to find that you were using the wrong key? It can be mighty frustrating. . .

We waste a lot of time in life trying to open doors with the wrong keys. Most people wish to open the door to happiness. They try one key after another but the door will not happen. Yet at the same time people all around them seem to be opening their doors with their keys. . .

What are these right keys — the keys that really open the doors to contentment, happiness, satisfaction and health? One of these keys is compassion; another diligence. There is a self-control key. There is no doubt that the key which opens the door to popularity is thoughtfulness.

Knowledge is a wonderful key, but there is a greater one still. This is the key of faith. The wonderful thing about this key is that it is reserved for no special person or group. It can be put on anyone's key chain. . .

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Congratulations, Lamb. This is the week to finish your project and then bask in your well-earned approval. (And if you like, you can also say "bah" to all those detractors.)

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The bold Bovine could find a new opportunity too intriguing to be ignored. But don't charge into it. Go slowly so you see how things develop as you get more involved.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might try to soften your stand on that important issue. A little more flexibility could actually get you what you're looking for. A new friend enters the picture midweek.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your inner voice is on the mark when it advises you to tackle that family problem now! The sooner you're able to come to terms with it, the better it will be for everyone.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Someone reveals important news about a longtime associate. But before you decide how to deal with this information, make sure it's reliable, and not simply self-serving.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Some intensive soul-searching early in the week can help you reach a decision by week's end that should please both you and the other person involved. Good luck.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) The possibility of a career change is intriguing. Learn more about what it can offer and what it cannot. Weigh everything carefully. And ask questions.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Work is your priority this week as you try to make up for lost time. Expect help from someone who cares about you. Things take a welcome turn by the weekend.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A health problem causes some anxiety early in the week. But prompt medical attention soon eases everyone's concerns. Enjoy an arts-filled weekend.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) As much as you might resent it, a changing situation could require you to adjust your plans accordingly. The good news: An associate agrees to cooperate.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) That old problem is finally resolved, just in time for you to take on a new work-related project. This one could be the super door-opener you've been looking for.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The early part of the week presents some difficult hurdles. But once you get over them, you can start to focus on matters that are more important to you.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are respected for your honesty and your dedication to doing the right thing, no matter how difficult that might be.

vide flood relief for residents. Gorman said he would look into finding ways to purchase more pumps.

"We have chronic flooding in areas that are well identified," said Raymondi. "If there are funds available we should apply and purchase more of this equipment."

The agency soon will present an updated Emergency Management Plan for the city. This document will govern the city's actions in the case of a State of Emergency.

Gorman said the city will be receiving emergency relief funds from the federal government for the President's Day storm.

For First Year Start Of Long-Term Plan

City To Spend $3 Million On Streets, Sidewalks

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Claiming the city's roadways have been neglected for many years, Mayor William Phelan's administration has unveiled a comprehensive, long-term plan to repair and maintain the streets and sidewalks.

DPW Commissioner Jay Fink and City Engineer Fran Sandonato outlined the ambitious plan at Monday night's meeting of the City Council's Public Works Committee.

The administration's pavement management plan includes a rigorous schedule for 2003, as well as a long-term approach on the continued maintenance of the city's streets and sidewalks.

The city will spend approximately $3 million for this year's projects, which include street and sidewalk repair, installation of traffic signals, and water main replacements.

"The current condition of the streets is a result of years of neglect," said Tom Largey, the mayor's director of operations. "In the past, there has been no comprehensive, ongoing plan to systematically ensure that the streets are repaired and updated before they are completely compromised. This plan changes that – it takes into account the need to periodically refresh sidewalks and roadways before they become seriously compromised."

Fink said the new plan is a marked change from the way things were done in the past.

"The plan itself is different from what went on before, especially when I saw pavement projects that blatantly ignored the problems with the aging infrastructure beneath the streets," said Fink.

Beginning in July, DPW crews and a private contractor will attack more than 1,000 areas of sidewalks in need of repair. To date, the city has logged 1,600 individual complaints about the condition of the sidewalks, said Sandonato. He said the

Norfolk Probate Court Moving To Canton

Norfolk County Register of Probate Patrick McDermott announced Tuesday that the Norfolk Division of the Probate and Family Court is relocating from Dedham to Canton and will be open for business there Monday, April 7.

The new address is 35 Shawmut Rd., Canton 02021. The new telephone number is 781-830-1200.

PATRICK McDERMOTT
"A new vision"

McDermott said the move was sparked by a lawsuit filed by employees of the court last year because of inadequate plans by the state to address air quality, overcrowding and security issues at the Dedham location.

The court has occupied the second floor of the county-owned Registry of Deeds building at 649 High St. for decades.

In recent years, the court expanded to the basement of the building, occupying space that was never intended for people to work in, McDermott said.

Several employees testified at the trial to developing severe sickness, some with cancer, as a result of the

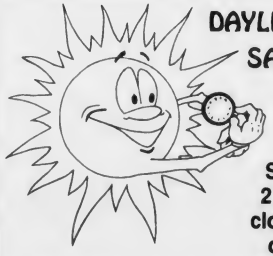
Phelan Serves On Jury Duty, Finds It A 'Good Experience'

If you missed seeing Mayor William Phelan around City Hall there was a good reason.

He was in Norfolk County Superior courthouse on jury duty for three days--two last week and this Monday.

"It was a good experience," said Phelan, who is an attorney but gave his occupation as mayor.



"I was on the inside looking out. I was able to see how people from different areas of life considered the same case.

"It confirmed my belief that trial by jury is the best system of all.. It's not perfect but they usually come to the right decision."

"We were pretty busy," he said. "We had a civil case, personal injury.. The trial itself took a day and a half. Then we deliberated a full day."

And how did City Hall get along without him?

"I've got a lot of competent people in this administration," said Phelan. "They didn't even miss me."

QHS Mediation Program Receives $5,000 In Matching Funds From Sheriff

The Quincy High School Peer Mediation program, designed to assist students in solving conflicts, recently received $5,000 in matching funds from Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti's office.

Bellotti presented the check to representatives of the program on March 12 in the QHS Pride Room. These matching funds complete the monies needed for the program to run at the school. The program is funded, in part, by the Massachusetts Attorney General's office and is administered by the Greater Brockton Center for Dispute Resolution.

"Peer mediation works," said Bellotti. "Kids are often more open to the words and ideas of their fellow peers, especially when it comes to problems they all have in common.

"If we can help young people to resolve their differences and keep them on the straight and narrow, then there is less of a chance they will end up in a facility such as mine," he said.

The collaboration was originated by Arthur Keough, executive director of the Quincy School Community Partnership.

Peer mediation allows students to resolve their conflicts voluntarily and confidentially, in a neutral setting with self-determination, according to program representatives. The program teaches students about the skills necessary to function in a successful work, school or community environment.

Students are assisted by Jim Farrow, a community mediator from Boston.

Program organizers said new curriculum dealing with harassment and teen violence will be implemented this year. This year's peer mediation theme is "Working Together."

The program's services are offered to all QHS students on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays.

Thus far, the program has received $20,000 in contributions, with $10,000 coming from State Attorney General Thomas Reilly's office and an additional $5,000 from Quincy High School.

Street Sweeping Begins April 7

Gorman: Many Factors Caused Overtime Problems

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

A combination of events led to the fire department's run-up in overtime costs, according to former Chief Tom Gorman.

At last week's meeting of the City Council's Public Safety Committee, Gorman said multiple factors caused the department to drain its overtime budget in the first three months of the current fiscal year.

About 23 firefighters retired last July, but the city did not hire replacements in time to cover the loss. As a result, overtime costs surged.

The city council approved Mayor William Phelan's request for $600,000 to fund the overtime budget for fiscal 2003, but the department spent that amount by October, three months into the fiscal year. The fiscal year runs from July 1 to June 30.

Fire Chief Paul O'Connell said overtime may cost $1 million before the current fiscal year ends.

The department is still undermanned by seven firefighters, according to O'Connell. Citing a lack of personnel, O'Connell sidelined Rescue 1 three weeks ago.

An additional 23 retirements are expected this year.

Gorman, who retired last summer, said he informed then-Mayor James Sheets in August 2001 of impending retirements in the department. Sheets did not address the issue until December, 2001, Gorman said.

THOMAS GORMAN

But Sheets told The Quincy Sun that Gorman's version of events "is simply not true." The process of hiring new firefighters began as early as April, 2001, Sheets recalled.

"We knew there would be a number of retirements," he said. "The key to keeping the budget down was hiring new firefighters as soon as possible. We had wrestled with the previous budget regarding the overtime, and the answer to that problem was filling those vacancies."

Sheets said it takes eight to 10 months to secure, screen, train and place recruits on duty, and his administration had taken the necessary steps to have recruits ready to replace the retirees in July, 2002.

"Chief Gorman stayed on as chief with the new administration and I have no idea if he continued to work to fill the vacancies or not," Sheets said.

Gorman said firefighter candidates were chosen in March, 2002 but other factors prevented them from being activated for duty.

Budget cuts to the state Human Resources Department hampered the hiring process, said Gorman. The process of drug and strength testing was slowed due to a decrease in the frequency of testing, he said.

Gorman said he was aware that the hiring process was going to take a long time and he "didn't want to saddle the next chief with this problem."

O'Connell was appointed acting chief after Gorman retired in August, 2002. Mayor William Phelan made O'Connell permanent in January, 2003.

In addition, Gorman said some firefighter candidates threatened legal action over the perception of being bypassed. This slowed the hiring process as well, he said.

Candidates were hired during the first week in August, 2002 but still required eight weeks of drill school, Gorman said. The new hires were placed on the job in late September.

Since the department was shorthanded during the July-September period, firefighters were assigned overtime to make up the shifts.

"As a result, the city paid for it," said Gorman. "It was expensive."

He said the situation could occur again this year.

Council President Dan Raymondi, who attended the meeting, said the loss of Rescue 1 is a very serious development.

"I am gravely disappointed that Rescue 1 is out of service," Raymondi said. "That is one of the most important safety vehicles in the city. And it appears we are going to have the same problem again this year - history is repeating itself."

Gorman said the Phelan administration was not to blame for the situation. But Raymondi disagreed.

"The mayor purposely underfunded the overtime budget," Raymondi said. "That, coupled with the fact that the administration was slow to hire new firefighters does not bode well for public safety in the city."

Bob Foy Returns To Serve Sixth Mayor

ROBERT FOY

Robert Foy, who served the city of Quincy as treasurer and auditor under five mayors, is back for a volunteer tour of duty with his sixth.

Foy, who retired as city auditor in 1999, is checking out Quincy's bonding status, perhaps in preparation for going out with a $10 million issue for sewers and drains that has been approved by the City Council.

"The Mayor called me on Monday," he said. "I talked to him on Tuesday. He asked me to work two days a week. I came to work Wednesday and I've been working straight through ever since."

Foy's chief concern is the pay.

"The city doesn't owe me anything," he said. "I've been working without pay on a volunteer basis. I hope to get paid but I'll wait until something comes out of the Council."

Foy was originally appointed treasurer by Mayor Walter Hannon in 1972 and served under Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin and Frank McCauley until the City Council named him auditor in June 1982.

He was auditor under Mayor James Sheets until his retirement in 1999, although he stayed on for a few months to help out the new auditor, Michael McFarland.

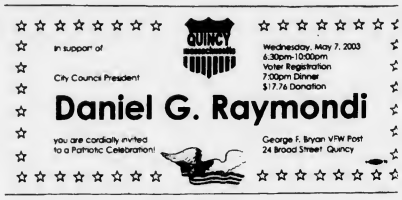
Those Raymondi Tickets

You might say what isn't there sometimes is more interesting -- and intriguing -- than what is.

And in the world of local politics that will get the old speculation percolating like a hot coffee pot.

Especially this election year.

Dan Raymondi has a "Patriotic Celebration" fundraiser set for Wednesday, May 7, 6:30 to 10 p.m. at the Bryan VFW Post, Broad St.



RAYMONDI

With dinner and -- a voter registration. Tickets are -- carrying out the patriotic theme -- $17.76.

But what isn't on the ticket is the intriguing part.

It simply says the event is "in support of City Council President Daniel G. Raymondi."

What it doesn't say is in support of him for what. Doesn't say for mayor. But it also doesn't say for re-election as Ward 2 city councillor.

Is this a giant step toward the 2003 mayoral ring?

If it is, Raymondi isn't saying.

"No decision has been made," he says. "I'm keeping my options open. I really haven't made up my mind."

Maybe a little hint:

"My mind is focused on the direction this city is going to take."

Will there be any big announcement that night?

"There are no plans for an announcement. The night is to celebrate America and to support our troops."

Meanwhile, the ticket, is sure to keep the speculation juices jumping.

Hmmm! How about council at-large?

IF HISTORY MEANS anything, a candidate running out of Ward 1 would seem to have a good shot at the mayor's office.

Of the 29 men who have served as mayor, 12 were residents of Ward 1 when they were elected.

The 12:

Charles Porter, a Civil War veteran and Quincy's first mayor who took office in 1889 when Quincy moved from a town to city government.

Charles Francis Adams, a direct descendant of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams (1896) who went on to become Secretary of the Navy under President Herbert Hoover.

Russell Sears (1898) at age 27 the youngest Quincy mayor ever elected.

The others: Joseph Whiton (1917), William Bradford (1921), Gustave Bates (1923), Perley Barbour (1925), Thomas McGrath (1927), Thomas Burgin (1935), David McIntosh (1952, Plan E mayor), Arthur Tobin (1978) and Frank McCauley (1982).

Burgin was also elected Quincy's first mayor under Plan E in 1950.

McCauley is the last mayor to come out of Ward 1.

FRANK McCAULEY hasn't officially announced his candidacy for city councillor at-large but he is definitely running.

McCAULEY

And friends have a fundraiser coming up for him Tuesday, April 15, 5 to 7 p.m. at the Best Western Adams Inn, 29 Hancock St., North Quincy. Suggested donation: $100.

Letters being sent by "The Friends of Frank McCauley" note in part:

"As Quincy struggles to manage through difficult times, it is important to have knowledgeable and experience leadership on the City Council. With your support, Frank will continue to bring his experience to the Council and serve as a forceful advocate for fiscal responsibility, enabling Quincy to continue to grow and prosper in the future."

LOOKING BACK: City Clerk Joseph Shea now presides over Quincy's elections but did you know he once was a political candidate himself.

SHEA

In 1969 he won a nomination for the Ward 4 city council seat but lost to incumbent Albert Barilaro in the final election.

HE HASN'T OFFICIALLY announced, but Doug Gutro will seek a second term as Ward 5 councillor.

GUTRO

His committee had a 6 to 8 p.m. reception set for last night (Wednesday) at 1 Adams St. Donation $50.

Those who get The Sun Wednesday can still make it.

Norfolk Probate Court Moving To Canton

sick building. The trial lasted several days, resulting in Superior Court Judge Elizabeth Donovan's finding in favor of the employees and ordering the state to relocate the court immediately.

McDermott, who was sworn in as the new Register Jan. 1, said he found his first task to be the relocation of the court.

"This is an enormous undertaking, requiring a new vision for how we operate as an effective means to justice for the people of Norfolk County," he said.

"This facility is truly a state-of-the-art operation and will be a source of pride for all those who work here and certainly for those who seek resolution to complicated family and probate law issues."

McDermott emphasized that this move should be regarded as a temporary solution in that the Commonwealth has signed a five-year lease for the new facility which also carries a five-year renewable option.

McDermott said he will spend much of his time over the next few years working with state, county and local officials in solidifying a long-term solution of the development of a "judicial center" which would include other aspects of the trial court currently being housed in leased property.

McDermott said that the court will be open for regular business through the close of the week Friday afternoon. Most of the records have been transferred, and the bulk of the move will take place this weekend. New phones and computer equipment will be installed and ready for the court to open on Monday.

McDermott said he is available to answer questions from the public and attorneys by contacting him at 781-326-7070 (until Friday) and then at 781-830-1200, extension 271, effective April 7.

Scenes From Yesterday

Bill Sullivan: A Legend Indeed

I just wanted to take this opportunity to thank you for your recent tribute to "Bill Sullivan: A True Legend" published in the Quincy Sun Sunbeam Column.

As a former football player at QHS, I can personally verify that "Coach Sully" was indeed a legend and legendary coach.

A fierce competitor with a tremendous desire and will to win; an excellent coach that always had his teams prepared to play; a skilled orator that always motivated his players, particularly at halftime of games; and, above all, a first-class gentleman.

I was fortunate to be on the QHS 1954 football team that started the five consecutive wins against North Quincy when they shut out NQHS, 19-0, on Thanksgiving Day.

QHS was very fortunate to have those legends and legendary coaches in the 1950s — Coach Munroe MacLean, Coach Bill Sullivan and Coach Marty Finnegan. The impact that those legends and legendary coaches and unique individuals have had on my life cannot be adequately described in writing and I will be forever grateful to them for their contributions to my athletic and academic career and to my personal life.

Coach Sullivan was a unique role model as a football coach and the kind of individual that comes along only once in a lifetime. Now, Coach Sullivan gets inducted into the greatest Hall of Fame of all and he rejoins Coach MacLean — may God bless him forever!

Make Brewers Corner A Beautiful Gateway

Do you want to go to Quincy Center if you are on Route 128? Get off at Center Street, proceed to Granite Street, passing through Brewers Corner.

Do you want to go to Quincy Center if your are on the expressway? Get off at Furnace Brook Parkway, turn right on Copeland Street to Brewers Corner and Granite Street.

What do you see? A dingy, dilapidated, dirty corner. Other streets leading to Quincy Center have bright new lights — not Brewers Corner. Other streets have banners saying "Welcome to Quincy" — not Brewers Corner. School crossings around the city shine with bright white lines — not Brewers Corner (even though students from Sterling Middle School and Lincoln-Hancock Elementary School use the five crosswalks at Brewers Corner).

The area is included in the QCBPA, but no one talks to the business owners in the area. On the evening of March 19, Ward 4 Councilor Bryan Connolly held a meeting at 378 Granite St., through the graciousness of the Mannions Family Restaurant. They opened the restaurant after hours and provided free refreshments.

I attended the meeting and was disappointed with the small turnout. However, those who were there were very enthusiastic and a business association was formed. If you wish to help revitalize Brewers Corner by adding your ideas to ours, please contact Bryan Connolly.

Citizens of Wards 3 and 4 arise and show people that Brewers Corner, too, could become a beautiful gateway to Historic Quincy.

Repair Potholes

Mayor Bill Phelan recently announced his "Pothole Assault" campaign. He said neither manpower nor overtime budget would stop him from filling those pesky potholes.

Right now Atlantic Street, like many other Quincy roads, looks like downtown Baghdad after being hit by a few tomahawk missiles.

A few potholes were patched up on Atlantic Street during Operation Pothole Assault but quickie patch-ups aren't enough. It is a stop-gap measure and a good sound bite but the craters creep right back up after a few cars roll over them. Instant black topping just doesn't fill anything.

World War I Vet Still Refuses Bonus

This Week
1937
66 Years Ago

The 20th anniversary of America's entry into World War I passed and Francois Rene Sauliere of 22 Glynn Terrace, Quincy Center, was still turning down his veterans' bonus.

Sauliere, better known as Frank R. Sauliere, Quincy correspondent for a Boston newspaper, had been refusing the $1,590 every since it was first offered many years ago.

"I don't think any man should collect a bonus for serving his country in time of war," he said.

"My father fought for France for five cents a day. My grandfather served in the Franco-Prussian War for nominal pay. I don't intend to stick Uncle Sam for my bit."

STREET WIDENING ENDORSED

Some 300 persons at a hearing gave overwhelming endorsement to widening Cottage Ave. and Foster St., Quincy Center, to make way for a 100-foot wide connector between Hancock and Washington Sts.

"It will provide room for growth in the retail district of Quincy," said merchant Max Winer. "You have a gold mine of property in back of Hancock St."

City Councillor Avery W. Gilkerson filed an order for landtaking.

OLDEST GRADDIES

Mrs. Elizabeth H. Alden, 90, of 58 Chestnut St., Quincy Center, the oldest living graduate of Quincy High School and the oldest member of Bethany Congregational Church, died at her home.

Mrs. Allen, daughter of granite manufacturer Charles Henry Hardwick, was graduated from the high school in 1865 when it was located on High School Ave. behind the Central Fire Station.

Robotics Team Bows In Regional Finals

Team HYPER, the Gillette/Quincy Public Schools robotic team, finished second in the Granite State Regional Competition in Manchester, N. H., with a record of eight wins and two losses and an average qualifying score of 121.

Team HYPER, allied with Middleton, R. I., High School and Pinkerton Academy of Derry, N. H., won in the qualifying round, 203 to 47 and recorded a 144 to 37 victory in the semifinals.

The first match of the finals was a disaster for Team HYPER, losing 109 to 32 and suffering damage to the robot's front right motor and the speed controller that drive the front right wheel and a disconnected wire.

The team's pit crew could not fix the damage in time for the second match of the finals and the team lost 84 to 32.

City To Spend $3 Million On Streets, Sidewalks

engineering department has prioritized sidewalks in each ward for repair.

Several roadway projects will also get underway soon, including work on Atlantic St., Hancock St., and Albertina St. In addition, residents will see work on the Hancock St. and Merrymount Park Rd. intersection, as well as many streets in the Squantum area.

As part of the long-term plan, city engineers are compiling a database of the condition of all city streets and sidewalks. The results of that study will be revealed in July, said Sandonato.

This will allow city planners to determine the extent of repairs necessary for each street. Periodic maintenance is more cost effective than allowing a street to fall into complete disrepair, Largey said.

The city will assess the underlying infrastructure of streets, such as the age of water mains, and determine a course of action. Repaving a street with 100-year-old water main is not cost effective if the city will have to repeat the process in the event of a water main break, Fink said.

"We do not want to spend top dollar if there is substandard infrastructure below," he said.

Some streets will need to be completely rebuilt, while others will need less maintenance based on the underlying condition of the roadway, said Fink.

The construction plan will be funded by a combination of sources, including $970,000 from state Chapter 90 funds, $300,000 in CDBG funds, and approximately $1.5 million in Water main funds, Fink said.

In addition, Mayor Phelan has proposed using 50 percent of funds derived from the Quarry Hills project as another means of funding the repair plans. A home rule petition designating Quarry Hills funds for street repair is pending in the city council finance committee.

"The home rule petition is a critical piece of this administration's longer range plan to ensure that the streets and sidewalks are maintained," said Largey.

An additional $600,000 is needed to purchase construction equipment, such as dump trucks, 4X4 pick-ups, and other items, Fink said. The funds used to purchase the equipment could come from the Quarry Hills proposal, he said.

Purchasing the new equipment will be a long-term investment for the city, he said. DPW crews will take the lead role in repairing the sidewalks, he said.

Fink said it may not be necessary to hire new employees because the city's new trash pickup contract will address yard waste collection. Traditionally, DPW employees conducted yard waste pickup. The new contract may change that, he said.

"We have sufficient manpower to make a big difference on the streets and sidewalks," said Fink. "If the new contract allows the vendor to do yard waste pickup then it will free up DPW employees to concentrate on the repair of the sidewalks."

Ward 6 City Councillor Joseph Newton was cautiously optimistic about the administration's plan.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin called the DPW plan a "good start."

Taxpayers' Association Urges Environmental Review Of Proposed High School Site

Alan Cousin, president of the Quincy Taxpayers' Association, has asked the state Secretary of Environmental Affairs to conduct a full environmental review of plans to build the new Quincy High School at Faxon Field.

In a letter to Secretary Ellen Roy Herzfelder, Cousins said: "The city conducted an exhaustive review of alternate sites for a new high school, but has never seriously examined alternatives to building a new high school in the first place. Faxon Field was chosen despite the fact that, being largely wetland, it was the most environmentally sensitive site under consideration."

His letter continued: "Camp, Dresser and McKee has estimated the cost of site remediation at $7.7 million – a cost which would not be included in reimbursement from the state's school building assistance program. But my reading of Camp, Dresser and McKee's report did not address the issue or the cost of replication. We believe the site is too small for the wetland to be replicated (onsite), nor are we aware of anywhere else where the wetland could be replicated."

Cousins said taxpayers have not been well served by the site process. "Alternatives and environmental issues should have been considered before the permitting process began, not while it is underway," he said. "But since it is by no means clear that building a new high school is the best option in the first place, an environmental impact review will help shed some light on that question."

QUINCY MEDICAL
The Boston Medical Center Alliance For Quality

Sometimes he'd call it "a little heartburn." Other times, he'd say he has "a sour stomach." Doctors, though, call it Gastroesophageal Reflux Disease (GERD) and, untreated, it can lead to cancer of the esophagus.

Dr. Charles Schwartz is a Quincy Medical Center gastroenterologist specializing in stomach, intestinal, and colorectal concerns. He and his colleagues provide full diagnostic and treatment services, from colonscopies to corrective surgeries.

Through our Alliance for Quality with Boston Medical Center, we offer remarkable gastrointestinal (GI) diagnostic services here in Quincy. Because the first step in treating GERD and other GI conditions, from Peptic Ulcers to Colorectal Cancer, is detecting it. And why not do so right here, close to home?

Our Alliance for Quality assures you and your family of the best possible care by teaming top specialists with top local physicians at Quincy Medical Center.

NQHS Scholars Compete In Academic Championship

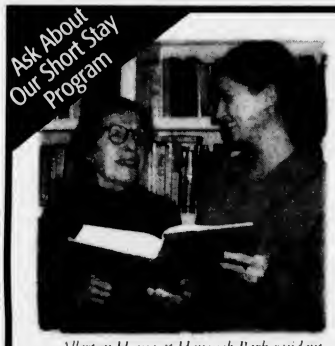
Nine North Quincy High School scholars recently competed for the championship of the Massachusetts Academic Decathlon, which was held at St. John's of Shrewsbury High School.

The NQHS team placed 14th in the competition, which was won by Acton-Boxboro High School.

Each competitor gave a prepared and impromptu speech, wrote an essay, was interviewed and answered quiz questions in front of a packed gymnasium of spectators. Some of the topics covered during the competition were: language and literature, mathematics, fine art and economics.

Sarah Cormiea led all NQHS students in scoring and received the Coach's Medal as the team's most valuable player. Katherine Constantopolous was the team's second highest scorer. Lori Ferris was the third leading scorer and earned an honorable mention for her prepared and impromptu speech.

Kaite Mo earned the fourth highest number of team points. Meghan McCombs earned an honorable mention ribbon for her high score on the prepared and impromptu speech. Clive Chung led NQHS in scoring on the math exam.



Nellie Wong contributed with a very high score on her interview an speech. Adam Graeber received a high score on his speech and interview. Mo Ding obtained high scores for her speech, essay and interview.

Participating as alternates in the competition were Lucy Lou, Lisa Luo, William SeTow and Steven Wong.

Rabies Immunization Clinic At Animal Shelter April 5

The Quincy Health Department will hold a Rabies Immunization Clinic Saturday, April 5 from 12 to 3 p.m. at the Quincy Animal Shelter, 56 Broad St., behind the George Bryan Post and Father Bill's Place.

The clinic will be held rain or shine. Cost is $10 for each dog and cat. The Health Department strongly encourages pet owners to have their cats and dogs immunized against serious disease. Residents must bring proof of immunization from the previous year to obtain a three-year shot.

Rabies is an infectious and contagious viral disease transmitted from exposed wildlife to dogs and cats who, in turn, can transmit the disease to humans through bite wounds. The disease is considered to be 100 percent fatal, if untreated. Exposed dogs and cats that are not vaccinated must be either isolated for three months or destroyed.

Rabies is still present in the wildlife population in Massachusetts. Last year, 280 animals tested at the State Laboratory in Boston were positive for rabies. About fifteen percent of the dogs and cats exposed to rabies had to be put to sleep as none were vaccinated.

Quincy Public Health Commissioner Andrew Scheele said it is very important to vaccinate pets to avoid contact with wild animals. He noted cats must be vaccinated once over three months of age and re-vaccinated within nine to twelve months after the first vaccination. Thereafter, the dog or cat may be vaccinated once every three years as long as the two vaccines at nine to twelve intervals have been administered.

For those pets who received the yearly vaccine at last April's clinic, the second yearly vaccine must be received this year at the April 5 clinic.

For those whose dogs or cats received two vaccines less than one year apart and who show proof (receipt you received from health department or veterinarian) of these vaccinations, a three-year vaccine will be administered at the appropriate clinics.

To reduce exposure to rabies, Scheele said take the following precautions:

- Vaccinate all cats and dogs against rabies.
- Do not touch, pick up or feed wild or stray animals of any kind.
- Teach children to avoid wildlife and strays.
- Avoid sick or strangely acting animals
- Fasten trashcan lids tightly. Garbage attracts raccoons and skunks.
- Cap chimneys and seal openings into house, etc. to prevent raccoons from entering or building dens.
- If you are bitten or scratched by any animal, you should promptly wash the wound(s) with soapy water and contact a doctor immediately.
- If your pet has been bitten or scratched by any animal, wear gloves, wash the wound with warm soapy water for at least ten minutes, and contact your veterinarian immediately.

Street Survival Self-Defense Classes For Women April 7-9

The Mayor's Commission on Women will hold "Street Survival Self-Defense" classes for women Monday and Wednesday, April 7 and 9, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St.

"Personal confidence can be one of the most effective defenses against attack and unwanted advances," said Mayor William Phelan. "The techniques that will be taught ill allow women to have a greater sense of that confidence."

The classes, free of charge for all women, are co-sponsored by the South Shore YMCA and the Massachusetts State Police, who will demonstrate the special self-defense techniques that are taught at the police academy.

"I encourage women of every age and station to attend this important training session," said Phelan.

Those wishing to reserve space at the "Street Survival Self-Defense" seminar should contact the Mayor's office at 617-376-1990.

Scholarship Offered To Former Parker School Students

The PTO of the F.W. Parker School is offering a scholarship to former students who are now graduating seniors.

USS Salem Readies Suit Against City On Sleepover Ban

Michael Condon, executive director of the USS Salem and Naval Shipbuilding Museum, hopes to be able to file suit by the end of the week against the city for halting the ship's lucrative sleepover program as a fire hazard.

The sleepovers aboard the heavy cruiser were an important feature of the USS Salem Overnight Adventure, a weekend program for kids that once provided more than half the financially troubled museum's income.

The March 3 order by Fire Chief Paul O'Connell, who ruled that egress to the ship was inadequate in case of fire, was appealed to State Fire Marshal Stephen Coan, who ruled that he lacked jurisdiction. Hence, the law suit.

"It's not as simple as just showing up at the courthouse," said Condon. "The suit that our attorney, Tom Kiley, is building has multiple facets.

"We're claiming that the order goes beyond the jurisdiction of the fire chief and it gives us no time to resolve the issues, therefore it's not a valid order."

Meanwhile, Condon said the Salem is continuing the Adventure Program in an effort not to disappoint the youngsters, most of them from Boy Scout troops, even though the museum is losing money on the deal.

The charge for the weekend remains at $38 per person for the visit to the museum, meals, a boat tour of the harbor and, in place of the sleepover aboard the ship, a night at a local hotel, the Adams Inn or the Marriott or the Sheraton Braintree.

"The fee was never supposed to include a night at a four-star hotel," said Condon.

"We have obtained a positive response from the visitors. We've only had a couple of cancellations. The kids have been disappointed but supportive."

The Egg & I Is Not Closing

The Egg & I Restaurant, 853 Hancock St., is not closing.

It was incorrectly reported in The Sun last week in a License Board story that the longtime popular landmark was closing.

Actually, the vicualer license held by owner Dominic Mignosa is being transferred to Sean Toland and is on the License Board agenda for approval Tuesday, April 8.

Toland will continue to operate the restaurant under the Egg & I name.

Mignosa's daughters, Marie and Debra Mignosa, are opening a 16-seat restaurant of their own at 94 Washington St., Quincy Center, on the site of the former Roy's Flower Shop.

Their license was approved by the License Board last week and they plan to open in June.

Conway Offers Real Estate Licensing Courses

The Conway Country School of Real Estate is offering four-week courses on the fundamentals of real estate.

Those interested in becoming licensed real estate agents can take the 25 hours of coursework to meet the Commonwealth of Massachusetts' requirements prior to taking the salesperson's licensing exam.

Students of the Conway Country School of Real Estate also have access to professional career counseling to discuss joining the Conway sales team, although enrolling in the prelicensing class does not obligate students to work for Conway.

Tuition is $200 and the classes are at the Hanover Campus (at the intersection of Routes 53 and 139) on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

For more information on license courses, call (781) 826-0088.

The Conway Country School of Real Estate is a division of Norwell-based Jack Conway & Co., which is the largest independent real estate firm in Massachusetts, with more than 650 agents in 41 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

KeySpan Energy Delivery Working In Two Neighborhoods

KeySpan Energy Delivery is working in two local neighborhoods maintaining and or expanding its natural gas distribution system.

Work is underway in the area of 22 to 79 Verchild St. and 55 to 82 Plymouth St. Hours are Monday through Friday, 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. Work, which began March 31, is scheduled for four weeks.

Work is performed by KeySpan Energy Delivery and/or a qualified contractor.

The road will be open to the public and parking may be limited. A construction foreman with appropriate identification will be on site to address parking needs throughout the duration of the construction.

In a letter to abutters, KeySpan also stated the work may require some excavation in the area of the foundation of homes and/or business. The construction foreman on site will notify customers of interruption of gas service and make proper arrangements to re-light appliances.

There may also be a lag between temporary and permanent restoration of the street and sidewalk, depending on the weather and ground conditions.

For information about conversion opportunities, call 1-800-755-4GAS.

Immigrants, First-Time Buyers Drive Up Sales Of Multifamily Homes In Bay State

Despite weak economic conditions and declining demands for rental units, the Bay State's multifamily housing market experienced another strong year in 2002 as sales of two-, three- and four-family homes rose 3.5 percent from one year ago, according to a recent report issued by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR).

Across the state, multifamily home sales increased from 7,226 in 2001 to 7,481 last year — the second highest annual sales total for two- to four-family homes in state history, exceeded only by the 7,508 units sold in 1999.

"The near record demand for multifamily homes is a reflection of today's economic realities and the changing face of Bay State home buyers," said MAR President Peter Casey. "The multifamily market is no longer dominated by investors the way it was 10 to 15 years ago, so rising vacancy rates and lower rents don't influence the market as much as they once did.

"Today, declining mortgage rates mean more, especially to first-time buyers looking for an attractive, affordable option to the high prices and lack of starter homes now associated with the detached single-family home market."

The MAR report shows sales of two- to four-family homes improved in five of seven regional markets across the state in 2002, with sales growth most pronounced in regions populated by large cities and older urban centers.

Specifically, sales increased 0.4 percent on the South Shore, 3 percent in the Northeast region, 9.6 percent in western Massachusetts, 9.7 percent in Worcester County and 10.9 percent in the Greater Fall River-New Bedford area of southeastern Massachusetts.

"The market for duplexes and triple-deckers is clearly getting a boost from the large numbers of foreign-born households found in the commonwealth," Casey said. "This type of housing has strong appeal to immigrants, especially those with extended families, many of whom choose to live close together or under one roof. So it's not surprising that the multifamily market is healthiest in those areas of the state where large ethic communities exist."

Due to the strong sales pace of the past year, property values for two- to four-family homes have been increasing steadily as well, the MAR report found, with total dollar volume for multifamily home sales climbing from $1,753,447,696 in 2001 to $2,091,697,908 in 2002.

While specific price comparisons are not available for two-, three- and four-family dwellings separately, this sharp gain in dollar volume indicates that selling prices for multifamily homes rose across the state by an average of 19.3 percent during the past year, from an average selling price of $242,658 one year ago to $279,601 in 2002.

"The price increases over the past year are among the strongest we've ever seen for multifamily homes," Casey said.

Make A Change For The Better With Energy Star Lighting

(NAPS) — Would you make a simple change at home if it could save you money and help protect the environment?

The U.S. Environment Protection Agency (EPA) has been leading nationwide challenges to Americans to make the switch to Energy Star lighting, and trends indicate that Americans are doing just that. Between 1999 and 2001 alone, sales of compact fluorescent light bulbs (CFLs) quadrupled, proving that consumers are increasingly realizing the benefits of energy-efficient lighting.

Partnerships are key to this success. More than 140 organizations nationwide have been working with EPA's Energy Star program to help further spread the word. Well-known and trusted manufacturers and retailers such as Osram Sylvania, Westinghouse, Lowe's, Wal*Mart and even your local hardware store, are participating by educating consumers on the benefits of choosing Energy Star.

Utilities from around the country also teamed up with state governments, mayors and governors to host community-based lighting events that set the stage for longer term community-wide changes to energy efficiency.

From bulb giveaways to replacing light fixtures in governor's residences and other public buildings, Americans are learning that the simple effort of changing a light bulb or fixture to Energy Star can have a big impact.

And now with the availability of a wide range of light bulbs and fixtures on the market, it is easier than ever for consumers to do their part by making their next light an Energy Star.

Switching to Energy Star will reap big benefits. Consider this:

• Every light makes a difference: If every U.S. household changed the lighting in one room of their home to Energy Star, the change would keep one trillion pounds of greenhouse gases out of the air. The energy savings alone could light more than 34 million U.S. homes for one year — the equivalent output of more than 20 power plants.

• Energy and time savings: Energy Star qualified CFLs and light fixtures are up to 75 percent more efficient than standard lighting products. A CFL used an average of four hours a day will not need to be changed for at least four years, saving you time and money replacing the equivalent of up to 10 standard light bulbs.

• Quick return on investments: While initially more expensive, Energy Star qualified CFLs quickly pay for themselves in reduced energy costs. These savings continue beyond the initial payback. In fact, Energy Star qualified CFLs can save your $25 or more per bulb over their lifetime.

When you see the Energy Star on a product, you can trust that it meets strict energy efficiency guidelines set by the EPA and U.S. Department of Energy. There may be no place like home to make a change and help protect the environment.

Mark Bracken Candidate For Ward 6 Councillor

Mark Bracken, a 23-year-old law student, will seek the Ward 6 city council seat.

Bracken, who lives at 242 Quincy Shore Drive, North Quincy, will announce his candidacy at a campaign kickoff fund-raiser Thursday, April 10, at 7:30 p.m. at the Water Club in Marina Bay.

A life-long resident of Quincy, currently enrolled in his second year at Suffolk University Law School, Bracken said:

"Working for the citizens of Quincy has been a life-long dream of mine and I am very excited to possibly have the chance to work at achieving the goals and needs of the people in my neighborhood as well as beyond Ward 6.

"I am anxious to get out there and hear the varying concerns that people may have and would be honored if I was awarded the chance to serve on the Quincy city council."

MARK BRACKEN

Bracken, a graduate of Boston College High School, received his Bachelor of Arts degree in politics from Saint Anselm College in 2001. He is also a graduate of Engalitcheff Institute on Comparative Political Economic Systems at Georgetown University.

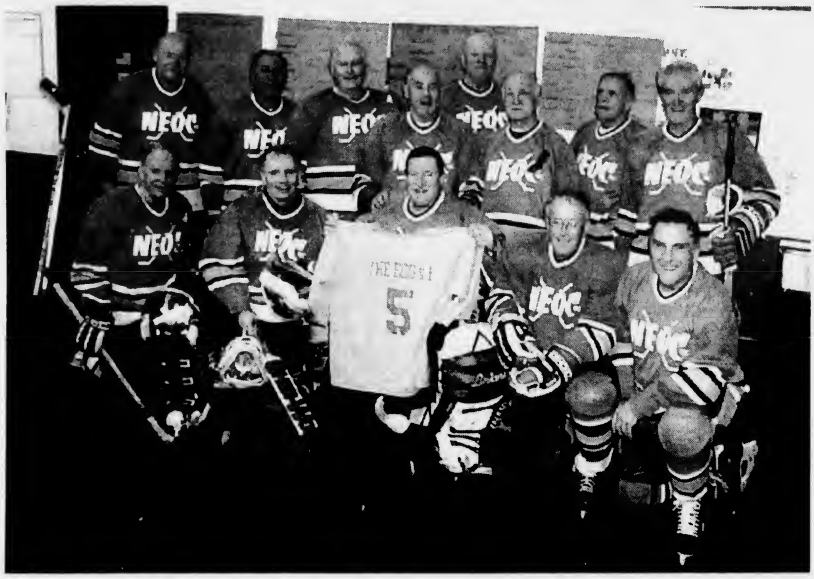
Egg & I Over 70 Hockey Team Wins Silver Medal

Quincy's over 70 hockey team earned the silver medal in the recent Fleet Bank/Blue Cross-Blue Shield 2003 Old Timers Tournament at Quincy Youth Arena.

Sponsored by the Egg and I restaurant and Quincy Youth Arena, Quincy knew it would be a hard fought championship game with the Boston Senior Moby Dicks, a team known for its fast skaters and good passers and shooters.

Both squads played a scoreless first period as Quincy's defense — Ken Kelly, Bibby Lewis, Jim Yancey, captain Fred Cashman and Mike Marklis — worked hard to keep the puck out of its zone.

The middle frame started out a little slower but the Moby Dicks kept the pressure on and were rewarded with a goal for a 1-0 lead.



As the game became more intense, Quincy forwards captain Ted Rouillard, Dave Egan and Dan Hall generated quality shots on goal but the Boston goalie came up with the saves.

In the third, the Moby Dicks dumped the puck into Quincy's zone and sent two men after it. Quincy's forwards, who were backchecking, became tired.

With less than two minutes remaining, the line of Billy Bailey, Don Hernberg and Les Veno were able to move the puck into Boston's zone and created several scoring chances but to no avail.

And with 43 ticks left, the Moby Dicks sealed the game with an empty-net goal to account for the final score. If it weren't for Bill Brady's stellar goaltending, the score could have been worse.

Quincy's MVP through the tourney's first two games, Manson Hall, missed the game as he was stuck in traffic at the Sagamore Bridge in Bourne because of an attempted suicide. The team says it's looking forward to next year.

BOYS' BASEBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

Warning: The North Quincy High School baseball team that takes the field this spring will not resemble the squad from the previous two seasons.

The Red Raiders have undergone more of a change than Barry Bonds of the Pirates to Barry Bonds of the Giants.

Not only do they have a new head coach, but they also graduated 13 seniors — a group that backboned the team to the state tournament the past two years.

Rick Del Vecchio now runs the program, replacing Larry Taglieri, who resigned when he became assistant principal of Atlantic Middle School, ending a very successful tenure at the helm.

Del Vecchio brings plenty of credentials as owner of the South Shore Baseball Club, where he is a professional hitting instructor and coach of the 16-and-under AAU Seadogs.

"I've been coaching for about 10 years and this is my first venture into high school baseball," Del Vecchio said. "I'm enthused to work with the kids on an on-going basis.

"North Quincy has had great success in the past and I expect that to continue. We graduated 13 seniors. This team is filled with young, talented players. Not only this year, but in years to come."

Saturday's season opener against Canton has been rescheduled for April 23 at home at 1 p.m., and North Quincy will now open the season next Tuesday afternoon at 4 at Taunton.

Del Vecchio said Taglieri has been "very instrumental in getting me off and running," and JV coach Chris Cotter, also the assistant varsity coach, has returned and is a "real valuable commodity."

Although the roster hasn't been finalized, here's a quick look at some of the new cast of characters and the positions they'll be playing:

Sophomores John Fitzgerald and Bobby Newcomb are middle infielders and senior Richard Zapata and freshman Drew Loud are also in the infield.

Seniors Chris Dolbeare, James Zapata, James Coughlin and junior Sean Sullivan will share time in the outfield.

Senior Gary Dalton is expected to be the ace of the pitching staff. Riordan, Delgardo, Sullivan and Haskins, a left-hander, will all see time on the mound along with freshmen John Allen, Paul Doolan and Tom Power, another southpaw.

"The boys and I are just getting to know each other and I'm trying to implement my system," Del Vecchio said.

Del Vecchio briefly said the system will be based upon pitching and defense, particularly now that the Old Colony League has switched to wooden bats.

"We're going to build a team around defense and pitching, especially with the league using wooden bats now which levels the playing field," he said. "We're going to be a strong baserunning team, very aggressive. But pitching and defense is going to win games for us."

"The biggest problem is we have very little varsity experience," he added. "About 95 percent have never played varsity baseball. Once we get rolling I expect good things. The future is bright at North Quincy High School. There are about a dozen underclassmen that are real thoroughbreds."

Presidents Hope To Build On Success

Head coach Michael Draicchio hopes the success of the fall and winter teams rubs off on his Quincy High School baseball team this spring.

The soccer, basketball and hockey teams all made the tournament and the football team challenged for a league title. Many of those players, some of whom were all-stars, fill out the hardball roster.

"After what a lot of the other teams accomplished this year, the guys feel they can win," Draicchio said. "They really want to do the job. I hope their experience in the other sports carries over."

Quincy has gradually improved in each of Draicchio's first three years at the helm, from one to three to five wins. The Presidents would like to complete the rebuilding process this season, especially for the seniors who arrived on Coddington Street the same time as Draicchio.

"This is the group I started out with when I first got here," said Draicchio of the 14-member senior class.

Quincy, which opened the season Tuesday against Brighton, hosts Holbrook today (Thursday) at 3:30 at Adams Field and Friday afternoon at 3:30 it heads to Archbishop Williams. The Presidents swept Brighton and Holbrook last year.

"We feel we can win those three games," Draicchio said during practice last week.

The Presidents, who graduated only two seniors, now have an experienced lineup as they return 14 players from last year's squad, including senior quad-captains Anthony Boyle, Craig Keenan, Liam Powers and Matt MacNeil.

Unfortunately, Quincy will begin the year without two important players: Keenan, the starting shortstop, is still recovering from a broken nose suffered during the basketball season and junior catcher Joe Priscella is out with a broken elbow.

Draicchio now has to be a jester, juggling his lineup game to game to fill the void. Senior Mark Dondero will start behind the plate and will be backed up by junior Ian Jorganson. Senior Shaun Gibbons gets the nod at first with senior Joe Scribi coming off the bench. Senior Paul Krystyniak, the designated hitter, could also see time there as well.

Powers — an all-star second baseman and one of the league's top hitters last year — moves over to shortstop with Keenan out. MacNeil, the right fielder, will man second base in the meantime. Senior Ryan Conley starts at third with senior Jeff Tam spelling relief.

In the outfield, senior Jamie Chiocchio starts in left and senior Rob Muollo in center. As for right field, seniors Bob Ritchie, Malcolm Lynn, Boyle and junior Dan Cosgrove could all see time, depending on who's pitching.

Draicchio said junior varsity sophomores John Santon, John Folino and Steve Priscella would be called up to varsity if needed.

As for pitching, Quincy has plenty of arms. Boyle, a strong left-hander, is the staff's ace and will carry most of the load. Powers and Conley will get some starts with Tam, Muollo, Chiocchio, Ritchie, Cosgrove, Santon and Folino also in the mix as starters or relievers.

"We have a lot of guys that can throw, which is nice to have," Draicchio said. "Boyle, already an all-star in two other sports, is one of the top pitchers in the league. If he's on, there are not too many teams that can beat him."

"We're solid with pitching," he added. "We're going to need to improve on hitting and we're going to have to be able to throw people out. We started to come around late last year. The key is to keep the guys focused. We feel we have a shot at the tournament this year."

'Stronger' Quincy Opens Season Today

GIRLS' SOFTBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School softball team believes its breakout season last spring ended prematurely.

Head coach Mike Sedar expected his team to make the tournament but he also expected it to do some damage while there. After winning 14 games to qualify for the first time in 12 years, the Presidents drew a blank in the first round against Randolph.

"It was a little disappointing because we thought we could've went deeper," Sedar said. "They were a team we could've beat."

To better prepare the team for the postseason, Sedar has scheduled tougher non-league competition. Instead of the Dedhams and Plymouth Souths, which it outscored by a combined 52-10 in four games, Quincy will take the field against Framingham, 15-5 last year, and Cardinal Spellman, a perennial contender, twice each in its 18-game schedule.

"We're much stronger than last year but we're playing a stronger schedule," Sedar said. "I wouldn't be surprised if we were 15-3 or 9-9. I've loaded up on some really tough non-league games. I didn't want a soft schedule."

Right off the bat, Quincy will encounter a new opponent when it opens the season against Framingham today (Thursday) at 3:45 p.m. at Pageant Field.

And the team that steps onto the field this afternoon will look similar to last year's club. Quincy returns 12 of 14 players from a year ago and almost all of its starters — the lone exception being all-star second baseman and league batting champion Michelle Pilalas.

Powered by strong pitching and defense last year, Sedar believed the one area needing improvement was hitting. And, between the off-season weight training and adjustments at the plate, he already sees noticeable results.

"I think one area of improvement we needed to make was hitting," Sedar said. "We've shortened our swing; it's more of a college swing, a hands-to-ball approach. That's why we've been pulverizing the ball right now."

Sedar would also like to see better and more aggressive running on the base paths.

"Overall our mindset of speed has to change," he said. "I don't think we'll ever be burners but we can be quicker. We have to go after that extra base."

Junior pitcher Rachel Sorensen, who received most of the starts last year, will again shoulder much of the load as the staff's ace. Senior quad-captain Stacey Andrew will provide her rest as the No. 2 starter.

Defensively, the Presidents should be nifty with the glove once again. Around the infield are sophomore Rebi Sorensen at third, senior quad-captain Shannon Paine at shortstop, freshman Leanna Lam at second, senior quad-captain Liz Campbell at first and junior catcher Rose Bell behind the plate. In the outfield, sophomore Katie Walsh is in left, senior quad-captain Diane Gilbody patrols center field and Andrew rests in right.

Coming off the bench are senior Jen Gropp, junior Katie Markham, sophomores Marissa Powers and Alysia DiMuzio, and freshman Courtney Hall.

"This is the strongest team I've had here, one through 14," Sedar said. "We have the strongest pitching, the most hitting and the strongest defense since I've been here. It's a pretty strong ballclub this year."

Golf Tournament May 21 To Benefit Autism Center

The Autism Center of the South Shore, Inc., Quincy, will hold its first annual golf tournament Wednesday, May 21, at Braintree Municipal Golf Course.

The tourney will be a Florida Scramble with a 7:30 a.m. shotgun start. Registration will begin at 7 a.m.

Entry fee is $100, which includes greens fee, cart, luncheon and shirt. Individual and team prizes will be awarded at the luncheon to be held at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 875 Washington St., Braintree.

There will be a hole-in-one contest for the chance to win a brand new Volkswagen Beetle courtesy of Quirk Auto Dealerships.

There is an opportunity for hole ($100) and tournament ($500) sponsorships. Raffle donations are also welcomed.

Proceeds from the tournament will support the development of much needed social support groups, and assist with the expansion of the center's sibling workshop program in addition to enhancing its reference library.

For more information or to request registration forms, call 1-800-482-5788. Only the first 144 golfers will be accepted.

Babe Ruth World Series Committee Fundraiser April 11 At Sons Of Italy

The Quincy Babe Ruth World Series Committee will hold a fund-raiser Friday, April 11, to defray the costs of hosting the 2003 14-year-old Babe Ruth World Series.

The event will be held at the Quincy Sons of Italy Hall from 7 p.m. to midnight and will feature music, a buffet, raffles and a cash bar.

Tickets cost $15 per person and can be purchased at the Quincy Sons of Italy Hall. Those interested in buying tickets can see Marie weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. or John on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Twelve teams will compete in the world series from Aug. 15-23 at Adams Field. Teams from eight regions throughout the country, Italy, eastern Massachusetts, Weymouth and Quincy will vie for the world series title. The Italian National Team is sponsored by the Sons of Italy.

Tournament ickets go on sale this month or early May.

Archbishop Williams High Golf Tournament April 14

The second annual Archbishop Williams Golf Tournament will be held Monday, April 14, at the Pembroke Country Club.

The event will begin with a 1:30 p.m. shotgun start. Cost is $100 for individuals and $375 for foursomes. Proceeds benefit the school.

LIFE IN THE SLOW LANE

While there is much discussion and legislation surrounding driving too fast, it should also be pointed out that driving too slow also has its perils. Consider the driver who is driving ten miles per hour below the speed limit and is not driving in the right-hand lane. In fast-moving traffic, the slow-moving vehicle can be an outright obstruction, causing panic stops or unexpected lane changes. In addition, slow drivers often cause frustration among faster-moving drivers, which can lead to road rage. Most states have minimum speed laws, but the standard is often vague. It is left to the driver, then, to understand the importance of observing the speed limit and not impeding the flow of traffic.

Driving too fast or too slow is dangerous. Please don't be a safety hazard. Your safety is our concern. Our team at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO has earned a wonderful reputation from our many satisfied customers. We are your local full service auto repair shop and take pride in our workmanship and the service we offer. Stop in and visit us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. Open: Mon. - Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: On an expressway with three lanes, drivers who are content doing the speed limit might find the middle lane to be their best position.

Spotlight On Health & Fitness

Knowing The Difference Between Acid Reflux and Heartburn

An estimated 10 to 20 million people in the United States suffer from gastroesophageal reflux disease (GERD), although many mistake their symptoms for signs of heartburn, a common ailment that causes a burning sensation under the breastbone after eating or at night.

But if heartburn occurs more than just occasionally, if may be GERD. This condition is attributed to a malfunction of the valve-like tissue connecting the esophagus and stomach, and in severe cases, may result in ulcers and esophageal bleeding and inflammation. GERD has also been shown to be a risk factor for cancer at a site where the esophagus and stomach join.

Despite popular belief, GERD is not brought on by certain foods nor does it occur more often among members of a family. It also has no relationship to occupation, income, race or social status. But clear evidence does exist showing those who are overweight often have higher rates of GERD or more severe symptoms.

The good news for GERD sufferers, said Lee Kaplan, M.D., Ph.D., director of the MGH Weight Center in Massachusetts General Hospital, is that the condition can be treated. For overweight GERD sufferers, a weight-loss program is usually recommended. Dr. Kaplan said, "Changes in diet and exercise that correct a person's weight are the first steps in treatment, but these measures may not completely correct the problem."

Over-the-counter antacids can also provide relief, as well as more potent prescription drugs now available. There are surgical options if lifestyle changes and medication are insufficient.

"If you have acid reflux and it does not get better with medication, then surgery is usually recommended," said Dr. Kaplan.

The most common surgery used to treat acid reflux is a procedure in which the sphincter that closes the stomach from the esophagus is "tightened" to keep stomach acid and partially digested food from flowing back from the stomach. But Dr. Kaplan cautions that this procedure has proven less effective for overweight patients.

Another surgical procedure used to treat GERD, which also induces weight loss, is a gastric bypass – the same operation successfully performed on television personality Al Roker of NBC's "The Today Show."

According to Dr. Kaplan, people who suffer from acid reflux should see their doctor for treatment that can prevent more serious complications later on.

Prevention Remains Key To Treating Back Pain

(NU) – Every year employees across the United States cost American businesses an estimated $100 billion in work-related stresses such as back pain, eye strain, headaches and neck ashes.

In fact, back problems are second only to the common cold in the number of sick days taken by workers.

According to the American Osteopathic Association, depending on the cause, back pain can occur in different areas of the back while inflicting different types and degrees of pain.

Back pain can occur as a result of bad personal health habits and personal risk factors such as smoking, excessive weight gain, lack of exercise, lack of flexibility and unnecessary strain, according to the AOA.

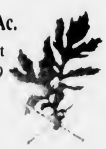
Some patients may experience the occasional dull pain while others suffer from constant agonizing pain making even the simplest movements difficult. Either way, both types prohibit people from completing normal daily activities.

While back pain can be very complex, difficult to diagnose and involve a wide variety of treatment options with various risks and benefits, osteopathic physicians (also known as D.O.s) suggest the following tips to prevent or minimize the occurrence of back pain:

• Practice good posture. Whether you sit at a desk typing on a computer or work construction, you should sit up straight, lift your legs, and avoid awkward bending and twisting.

• Refrain from excessive strenuous activities. Limit the amount of time spent performing heavy manual labor and participating in strenuous sports.

• Consider all your options. After examining a patient with chronic back pain, a physician can determine if surgery, medication or other forms of treatment may solve the problem. In some instances, muscle relaxers or pain relievers may help to ease the pain. In other cases, surgery might be needed to repair damaged muscle or tissue.



Some doctors of osteopathic medicine recommend that patients try osteopathic manipulative treatment. This includes the D.O. using his or her hands to examine the back and other parts of the body, such as joints, tendons, ligaments and muscles, for pain and restriction during motion that could signal an injury or impaired function.

Regardless of the method of treatment your physician chooses for your situation, practicing healthy habits and taking preventative measures will reduce your chances of suffering from back pain whether you are 5 years old or 75 years old.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

BEFORE THE FIRST TOOTH ARRIVES

Parents should start looking after their children's teeth even before the first tooth erupts. Use gauze or a soft, damp washcloth to clean an infant's gums. Gently wipe and massage the gums after feeding and right before bedtime. When teeth begin to erupt, brush with a pea-size amount of toothpaste on the toothbrush and begin flossing. Remember, too, that a condition called "nursing bottle mouth" can be caused by improper feeding methods. Sugar in formulas and juices can mix with plaque, causing acid to form that attacks tooth enamel. If not removed with brushing, this acid can attack teeth within twenty minutes of feeding. And never allow an infant to fall asleep with a bottle in his or her mouth.

It makes good sense to start preventive measures against dental disease as soon as possible. When was the last time you had a complete dental exam? We make a thorough evaluation of existing and potential problems. Nothing is more economical than regular checkups. Small developing problems can be corrected before they become serious problems. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Call us today at 617-479-6220 to schedule a convenient appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. When babies fall asleep, there is reduced saliva flow in their mouths, making it easier for sugary liquids from bottles to pool around teeth and cause delay.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Someone once said, "A ship in a harbor is safe, but that is not what ships are built for." . . . No ship ever left its harbor, but what its mariners were taking a chance - a chance that their skills were more potent than the stormy waves.

For that matter, we would never have had a country if there had not been brave, adventurous souls who were willing to take a chance to see if there really was "a pot of gold at the rainbow's foot." In taking this chance. . . using their opportunities. . . they founded and helped make a nation. . . Charles F. Kettering put it this way - "There will always be a frontier where there is an open mind and a willing hand."

What do you want most out of life? Take a chance on going after it. "Set sail gallantly." And make the most out of your life and your talents and your opportunities. You are at the helm of the ship of your life. . . and only by taking a chance - well-thought out in advance - can you make "port at the rainbow's foot."

"There is no security on this earth. There is only opportunity." -- General Douglas MacArthur

Richard W. Carlisle, 87

Retired Patriot Ledger Editor

RICHARD CARLISLE

A memorial service for Richard W. Carlisle, 87, of Quincy, a retired Patriot Ledger editor, was held March 27 at Covenant Congregational Church.

He died March 24 at home of congestive heart failure.

A Quincy native, Mr. Carlisle graduated from Quincy High School in 1934 and attended Brewster Free Academy, the Bentley School of Accounting and Boston University.

He joined the Ledger staff as night editor in 1941. He left the newspaper for a stint with the Army as a warrant officer during World War II.

When he returned to the Ledger in 1945, he worked as a city editor, news editor and associate editor over the next 34 years, retiring in 1979.

Mr. Carlisle worked for four years at his family's hotel in Wolfeboro, N.H., and for another year as a printer before joining the Ledger.

In the summer of 1940, he was editor of the Mount Washington Daily News, a four-page paper printed at the summit of Mount Washington in New Hampshire, 6,288 feet above sea level. He was fond of saying that he once held the "top newspaper post east of the Mississippi."

After retiring from the Ledger, he worked for four years in the marketing department of the Quincy Co-operative Bank. He also spent time editing the first 12 issues of "Quincy History," a Quincy Historical Society publication.

He was on a committee to commemorate the 150th birthday of the Ledger in 1987 and also wrote book reviews for the newspaper after retirement.

One of Mr. Carlisle's close friends was the late New England maritime historian and Ledger columnist Edward Rowe Snow of Marshfield. He edited many of the numerous books Snow wrote about true sea adventures.

An amateur Adams family scholar, he as a youth knew historian Brooks Adams, the grandson of President John Quincy Adams and great-grandson of President John Adams.

He is survived by his wife of 60 years, Virginia (Viner) Carlisle; a son, Alan Carlisle of Winchester and Stoddard, N.H.; three daughters, Katherine Carlisle, an editor at the Washington Post, Susan Carlisle of Brookline and Anne Church of Hyde Park, N.Y.; two sisters, Betty Hoffman of California and Helen Pinkham of New York; 10 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Burial was private in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Donations may be made to Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell Street, Quincy, or to Old Colony Hospice, 14 Page Terrace, Stoughton 02072.

Gerald B. Shidler, 64

Retired Raytheon Facilities Manager

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Resist a confrontation with that irksome person. The matter will soon blow over anyway. Meanwhile, channel your high Arian energy into areas with more positive potential.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The innovative Bovine finds a creative way to resolve a sensitive domestic problem by midweek. A former colleague returns with an intriguing business suggestion.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) An unexpected critical statement from someone you trust could catch you momentarily off guard. But you soon recover your equilibrium and rise to the challenge.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might feel you can handle a new project on your own. But advice from someone with experience could help you avoid possibly costly as well as time-consuming obstacles.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Waiting for others to make decisions is difficult for the take-charge Lion. But by week's end, you should hear news that will help you regain control of the situation.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your superjudgmental side could dominate the week unless you try to keep it in check. Otherwise you risk offending people, including some who are very close to you.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Expect more information to come out about that possible career shift. Meanwhile, your loving concern helps someone close to you get through a worrisome period.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Despite an occasional setback, workplace pressures should continue to ease through most of the week. This would be a good time to plan that long-delayed trip.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) The sage Sagittarian quickly recognizes an opportunity when she or he sees it, especially if it's one you've been planning for. Take aim and go for it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The Sea Goat's unique insight guides you as you check out a questionable situation. Your efforts should prove rewarding for you and your many supporters.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You might want to pace yourself a bit more. Rushing could lead to serious slip-ups. Take more time to check out details you might otherwise overlook.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The best way to resolve those remaining problems is to ask others for help. They'll be happy to do so, especially when you agree to share the credit for a job well done.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your natural gift for honest leadership earns you the respect and admiration of others.

NOVENA
PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never Known To Fail) "Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herin you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herin that you are my Mother. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3X). Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (3X). Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light roads so that I can attain my goal. You gave me divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all the things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine." The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days, the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted. Thank you. R.M.S. 4/3

represent Quincy Shipbuilding history. And she helped make it happen. She asked the navy to send us a Quincy-built ship for just that. And on Oct. 31, 1994, Margaret's idea became a reality. For the first time since her birth, the U.S.S. Salem was docked at the Fore River Shipyard.

Now bring yourself back to the present: 2003. The MWRA decided to sell the land which the Salem occupies. So now the Salem has to leave. But a small group of people decided to help keep the Salem in Quincy and are doing something about it as we speak. SOS, the distress signal for help, now stands for something new — Save Our Salem. We will not stand for this. No matter what we have to do or how we do it, the Salem will stay.

The first time I stepped foot on the Salem it was to see the Haunted Ship. Even though the Halloween stuff was really cool I was more interested in the ship itself. I thought it was incredible: the size, how clean it was and basically everything about it. And what made it so special was that I have always loved being on water, and I love sailing and the ocean. To me, the Salem almost felt like home.

What really touched my heart about the Salem was that I know our former gym teacher, John Bogan, loved sailing and loved the water also. So when I walked among its decks and walked through its doors, I almost felt like Mr. Bogan was there. I never felt so strongly about something before — until now.

The Salem is filled with sweat and memories of welders, sailors, workers and people who love the ocean. Now that the Salem may be leaving, I just want to scream.

Don't people see that if you take away the Salem you take away a piece of Quincy's history?

Don't you want your city to be unique, special, have something that's ours and no one else's? We need the Salem and the Salem needs us.

Don't send it away to be "mothballed" in some naval yard. Let it stay home — where it was built, where it belongs — Quincy, Mass., in the Fore River Shipyard.

A Life And Public Career Of 'Putting People First'

Paul Harold Honored Posthumously As Sun 'Citizen Of The Year'

The late Paul D. Harold was honored Sunday as The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year for 2002 and fondly remembered as "The Voice of the People" whom he always put first in a distinguished public service career spanning a quarter-century.

The award, the 18th annual, was presented posthumously at a reception at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center with approximately 150 guests attending.

Among them were city, state and county officials and representatives of civic and charitable organizations, family members and longtime friends and colleagues and past recipi-

But Reimbursement May Be Many Years Away

New High School On 'Most Urgent Needed' List

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy has been placed on a "most urgently needed projects" list for state reimbursement for a new Quincy High School but that 90 percent reimbursement is probably still years away.

State Education Commissioner David Driscoll notified the city Friday that the project is one of 28 given "preliminary approval" and now must approve funding by June 30 and produce other approvals and reports by Aug. 29.

After that, if successful, there are more than 300 projects already on the waiting list, Driscoll pointed out, many of the most urgent still delayed by the lack of funding from the state legislature.

"It's a tremendous opportunity for us," said Ron Mariano, who serves the dual role as a member of the School Committee and a State Representative. "A lot depends on what we as legislators are able to appropriate.

"If the economy is flat, it could take as much as 15 years to get reimbursed. In the best of times our reimbursement for the Marshall School took three years. Most of the time it takes from five to seven years.

"The question now is how long can we wait."

Heidi Perlman, spokeswoman for Driscoll, said Quincy is No. 9 on the list of 28 preliminary applicants that was trimmed from an original list of 63 applications. There are more than 300 ahead of the fortunate 28.

"If you're on the list you're guaranteed reimbursement," she said, "only you can't tell when. It depends on the Legislature and that depends on the economy. It could take several years."

Perlman said that in normal years as many as 80 applicants are reimbursed and taken off the list. Last year,

Public Hearing April 14

Phelan Seeking $10 Million Bond Issue For Open Space

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Mayor William Phelan is seeking public input regarding a $10million natural resources/open space initiative.

Phelan and members of the Open Space and Parks Improvement Committee will solicit public input on the plan April 14 at 6:30 p.m. in the City Council Chamber at City Hall.

But the mayor's attempt to seek a $10 million bond issue for the initiative was postponed Monday night by Council President Dan Raymondi.

Raymondi objected to the proposal, saying the administration's plan does not outline how the city will pay for the initiative.

"Approving this plan would be the equivalent to giving the administration a blank check," said Raymondi. "There is no plan. Surely, it would do a great public service to provide a spending plan for a $10 million bond issue."

Phelan said he was "disappointed" with Raymondi's move.

"Holding up this initiative with a procedural mechanism does not appear to serve a legitimate purpose," said Phelan.

Ward 4 Councillor Bryan Connolly called Raymondi's objection a "mistake."

"This is giving us just two weeks less to get it done. I think it's a mistake and not the best course of action to take."

But Raymondi said council rules allow any member to object to any matter that comes before the council for the first time. An objection postpones debate on an issue

Road Repair Plan Fails To Address Flooding Issues, Raymondi Says

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The Phelan administration's $3 million plan dedicated to repairing the roads and sidewalks does little to address the chronic problem of street flooding, according to Council President Dan Raymondi.

At last week's City Council Public Works Committee meeting, DPW Commissioner Jay Fink and City Engineer Fran Sandonato unveiled the administration's long-term plan to repair the city's streets and sidewalks. The $3 million project will be funded through various sources, such as CDBG funds, state Chapter 90 monies, and Water main funds.

But Raymondi criticized the plan, saying it does not tackle the ancillary issue of flooding.

"As a community we need to identify, analyze and address the problem," Raymondi said at the meeting."For those people who suffer chronic flooding, there is no more significant problem for them."

Raymondi said the Phelan administration and public works committee have not conducted a city-wide analysis of the problem or drafted solutions.

"We're starting to do that with sidewalk and road repairs, but the lack of specificity on the tragic issue of flooding is troubling," said Raymondi. "There is absolutely no sensitivity by this administration or by this commissioner to the problem."

Fink took exception to Raymondi's comments and said the Phelan administration is well aware of the flooding problems in the city.

"What it boils down to is the allocation of funds," said Fink. "What funds are available to do what work. As with anything else, there is a competition for limited funds. When funding becomes available I'm sure the mayor will bring it down, " he said.

In the meantime, Fink said the department will be seeking "quick fixes" and other ways to alleviate flooding, such as opening manholes and running cameras underground to locate clogged pipes.

"If there are any minor fixes or quick fixes in the short term, we will try to do that and make sure we have all the capacity to drain those areas," said Fink.

He said the DPW continues to deploy crews and pumping equipment to alleviate flooding.

But Raymondi said that response was inadequate.

"The people in my Ward and Ward 4 and other areas which suffer through chronic flooding want an answer. We deserve an answer," he said.

"I am assuming that flood conditions on roadways is not that healthy for the long term viability of a roadway either, so it may make some long term maintenance sense as well," said Raymondi.

He said there are funding mechanisms available - such as Quarry Hills, bond issues and the budget - to analyze and solve the problem.

"We hear the same rhetoric - how there's not enough money or there's competing resources, "he said. "The taxpayers deserve a response that the city has reviewed their problem, it has merit, it can be repaired, and during this construction season they can expect the city to address the problem."

Fink said the city has already studied and proposed solutions for troubled areas, such as Franklin St., Penn's Hill and Sixth Ave. It would cost the city millions of dollars to address all flooding areas, he said.

POW Flag Placed In Council Chamber

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Reminding residents of the realities of war, a POW flag has taken its place alongside the American flag and city emblem in the city council chamber.

At the request of Council President Dan Raymondi, Henry "Hank" Bradley, director of Veterans Services, placed a black POW flag in the council chamber Monday night.

The flag, which is the version approved by the League of Families and contains a depiction of a guard tower and barbed wire, will serve as a grim reminder for those who attend the meetings or view them on television, Bradley said.

"We wanted to place a POW flag in the council chamber so that we are all reminded of the plight of the POWs and their loved ones," said Bradley. "We owe it to the families who never knew what happened to their loved ones."

In addition, Raymondi asked Bradley to provide a Blue Star Banner for the chamber.

"People who are watching will be constantly reminded of the soldier in the battlefield and those who are prisoners of war," said Raymondi. "As we deal with local issues there are others who are in harm's way. It is important that we recognize that and this flag and banner accomplishes that."

Blue Star Banners were displayed in front windows during World War I and II to show a family's pride in their loved ones serving in the military. Each banner contains blue stars to signify the number of family members on active duty.

Bradley said it may take a few weeks to fulfill Raymondi's request for a banner because the company that makes them is backlogged with orders. After satisfying the requests of Quincy families, Bradley said he hopes to hang one in the council chamber.

He said nationwide more than 150,000 requests have been placed for Blue Start Banners.

In addition, Bradley said he will work with Councillor Frank McCauley to draft a council resolution seeking to make the POW flag into a stamp with the U.S. Postal Service.

VETERANS SERVICES Director Henry "Hank" Bradley stands alongside the POW/MIA flag that was placed in the City Council chambers on Monday night. The black and white flag joins the city flag and emblem. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Noble

Egg & I License Transfer Approved

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board granted the transfer of the common victualer license from Domenic Mignosa, owner of The Egg & I to Sean Toland.

The restaurant located at 853 Hancock St. is owned by Eastern Nazarene College.

Toland, who is also part owner of the Wheelhouse Diner in North Quincy, had already began working at the restaurant since the Mignosas closed on April 1.

He said he will spend more time at The Egg & I because the Wheelhouse Diner is an established one since he purchased it in 1998

Toland said he will keep the name and the hours the same which are from 5 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Sundays.

Board chairman Joseph Shea questioned Toland about the handicapped spaces available after receiving a complaint from a customer who said there were no parking spaces left the day he was dining at the eatery. Toland said he has since put two signs on posts in the parking lot.

Asks For Extension Of Lease

Council Backs Movement To 'Save Our Salem'

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Buoyed by the emotional pleas of Broad Meadows students, the City Council Monday night passed a resolution backing the "Save Our Salem" movement.

By an 8-0 vote, the council backed a resolution drafted by Council President Dan Raymondi asking the MWRA to extend the lease on the USS Salem and allow the parties to continue negotiations in the hope that the Shipbuilding museum may stay in its present location. Ward 6 Councillor Joe Newton voted "present" on the resolution.

The MWRA has decided not to renew its lease with the USS Salem. The 10-year lease expires on June 30, 2003.

About 10 students from Broad Meadow Middle School attended the meeting and asked the council for support. The students have formed an after-school organization called "Save Our Salem," or S.O.S.

"Unless someone does something a piece of our shipbuilding history will float away to be mothballed in some faraway naval shipyard and probably scrapped," said Broad Meadows student Melissa Walter, 13. "The Salem also represents a fine history of shipbuilding at the Fore River shipyard. Please don't take away this part of Quincy's history."

Taylor Dennehey, 12, told the council: "We owe it to the Salem to preserve its legacy and ensure its future."

To bolster their movement, students obtained 1471 signatures from area residents registering their support. They rolled out the 30-foot list of signatures on the floor of the council chambers.

Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley praised Margaret McLean LaForest and Ron Adams -the catalysts behind the organization – for their efforts in fighting to keep the Salem in the city. LaForest helped launch the movement to bring the Salem back to Quincy 15 years ago when she was a Broad Meadows student.

"We do not wish to let the Salem sail away," LaForest told the council.

Thomas Largey, the mayor's director of operations, said: "The educational mission of the Salem is a good thing. It is the mayor's fervent wish that an economic model does evolve where by it can continue that very important mission."

Raymondi urged Mayor William Phelan to sign the resolution. A copy of the resolution will be sent to the MWRA Executive Director and Board of Directors, as well as the U.S. Congressional delegation and state elected officials, Raymondi said.

He said he will work with Rep. Ron Mariano in an attempt to set up a meeting between the students and MWRA officials.

Michael Condon, executive director of the U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum, said the SOS movement has generated interest throughout the country.

"There are people all over the country who wish to ensure that this ship doesn't go anywhere," he told The Quincy Sun.

Condon said if the MWRA chooses not to renew the lease then the Museum would become a tenant at-will. The Museum leases the dock and parking lot at the shipyard site.

The Coast Guard, EPA and Navy would have to sign off on any plan that forces the Salem out of the area, Condon said.

"We believe that we will be here for the long term," he said.

BROAD MEADOWS STUDENT Taylor Dennehey, 12, makes a personal plea to the City Council Monday night as part of the Save Our Salem (SOS) movement. Waiting their turn to speak are fellow students Hilary Mills, Kasey Tapper, Kerri McHugo, Stephanie Mariano, Melissa Walter and Broad Meadows Middle School Language Arts teacher Ron Adams, who advises the SOS students. Also pictured at left is Margaret McLean LaForest, who as a Broad Meadows student in 1989 originated the idea of establishing a shipbuilding museum in Quincy.

Maher Trial Seen In May

Keating Pleads Guilty To City Hall Break-In

Daniel Keating, executive secretary to former Mayor James Sheets, in a surprise move, pleaded guilty Monday to his involvement in a City Hall break-in in December, 2001.

Keating, 30, entered a last-minute guilty plea in Norfolk County Superior Court in Dedham just before his trial was scheduled to begin on a felony breaking and entering charge.

Keating was fined $500 and placed on six months probation by Judge Malcolm Graham after an agreement had been reached by Keating's lawyer, Kevin Reddington, and special prosecutor George Jabour.

A trial date has not yet been set for Ralph Maher, city retired plumbing inspector who faces the same charge.

Jabour said Judge Graham has called a conference for April 30 so the trial probably will be in May.

Jabour said Keating and Maher broke into the Personnel Office at City Hall on a Saturday in December to steal some parts of Maher's file that were allegedly being sought by federal probers.

Sheets Closes Political Door

If you're wondering if Jim Sheets might try to recapture the mayor's office this year, you can stop.

He's not.

Even though there are people asking him and encouraging him to launch a comeback bid.

SHEETS

"No, I'm not going to run for mayor," he says. "I've been there, done that. I was mayor 12 years and I think I did a pretty good job."

Sheets, who served six terms as the city's mayoral longevity champ under Plan A, was derailed seeking a seventh term by Bill Phelan who shocked the political scene with a 17-vote margin upset in 2001 in Quincy's closest ever mayoral election.

There are a lot of people out there who would like to see a Phelan-Sheets rematch this year.

But, it's not to be.

"People have been calling me saying they want me to run," Sheets says. "I thank them and tell them I am not going to run."

He notes that his administration was one of "relative peace" with the city council and others.

"We were able to work together and get a lot done," he says. "There was a little disagreement now and then but not a lot of confrontation."

Sheets served 16 years as Ward 4 councillor and four as a state representative before moving into the mayor's office in 1990.

Now 68, he says:

"I want to get on with the rest of my life. I think I have some good years still ahead of me."

He is staying active these days.

He is a licensed broker with Condon & Walsh Real Estate, headed by Joanne Condon Walsh, a former city council colleague.

And he is now also a part-time consultant at his alma mater, Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston.

He is involved in the LEAD adult education program helping to define the needs of the business community in the South Shore and developing programs at the college to meet those needs.

"You might say I have come full circle at my alma mater," he notes.

Sheets grew up in Clarksville, PA, where his father, Harry, was a coal miner for 50 years. His two grandfathers and seven uncles were coal miners, too.

Young Jim Sheets seemed destined to follow in their coal-dust covered work boots. Until his mother, Pauline, and fate stepped in to change his life.

During the summer of 1952 between his junior and senior years in high school, fate brought a group of students from Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston to the Jefferson Church of the Nazarene Mrs. Sheets attended. The Quincy students were there to present a musical program and recruit students for ENC.

"My mother took an application, filled it out and along with my high school transcript sent it to ENC," says Sheets. "And unknown to me, I was accepted."

It wasn't until he graduated from high school that his mother told him he had been accepted. And she then nudged him to the Wollaston campus in 1953.

He arrived by bus and remembers asking where the ocean was.

"I walked down Sachem St. to Quincy Bay," he recalls. "It was the first time I ever saw the ocean. I had two hot dogs at Powers on the beach and went back to my room."

When he paid his first semester bill including books, he had $37 left. He worked the rest of his way through college by taking odd jobs.

And, if fate brought him to ENC and Quincy, fate was waiting for him when he got here.

For it was here he met his wife, Joann, also a student at ENC.

Joann once said, "The minute I saw him, I knew he was the one."

And, she was right.

They have been happily married 43 years.

Sheets has ruled himself out of this year's mayoral race. What about city council at-large? There's been speculation he might follow former Mayor Frank McCauley into the city council.

But Sheets shoots that down. "I'm really not interested in going from the mayor's office to the council."

He sounds like he is ready for political retirement.

He's had 32 years in elective office -- 12 as mayor, 16 as ward councillor and four as state representative.

"That's a long time," he says. "It's a little difficult to rekindle the old fire. I really have no plans of going back into the political arena."

It appears he has closed the door on one of Quincy's most notable political careers.

BUCKLEY

Brian Buckley of Sims Rd., Wollaston, confirms he is "seriously thinking" of running for the city council.

"Either at-large or for the Ward 5 seat," he says.

Buckley, a life-long Quincy resident, has been coordinator of intergenerational programs for Sheriff Michael Bellotti since last October.

He has been a long-time familiar figure in Quincy municipal posts.

Prior to going to the sheriff's department, he was athletic director at North Quincy High School, director of the Quincy Council on Aging (18 years) and Park Department assistant director.

"I have thought of running before," Buckley says. "But there was always a question of potential conflict, holding elective office and serving in municipal positions. But now that question no longer exists. And I am now seriously considering being a candidate this year."

WARD 5 COUNCILLOR Doug Gutro had been hearing reports of fox sightings around Black's Creek but hadn't see one himself until the other day.

GUTRO

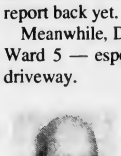
That was when his Marlboro Street neighbor, Jim Ryan, new exalted ruler of the Quincy Elks, called him:

"Doug, look out the window! There's a fox in your driveway!"

Doug looked and sure enough there was a red fox.

"He was trembling and looked sick," Gutro says. "Looked like he could be rabid."

Just at that moment, a police cruiser pulled up.



And that impressed some neighbors who saw the police cruiser and credited Gutro with quick action.

Actually, says Gutro, someone else must have seen the fox in the area and had called the police.

Anyway, Animal Control corralled the fox and took him to a Wildlife Center in Hingham for testing. No report back yet.

Meanwhile, Doug is keeping an extra sharp eye on Ward 5 — especially on Black's Creek — and his driveway.

BURKE

GEORGE BURKE underwent surgery at Milton Hospital last Thursday to have his right knee replaced.

The former district attorney, councillor and state representative "is coming along nicely" and hopes to be home by the end of the week.

The knee, he says, was showing the wear and tear of his UMass-Amherst basketball days and many years of tennis.

He will be undergoing physical therapy and sidelined for awhile.

But he's already running his law office from the hospital and will from his home.

Up and at 'em, Trigger.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1915 postcard view of the Robertson or Greenleaf Block at the corner of Hancock and Granite Streets in Quincy Square. Built in 1876 this was the first brick business block erected in Quincy. It features two polished Quincy Granite columns at the main entrance. The Greenleaf Hotel, previously known as the Robertson Hotel, was located on the top three floors until a fire destroyed the roof and steeple leaving only the three story building there today. On the left is the Durgin and Merrill Block built shortly later in 1886. On the right down Granite Street is the old railroad bridge where the tracks passed overhead instead of under the roadway as the do they now.

What Happened To Rescue 1?

It is hard for me to believe and understand why, in such an insecure time as the one we live in today, that the City of Quincy would cut the Rescue 1 fire truck, a pivotal piece of department equipment, from service. By cutting Rescue 1, the city not only lost a valuable tool, we also lost the manpower of the three firefighters that operate this equipment.

Year after year, new buildings and homes are constructed in our communities and the city's landscapes get larger. Our population is growing at a fast pace, yet the city thinks that answers to our problem is to have less people protect its citizens.

I cannot imagine that the elderly in the senior high rises, the children in public schools, the business people in the expansive office complexes and our neighbors feeling any safer knowing that in the case of an emergency or fire, Rescue 1 will not be there to help out.

The City of Quincy needs to take a long hard look at how to better deal with recent budget cuts. Weakening our public safety in these volatile times is not the answer, nor should it ever be. I take small consolation knowing that my garden hose is in working condition, but I will not sleep comfortably at night till Rescue 1 is back on the street protecting us.

Make Brewer's Corner A Beautiful Gateway

Do you want to go to Quincy Center if you are on Route 128? Get off at Center St., proceed to Granite St., passing through Brewer's Corner.

Do you want to go to Quincy Center if you are on the expressway? Get off at Furnace Brook Parkway, turn right on Copeland St., to Brewer's Corner and Granite St.

What do you see? A dingy, dilapidated, dirty corner. Other streets have banners saying "Welcome to Quincy" – not Brewer's Corner. School crossings around the city shine with bright white lines – not Brewers Corner (even though students from Sterling Middle School and Lincoln-Hancock Elementary School use the five crosswalks at Brewer's Corner).

The area is included in the QCBPA, but no one talks to the business owners in the area. On the evening of March 19, Ward 4 Councillor Bryan Connolly held a meeting at 378 Granite St., through the graciousness of the Mannion's Family Restaurant. They opened the restaurant after hours and provided free refreshments.

I attended the meeting and was disappointed with the small turnout. However, those who were there were very enthusiastic and a business association was formed. If you wish to help revitalize Brewers Corner by adding your ideas to ours, please contact Bryan Connolly.

Citizens of Wards 3 and 4 should arise and show people that Brewer's Corner too, could become a beautiful gateway to historic Quincy.

Taxes Lesser Evil Than Casino Gambling

Regarding casino gambling in Massachusetts, I'm one of many who's very much against it. "Desperate times mean desperate measures" is the saying.

But I don't believe we're at a point of desperate times, and casino gambling is one desperate measure. We must continue to be creative and look/create other ways to raise money. Maybe taxes would have to be another way, but taxes are much the lesser evil compared to casino gambling.

Council Rejects Hillside School

This Week
1954
49 Years Ago

The City Council, flying in the face of popular opinion, voted 6-0 to eliminate the proposed Hillside School from a construction program, thus killing the School Committee's two-school plan.

Councillor David S. McIntosh made the motion that no school be built on the Hillside site and that a large school should be constructed at a location on Furnace Brok Parkway.

Councillor Carl W. Anderson seconded the motion and they were joined by Councillors David J. Crowley, Frank E. MacDonald, Alfred H. Helfrich and Amelio Della Chiesa. Councillor Edna B. Austin was out of town.

Att. Paul Duffey, a member of the School Committee, said a petition campaign by 10 taxpayers may be put together to obtain a court order forcing the council to approve construction of the school.

WOLLASTON MAN ACQUITTED

George D. O'Brien Sr. of Hillside Ave., Wollaston, was acquitted of complicity in the $681,700 armored car robbery in Danvers on March 25, 1952, by a jury that took an hour and 29 minutes to reach a verdict.

In an unprecedented move, Judge George S. Sweeney announced that he personally did not agree with the decision and he polled each of the 12 jurors asking if they had been intimidated. Each answered, "No, sir."

Judge Sweeney explained that Loring C. Briggs of Rutland, the original jury foreman, had been excused of service after he reported his wife was near collapse after receiving a threatening telephone call.

METER EXTENSION PROTESTED

Owners of the downtown Quincy theaters registered their opposition to a proposed ordinance before the City Counil that would extend the effective time of parking meters in the city from 6 p.m. to p.m. on all week nights.

"It will ruin my business," said Leonard Goldberg, one of the owners of the Adams Theater on School St.

"It will mean that theater patrons not only have to drop in the first coin, but they will also have to leave the theater every hour and drop in another"

Family Team Wins UNScrabble Tournament For Literacy

The Seegraber family, mother Edith and five daughters, emerged as the winners in the fifth annual UNScrabble fundraiser for the literacy fund at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

The team made up of Edith and daughters Claire, Jean, Rita, Lori and Carol constructed more words than any other team in the allotted 30 minutes playing time.

"Some of these folks play Scrabble every weekend," said Elaine Kline, manager of the Library's Literary Project. "The first place winners have come in first or second every year.

"Each year the number of players grows. UNScrabble is a fundraiser that offers people a lot of fun, great food and prizes — all for a good cause."

Prizes included three baskets of books to the three highest scoring teams. Ben & Jerry's donated a consolation prize to each player: a coupon for a free pint of their ice cream.

Roche Brothers supplied a cheese tray, Dunkin' Donuts provided a gift basket, Altrusa donated books, Scrabble logo cups and NSA post-its. Initial Scrabble pins were new, hot sellers this year.

State Street Bank had two teams of players and many of their employees supported the event with donations.

The tournament is sponsored by the Literary Volunteers of America-Quincy and Altrusa International Inc. of Quincy. Marilyn Batastini was emcee and Sue Duggan of Altrusa was head judge.

Benefit For Michael Cardarelli Friday At Weymouth Elks

A benefit fundraiser for Quincy native Michael Cardarelli, a 24-year-old man stricken with cancer, will take place tomorrow (Friday) from 7 to 11 p.m. at the Weymouth Elks, 1197 Washington St., Route 53, Weymouth.

The fundraiser was set up to assist Cardarelli, who is undergoing experimental chemotherapy. He has been battling cancer since 1995, when he was first diagnosed with a brain tumor. Just recently, Cardarelli was diagnosed with inoperable tumors.

Auctions, raffles, a DJ buffet and a cash bar will be available at the fundraiser. Admission is $15.

Cardarelli was born in Quincy and educated in Quincy schools. He was confirmed as a member of the Quincy Community Methodist Church in Wollaston.

He was an honors student at Weymouth High School, and he excelled in baseball and track.

A special fund has been setup to offset Cardarelli's healthcare costs. Anyone who wishes to contribute to the fund may contact Brenda Cardarelli at 781-337-1062, or send a contribution to The Michael Cardarelli Benefit Fund, Eastern Bank, 1150 Washington St., Weymouth, MA 02189.

Central Students Recognized For High SAT Scores

Ten eighth grade students from Central Middle School have been invited to the state's awards ceremony after scoring 600 or higher in either the verbal or math sections of the SATs.

They are: Christine Caples (630 math), Sarah Ellis (600 math), Sarah Esterquest (610 verbal), Emmanuel Filandrianos (610 math), Alicia Hemenway (610 math), Margaret Ho (610 math), Jessica Johnson (600 verbal, 650 math), Chance Miller (610 math), Julianne Ross (630 verbal) and Linda Zheng (650 verbal, 610 math).

Also, 90 7th grade students qualified for the Johns Hopkins University Talent Search because they scored in the 97th percentile or better on their SATs. As a result, they were invited to take the SATs as 8th graders.

Of those qualified, 27 of the 57 who chose to take the exam scored in the "distinction" category. These scores reflected at least a 504 on the verbal portion and a 516 on the math portion of the exam.

BEECHWOOD KNOLL ELEMENTARY School students will perform an original play entitled The Rhythem of the Prideland today (Thursday) and Friday, April 11 at 7 p.m. at the school, 225 Fenno St., Wollaston. For more information, call 617-984-7881.

Performances Thursday And Friday At 7 P.M.

Beechwood Knoll Students' Play To Benefit Orphans In Uganda

A cast of 90 students from grades two through five at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School in Quincy are performing an original play entitled The Rhythm of the Prideland.

Performances will be today (Thursday) and Friday at 7 p.m. at the school, 225 Fenno St., Wollaston.

Admission is free and seating is limited. A donation will be taken to support the orphans and families of Uganda who have been victimized by the AIDS epidemic.

The play is written in the African storytelling tradition. It is a creation story that tells the tale of how Obiajulu, a small but very brave elephant who was born in pure water from a seed from the Ancient Baobab Tree, saves Prideland from destruction.

Kwabena, that evil brute of an elephant, to prove his greatness has spent his time tearing down and destroying Prideland.

The play features a visit from Dross the Weasel who preys on the helpless creatures left behind after the elephants crushed their homes.

Shaida, the Spotted Peppermonk, can only sneeze "Achoo," to show her disapproval over the whole matter. Sansu the Wise Hawk knows how this great epic will end, but is leaving Obi to face the challenge all alone.

The performance comes to life with colorful African costumes and dance from the grade two students. Students from the Paige Academy in Boston, which is a black independent school, perform lively African rhythms.

The students present an inspiring message of goodness with humility triumphs over evil.

New High School On 'Most Urgent Needed' List

she said, the number removed was 20.

"More and more are added and fewer and fewer are taken off," she said.

Faxon Field, next door to the current Quincy High School, has been selected by the city as the site for the new school. After it is completed, the old high school building will be renovated and replace the century-old Central Middle School.

The city must pay construction costs up front and then wait for reimbursement. Mayor William Phelan said he plans to submit a financial package to the City Council this month in plenty of time for the Council to deliberate and vote before the June 30 deadline.

The city must also submit educational specifications, architectural designs, final cost estimates, certification of land ownership and regulatory approvals by Aug. 29.

"If a completed application is submitted and all current program requirements are met by that date," said Driscoll, "the project will receive final approval and will be placed on the waiting list."

The sticking point for Quincy is the fact that Faxon Field is a wetland and building on it will require permits from the Department of Environmental Protection and the Army Corps of Engineers.

The Army Corps has said they will need at least a year to file a report.

"Those projects which have received preliminary approval but which are unable to complete the application process by the above deadlines, will need to be resubmitted in a future application cycle," said Driscoll.

The problem is that Gov. Mitt Romney has instituted a moratorium on new project approvals, effective July 1, and the school building assistance program will not accept any new applications until it is lifted,

The moratorium will give the governor and the legislators to enact changes in the program which would then apply to new or recycled applications.

Meanwhile, Ronald Iacobucci, a candidate for the School Committee in the fall election, suggested in a letter top Mayor Phelan that he set up "a public process to identify an alternate site for the new Quincy High School."

Driscoll's decision, he wrote in a letter to the Mayor, "unfortunately still leaves some doubt as to the need to have a fully permitted project by the Aug. 29 deadline in order to qualify what may be the final round of 90 percent state reimbursement funds.

"Threatened with the loss of the 90 per cent money, it may be time for a reality check on the proposed site . . . especially given the uncertainty of whether some conditions need to be satisfied by the deadline or the ability for that matter to ever satisfy these conditions.

"It would be prudent to begin preparing for an alternative site, since the development of the proposed site . . . exceeds the threshold requirements for an EIR (environmental impact report), thus automatically triggering a full environment review, a process that can take an inordinate amount of time with an uncertain result.

"Failure to obtain 90 percent state reimbursement funds for the new Quincy High School would put the project in jeopardy . . ."

Quincy 2000 Offering Business Start-Up Seminars

The Quincy 2000 Corporation, Quincy's non-profit public/private partnership for economic development will again this year offer its successful two-evening seminar series to prepare South Shore entrepreneurs to start or acquire their own business.

The program kicks off on April 16 with the seminar, Business Fundamentals, which will focus on planning, financing, and sales and marketing. Then, the April 23 seminar, Understanding Financial Statements, will review the preparation and management implications of income and expense, balance sheet, and cash flow statements.

Both seminars will be held at Quincy 2000 offices, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy, and run from 6 to 9 p.m.

The seminars are of special value to people who are considering starting their own business or may have recently done so without adequate preparation and thos e who are purchasing or inheriting a business.

The program is taught by experts from South Eastern Economic Development Corp. and representatives from prospective financing sources will be available to answer questions.

A registration fee of $50 provides entrance to both seminars. Income-eligible Quincy residents may qualify for a full refund while the program is open to the general public.

Call 617- 847-1454 to register. Seating is limited.

17 Residents Receive Bentley Honors

Seventeen Quincy residents received honors for the fall semester at Bentley College in Waltham. They are:

President's List: Tsz Lam, Christine Look, Matthew Petit, Michael Trapilo.

Dean's List: Leia Grace Amarra, James Cantelli, Dianna Chan, WeiJun Chen, Cindy Chou, Nichole Foley, Kenny Leung, Katelyn O'Brien, Patrick Tam, Jennifer Wong, Shu Yang, Tommy Yuen, Ruijie Zhuo.

ART INSTRUCTORS from the Quincy Middle School meet Solomon Mojtabai of Solomon Collection and Fine Rugs for the announcement of a rug design contest for students. Contest Permits Students To Design An Actual Rug

One of the city's newest retailers has teamed up with the Quincy School-Community Partnership program in an effort to encourage young artists.

Solomon Mojtabai, owner of Solomon Collection and Fine Rugs, 809 Hancock St., designed a special project for students at the middle school level that will net experience for the artist and funds for the schools.

A graphic design competition, directed by individual school art instructors, is designed to produce winning selections for all over patterns that might be suitable as a rug design.

Once the selections have been made a final overall winner will be announced. Then the particular design will be taken overseas by Mojtabai to be produced in an actual rug.

The winning design will be returned to Quincy as a fine finished rug and donated by Mojtabai to be won or purchased in a manner to be announced later.

The proceeds will go to the Quincy School-Community Partnership to fund a school activity or a special need while the young artist has the thrill of seeing his or her work become a reality.

Arrangements for the project were finalized by Arthur Keough, executive director for the Partnership, a program designed to make school kids aware that there are people outside the schools interested in their education.

Council Lifts Age Restriction At Highlands Apartments

The city council Monday night voted unanimously to allow the owners of the Highlands at Faxon Woods to drop the age restriction and open up the facility to the general public.

Acting as a special permit-granting authority, the council dropped age restriction at the owner's request.

Previously, the 196-unit complex was open to people ages 55 and older only. To date, approximately 33 apartments have been rented, according to Attorney Dennis Harrington, who represents the owner, Roseland Management Company.

The plan also sets aside 20 units for affordable housing.

Residents who plan on staying in their current apartment would receive a one-month credit when a new lease is signed. Those who wish to stay and move to another apartment within the facility are being offered a $1500 moving stipend.

Councillor Joseph Finn praised the owner for accommodating existing tenants and allowing some affordable housing units.

The amended permit will allow the owner to construct 80 additional parking spaces to accommodate new tenants.

The council held a public hearing on the issue last month, with most residents coming out in favor of the proposal.

PETER JAE (right), president of the Chinese Cultural Development and Promotion Council, Inc., presents a Lion Dance costume to Dr. Allan Osbourne, principal of the Snug Harbor Community School. Inside the costume are Justin Nguyen (head) and Martin Wong (tail). The development and promotion council, with the assistance of sponsors Central Real Estate, Quincy Rotary Club and Wingon Real Estate Co. of Quincy purchased 10 Chinese Lion Heads for schools in the Boston area. Last year, a Lion Head was give to Sacred Heart School and the Parker School. This year, Lion Heads were given to Montclair School, Central Middle School and the Snug Harbor Community School as well as schools in Brookline and Lexington. Jae said the costume is intended to enrich their respective neighborhoods with a sense of cultural diversity through Chinese lion dance performances.

Bellotti, Sheriffs Discuss Security With Kennedy

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti met with Sen. Edward Kennedy and the Massachusetts Congressional delegation in Washington last week to discuss the sheriffs' role in homeland security, prison inmate reintegration and senior citizen safety.

Bellotti joined 11 other sheriffs from Massachusetts in meeting the Congressmen and touring the Supreme Court as part of the National Sheriff's Association annual mid-winter conference which included lawmen from all parts of the country.

"It's a great boost to know that our congressional leaders support the public safety efforts being made by sheriffs here in Massachusetts and all across the United States," said Bellotti

"I'm grateful to Sen. Kennedy for hosting the meeting and acknowledging the important work sheriffs are doing in their communities."

The conference consisted of working seminars that included law enforcement training, drug prevention, youth programs, elder services, domestic violence prevention and juvenile justice.

The Norfolk County Sheriff's Office is a member of the Metropolitan Law Enforcement Council (MetroLEC), a consortium of 39 law enforcement agencies that provide regional support services and emergency response to the communities they serve.

Former Quincy Man's Book Highlights Thoroughbreds

"Winner's Circle," a book about thoroughbred race horses by former Quincy resident Bruce Paquette, has hit the bookstores.

Paquette writes under the pseudonym of Antonio Pinzari, his grandfather's name.

The book teaches how to identify horses that are reaching their best racing cycle. It includes more than 40 published results from 11 different race tracks across the nation.

It is published by A & A Printing and retails at $24.95.

Paquette, a Quincy native, is a Navy veteran who was also been a Weymouth police officer and a Hawaiian businessman before moving to his current home in Florida in 1979.

Marine Alicia Waters Joins Operation Enduring Freedom

Marine Corps Reserve Lance Corporal Alicia D. Waters, daughter of Susan E. Waters of Quincy, was recently called to active duty in support of Operation Enduring Freedom.

She is assigned to Military Police Company A, 4th Force Service Support Group (FSSG), home-based in Lexington, Ky.

Waters' unit deployed as part of a larger Marine force currently repositioning in Southwest Asia for possible future contingency operations in support of the global war on terrorism.

Free Car-Seat Check-Up At Executive Auto Glass April 29

Executive Auto Glass, 165 Quincy Ave., Quincy, and SAFE KIDS Coalition will sponsor a Car-Seat Check-Up Tuesday, April 29 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The free car safety check-ups are by appointment only. For reservations, call Don or Michelle at 617-471-5551.

Certified technicians will inspect and adjust car seats or replace any car seats that don't meet safety guidelines set by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

The NHTSA reports that as many as four out of five car seats are installed improperly or used incorrectly, while proper installation and use can reduce the risk of death by as much as 71 percent for infants.

According to NHTSA, safety guidelines, which are frequently violated, include the following: infants until at least 1-year-old and at least 20 pounds should be in rear-facing car seats; and children over 40 pounds, but under five years old, should ride in booster seats.

"We are sponsoring this car-seat check-up so parents in Quincy can ensure that their children will be secure with properly installed car seats," said Ed Beatrice, president of Executive Auto Glass. "We sponsored a car-seat check-up last year at the Quincy location and had an overwhelming response. We're happy to provide this service for our community."

Executive Auto Glass has seven service centers in Massachusetts. For more information, call 800-NEW-GLASS.

The SAFE KIDS Coalition is the local chapter of the National Safe Kids Campaign. To contact the organization, call 617-534-5197, or call the NHTSA Auto Safety Hotline at 800-424-9393.

Citywide Parents' Council Education Forum April 14

The Quincy Citywide Parents' Council will host an education forum Monday, April 14, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Broad Meadows Middle School auditorium.

State and local elected officials have been invited to discuss the future of Quincy public school education.

This in an opportunity for residents to ask them about the current economic situation, its impact on the city's budget for the coming year and the resulting consequences for the Quincy public schools.

The council invites and encourages all parents of school children and interested persons to attend.

David McCarthy To Be Honored By B.C. High

Dave McCarthy of Quincy, a program manager at General Dynamics, will be honored by his alma mater, Boston College High School, with the St. Ignatius of Loyola Ward Friday, April 11, at the school McNeice Pavilion.

The St. Ignatius Award recognizes those alumni whose work exemplifies B. C. High's mission of leadership in service to God and to others, McCarthy, Class of 1979, is one of three recipients of the prize in 2003.

McCarthy and his wife, Rosanne, have built a family of seven children by adoption, many of whom have serious medical disabilities. Three of them are siblings the State Department of Social Services did not want to separate.

Criteria for the St. Ignatius Award include high moral character, selfless service without expectation of material reward and a significant service to the religious community that shows the individual lives by his convictions.

Others to receive the award April 11 include the Rev. Ray Helmick of Chestnut Hill, a noted mediator, social worker Tom Aglio of Orlando, Fla., and the late Paul Hunter of Scituate, a teacher and the first to receive the award posthumously.

Long Term Care Workshop April 22

The Quincy Council on Aging's Department of Elder Services will hold a free long term care informational workshop Tuesday, April 22, from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at Marina Place Assisted Living.

Judy Wood will speak and answer questions.

For more information or to reserve a seat, call 617-376-1245.

until the next council meeting.

Phelan indicated that part of the plan could be paid for with the city's room occupancy tax, which was proposed by Raymondi and approved by the council in 2000. The tax took effect in July, 2001, with a one percent tax levied on the price of every hotel, motel or inn room. The progressive tax jumped to two percent last July. The tax rises annually until it hits a cap of four percent.

Phelan said city ordinances provide that 85 percent of the money from the tax can be used for such purposes as tree plantings, acquiring land for open space, conservation and construction and maintenance of recreational areas.

The committee has made a number of recommendations on how to spend the $10 million bond for open space and recreation. Among the recommendations:

• Using $1 million to provide necessary matching funds for an Army Corps. of Engineers wetlands restoration project at Broad Meadows;

• Using $2 million to pay for required cleanup costs at the Highpoint site, of which 22 acres will be given to the city;

• Installing a new track and synthetic turf field and constructing a restroom for the disabled at Veterans Memorial Stadium;

• Repaving the Pageant Field parking lot;

• Opening trails at Merrymount Park;

• Overhauling various areas of Adams Field, including bleachers, the lighting system, restrooms and irrigation system.

Tours Of First Parish Church To Begin April 14

Tours of the First Parish Church, the Church of the Presidents where John Adams and John Quincy Adams and their wives are buried, will begin Monday, April 14.

The tours, which cost $3 a person, are held in conjunction with the National Park Service, which sends its visitors to the church. They're held seven days a week from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"We're already booked heavily by college groups," said tour guide Arthur Ducharme, who has been conducting the tours for eight of the 15 years they have been available.

Survey: Quincy Voters Support Smoke-Free Workplaces

Almost two-thirds of all Quincy voters prefer smoke-free workplaces, bars and restaurants, according to a new survey.

Conducted by the Blue Hills Tobacco Free Community Mobilization Network, a program within Bay State Community Services, the survey questioned 1010 active registered voters in December and January.

About 64 percent of survey respondents said they wanted smoke-free workplaces, including restaurants and bars, while 24 percent said they wanted smoking allowed.

Also, 81 percent of respondents said they believed second-hand smoke causes health problems.

There appears to be good support for Quincy going smoke-free, according to the survey.

The Blue Hills Tobacco Free Community Mobilization Network is attempting to gather support for smoke-free workplaces.

JEAN WOOD, Paul Harold's fifth-grade teacher at the Nathaniel Hunting School, and her sister, Fossati, both of whom nominated him for the award, admire a portrait at the reception. Wood came all the way from Santa Cruz, Calif., where she now lives, to attend the reception. Her sister lives in Quincy.

ents of the award.

Tributes came from Mayor William Phelan, Senator Michael Morrissey, City Council President Dan Raymondi, Councillor and former Mayor Frank McCauley, Joyce Baker, president of the Quincy Historical Society, and Michael Linnane, a close friend and campaign worker.

Quincy Sun publisher Henry Bosworth, a longtime friend, noting Harold's career as a city councillor, council president, state senator and, all too briefly as Norfolk County Register of Deeds, which was cut short by his death last Aug. 12, said:

"Paul never lost the common touch. He was ever loyal to his family, friends and constituents. He spoke out and stood his ground on issues — no matter how controversial.

"His life and public service were founded on high principles and putting people first. He was the 'Voice of the People.'"

Bosworth presented the award to Joseph R. Harold, III, of Scituate, a nephew, who accepted it on behalf of the Harold family.

The inscription reads:

"Presented Posthumously To

"Paul D. Harold

"Who Dedicated His Life, Public Service

"And Talents to Serving His Community

"With Integrity And The Highest Principles

"While Always Putting The People First."

Because of Harold's deep love and respect for Quincy's history, the Harold family, The Quincy Sun and the Quincy Historical Society added an extra touch of honor.

The plaque, they agreed, will be appropriately displayed permanently in a place of honor at the Quincy Historical Society where Harold served on the Governing Board and was actively supportive.

Sun Editor Robert Bosworth presented the Harold family with a framed special Page One of The Sun highlighting Paul Harold's selection as the recipient and listing the names of the other 23 nominees and the judging panel. Extra copies were distributed to those attending.

Joseph Harold, speaking for the Harold family, said:

"I am truly honored to accept this award on Paul's behalf. Our family was enormously proud of my uncle and we are gratified and honored that you have taken the time and effort to join with us in honoring this presentation for Paul.

"I knew how intelligent Paul was, how caring he was and especially how honest he was during his life."

He said that following his uncle's death last August, "I realized how genuine Paul really was."

He came to that conclusion, he said, "by listening to and speaking to several of the thousands of people he affected and how he touched them differently in his own way. I was amazed at how much 'good' I heard about one individual . . . I am extremely proud to be his nephew."

"The past year and a half has been an extraordinary time for me and I'm happy and pleased that Paul was a part of that," said Phelan, who gained Harold's support in the 2001 race for mayor.

"I didn't know Paul for as long as many of you in this room but in the short time that I did I know that my life has improved dramatically because of my friendship with Paul and I will never forget that."

Morrissey, who was a state representative when Harold was a senator and then succeeded him in the Senate, noted Harold's concerns for the little people.

"When you're in public life you often get a chance to do good things for people," he said. "Paul was one of those who liked to help people.

"The big accomplishments are great but I think he always appreciated the little things. When someone called up with a small problem that was always important to Paul."

Raymondi, who succeeded Harold as president of the City Council, recalled his friend's love for the city and love for his parents.

"One of the most memorable gestures was in the final days of his life when he dedicated the lighting (chandeliers) in the City Council chamber in honor of his parents," he said.

"I remember all too well when the news of Paul's passing was out in the city of Quincy and the tremendous outpouring of sympathy and appreciation and love of Paul that swept through the city.

"He was greatly admired, loved and respected by many of our citizens but in particular the seniors of our community."

McDermott identified Harold as "a guy that I truly looked up to and revered."

"I had an opportunity to meet Paul in 1978," he said. "In typical fashion it was a coffee hour. I was a young man, new to the neighborhood. I saw this other young gentleman sitting there. He spoke so eloquently and softly but he inspired all of us.

"I worked with him at the Registry of Deeds. I saw his compassion for people. His love for the folks who helped in his campaigns, who were in fact his extended family.

"I will be forever grateful to Paul for his life and his inspiration to my generation because we have a hero to look up to as well."

McCauley, a Republican but long a political ally of Harold the Democrat, compared him to another young man who blazed too briefly across the local political horizon.

"His short life parallels the short life of another individual who was well-known politically in this city and that was Jim McIntyre," he said.

"They were both 53 years of age. They both served in the Council. They were both Council presidents. When Jim passed away they dedicated the old City Hall to James McIntyre and I was privileged to say a few words.

"The words I said that morning are applicable to Paul today. What I said was "It doesn't matter how many years you live but what you do with the life you've got. Paul certainly did an awful lot in what is now a short life.

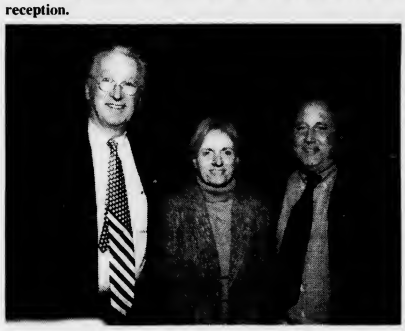
"Paul was in the giving business. Paul was in the people business. Helping business. He was everywhere. Anything he could do for someone, he did."

Baker recalled Harold as a Quincy boy who never forgot Quincy.

"If there was anything he could do for the city he did it. He never failed to return phone calls. He was such a good person.

"Paul was a student of history, Quincy history. He loved history. He helped the society financially, politically and socially."

Linnane was a close friend of Harold since they first met in 1979 when Harold was campaigning for an at-large seat on the City Council.



"We did a lot of good things together," he said. "Paul's love for the city was always evident wherever we went.

"One year, Paul and I were out in Hopkinton getting ready to start the Boston Marathon. Everyone was showing up at the starting line in brand new shirts,

Bathroom Water-Wise Tips

(NAPS) — For that flush of success, a growing number of homeowners are renovating their bathrooms. The improvement can not only save money and valuable water, it can increase the value of your home.

For example, something as simple as a new showerhead and faucets are not only visually appealing, they can be more efficient. A new toilet can add beauty and economy to your home.

Today's 1.6 gallon low-flush toilets were mandated by federal law in 1992 as a way to conserve water.

Some consumers were dissatisfied with incomplete flushes, ineffective waste removal, trap blockage and unsatisfactory bowl rinsing that have long plagued low-flush gravity toilets. These problems were solved when one plumbing company came up with a vacuum-assisted flushing system that made low-flush toilets more efficient. Called the Vacuity WhisperVAC, the patented design is now manufactured by Briggs Plumbing Products, Inc.

The technology, which represents the first major change in toilet hydraulics in more than 100 years, has been named best new product and best buy by several consumer reporting publications. Featuring genuine Fluidmaster fittings, the Vacuity WhisperVAC flushes effectively and quietly every time, clearing the toilet without noise, complex pressure tanks and valves. All it takes is one flush.

Water-Wise Tips

Here from the engineers at Briggs are some tips that can help you conserve water:

• Replace toilets with low-flush models. This will save about 350 gallons per week.

• Replace old-fashioned showerheads with low-flow models. This will save up to 230 gallons per week.

• When doing laundry, never wash less than a full load. This can save up to 100 gallons per week.

• Do not leave water running while shaving or brushing teeth.

• If you have a pool, use a cover to slow evaporation.

Winning The Weed Battle

By ASHTON RITCHIE
For News USA

(NU) — When I hear lawn owners shouting about their battle with weeds, I always tell them my secret weapon: a weed and feed product that "sticks."

Some people get out their shovels and start digging when it comes to dandelions and weeds. However, it's not only hard work but a waste of time.

The toughest part of dandelions and weeds is underground. These plants have long taproots that penetrate deep into the soil, sometimes to a depth of more than a foot. It is difficult to dig out the root completely, and whatever portion of the root is left in the ground simply sends up a new weed to replace the old one.

The only way to clear out dandelions and other weeds is to get rid of them — root and all. The key is to use a weed control product that enters the weeds through the leaves and is transported to all parts of the plant including the roots. Within a few days, the weeds begin to curl and wither. Gradually, they fade away, roots and all, so they can't grow back.

Before applying any broadleaf weed control, first check the weather forecast. If rain is expected within 24 hours, hold off the application until a better day. Apply the treatment when the lawn is moist from dew or a light sprinkling. The moisture will allow more particles to stick to the weed leaves, which will give the best possible results. After the application, delay mowing or watering for at least 24 hours.

What many people don't realize is that getting rid of the weeds is only half the battle. You also must fertilize the grass to help it grow into a thick, dense and healthy lawn. This is important because broadleaf weeds can easily sprout and grow in thin lawns where the grass is weak.

Spread a good weed and feed like Scotts Turf Builder With Plus 2 Weed Control anytime in late spring. (St. Augustine grass lawn owners in the deep south should substitute Scotts Bonus S.) Within days, the weeds begin to fade away while the lawn grows thicker and greener. The lightweight, small particles in Scotts weed and feed stick to weed leaves much better than the large granules of cheaper weed and feed products. Remember: If it doesn't stick, it doesn't work.

If you have lawn care questions, call the Scotts Helpline at 1-800-543-TURF or visit www.askashton.com.

Ashton Ritchie has been a lawn care expert for The Scotts Co. for 30 years.

Traditional And Comtemporary Decors

Wood Designs Benefit From Durable New Finish

(NAPS) — With most consumers looking for chic new furniture design to complement both traditional and contemporary interior décor, a new wood finish adds that perfect touch.

Powder coated finishes are revolutionizing the wood furniture market — particularly furniture made of popular medium density fiberboard (MDF) — because they offer design freedoms other finishing methods can't provide.

Furniture shoppers can now choose a home office desk, computer console, entertainment center, recreational suite or child's play center that is uniquely designed but still offers the sturdiness and warmth of wood.

A powder coated finish also protects wood furniture from stains, chips, spills and scratches; it promises value, beauty and easy care for years to come.

Consumers looking to update their homes with a new kitchen or bath should also look for products with a tough powder coated finish.

In addition to appliances and fixtures, powder coating can be found on easy-to-clean, durable MDF cabinets and other kitchen and bath products.

This high-tech powder coating process is being embraced by all the best manufacturers, including manufacturers of high-performance office and contract furniture as well as consumer products, because the finish comes in a rainbow of colors and textures, is easy to apply and is more environmentally friendly than paint.

In addition to MDF products, successful testing is occurring on hardwoods, such as beech, oak, ash and walnut, and consumers should be able to find powder coated hardwood on the market in the next few years.

So, whether your personal taste craves an American Traditional or New Age Feng Shui motif, powder coated wood furniture will always be a standard accent.

Detecting And Controlling Termites: What You Can Do

(NAPS) — Learning more about termites can keep them from taking a bit out of one of your biggest investments — your home.

Every year, more than 600,000 U.S. homes suffer termite damage totaling more than $1.5 billion. This is more than the damage caused by all fires, storms and earthquakes combined.

There are more than 2,000 species of termites but the most damaging are roughly 20 species called "subterranean" termites because of their living and foraging habits.

Two of these, the Eastern Subterranean Termites and the Western Subterranean Termites, are the most common, wildest distributed and most damaging in the U.S.

In certain areas of the country you may encounter different types of termites, such as Formosan, damp wood or dry wood termites. If your home is infested with one of these termites, it may require different or more extensive treatment procedures including wood treatment or fumigation.

According to Cindy Mannes, director of public affairs for the National Pest Management Association, a thorough inspection by a pest control professional is the first and most important step in protecting your property. Experienced eyes and special tools can help locate the places where an attack is likely to occur.

If a termite infestation is found, the professional can design a treatment plan for your property, which might include a chemical barrier or baiting system. Bait, soil treatments and wood treatments are all methods used alone or in combination. The best treatment for your home will depend on factors that are unique to your home.

Termites can enter buildings through cracks or expansion joints, foam insulation below ground, hollow bricks or concrete blocks or spaces around plumbing. Signs of possible infestation include pencil-sized mud tubes running across bare concrete or masonry between the soil and any wooden part of the building; thin, small papery wings; thin, bubbled or distorted areas of paint on wooden surfaces; any wooden building parts that begin to sag unexpectedly.

There are preventive measures you can take. Look for excessive moisture in and around your home, especially in basements and crawl spaces. Repair leaking pipes, water lines and fixtures that may wet any wooden parts of your home.

Stack firewood, lumber and other wooden items several feet away from your home and plant flower beds and other frequently watered ornamentals as far away from your as possible.

Downpayment Grants Available At Neighborhood Housing Services Homebuyers Workshop April 19, 26

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore, in collaboration with Randolph Banking Collaborative, will sponsor a free First-Time Homebuyers Workshop Saturdays, April 19 and 26, at the Randolph Senior Center, 16 Fencourt St., Randolph.

Presidents Cruise Past Holbrook, 8-1

BOYS' BASEBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

Amid rainy weather last week, the Quincy High School baseball team managed to squeeze in one of three games to spring into the 2003 season.

Powered by stingy pitching and explosive bats, the Presidents cruised to an 8-1 victory over Holbrook last Thursday afternoon at Adams Field.

"One of the best all-around games in the four years that I've been here," said Michael Draicchio, whose team swept Holbrook last year but finished with a 5-15 mark. "I feel very good about the first game. The kids are upbeat."

Quincy was scheduled to host Whitman-Hanson in the Atlantic Coast League opener Tuesday and Holbrook Wednesday in a rematch before it travels to Nauset today (Thursday) at 4 p.m.

Last Tuesday's game against Brighton has been rescheduled for April 29 and last Friday's Archbishop Williams game April 15.

Senior quad-captain and left-hander Anthony Boyle tossed four dominating innings to earn the win, allowing one hit while striking out six.

The three-man relief corps — senior Bob Ritchie and sophomores John Folino and John Santon — turned in a promising outing. Ritchie allowed a hit in the fifth inning, Folino gave up an unearned run and fanned two in the sixth and Santon pitched a 1-2-3 seventh.

"These guys are going to be great pitchers down the road," Draicchio said of youngsters Folino, who missed last year with an appendix eruption, and Santon. "They're going to get a lot of playing time, either with me or on JV. It's going to be hard not to use them as relievers on varsity."

The Presidents took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when senior Jamie Chiocchio, hitting in the No. 2 spot, belted a home run. In the second, senior Ryan Conley singled and scored on Boyle's triple for a 2-0 lead.

Quincy erupted for five runs in the fourth inning for a 7-0 advantage. Chiocchio, who just missed a homer in the third inning when he lined a double off the fence, crushed his second of the game, a three-run shot, to highlight the inning.

"He displayed a great hitting game," Draicchio said. "He ended up being our best hitter last year. He beat out (Liam) Powers by percentage points. He really came into his own at the end of last year."

Quincy tacked on its final run in the sixth inning. After senior catcher Mark Dondero and junior Dan Cosgrove walked, sophomore Steve Priscella, who did not start, stroked an RBI double.

"It was good to get a lot of the guys playing time," Draicchio said. "We have a lot of depth. When we get a couple of our guys back that are hurt, that will only make the team stronger."

KRISTINA PAN and Cassandra Schramm, both of Quincy, will participate in the Commonwealth Figure Skating Club's annual skating show Saturday, April 26, at 7 p.m. and Sunday, April 27, at 2 p.m. at Zapustus Arena in Randolph. Tickets may be purchased at the door or in advance by calling 781-963-4053.

Golf Tournament April 21 To Benefit Law Enforcement Program At QHS/Tech Ed Center

The Quincy Police Department, the Quincy Fire Department and the Massachusetts State Police will hold its annual golf tournament Monday, April 21, at Presidents Golf Course, 357 West Squantum St., Quincy.

The tournament will benefit the Law Enforcement Program at Quincy High School/Center for Technical Education.

A Florida Scramble format (Best Ball), there will be an 8:30 a.m. shot-gun start. Registration will be held from 7 to 8:15 a.m. Luncheon and raffle will begin at 1:30 p.m.

Houghs Neck T-Ball Registration April 18, 19 At Community Center

Registration for the Houghs Neck T-Ball League will be held April 18 from 6 to 8 p.m. and April 19 from 9 to 11 a.m. at Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St.

Registration fee is $25. Players must be between the ages of 3 to 7. Games will be played Saturday mornings at Labrecque Field, Sea Street. Coaches and helpers are needed.

Fundraiser Saturday To Benefit Jimmy Fund Pan-Mass Challenge

A fund-raiser to benefit the Jimmy Fund's Pan-Mass Challenge will be held Saturday from 7 p.m. to midnight at Florian Hall, Hall Street, Dorchester.

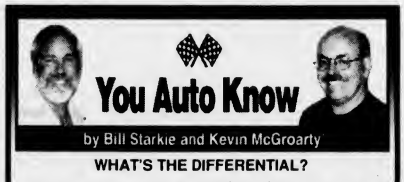
Donation is $10 at the door and all proceeds will benefit the Jimmy Fund. The Pan-Mass Challenge is a cycling fund-raiser responsible for over 50 percent of the Jimmy Fund's annual donations.

The fund-raiser will feature a DJ, dancing and cash bar. Prizes and raffles include sports memorabilia, gift baskets and 50/50 cash raffle.

The event will be hosted by members of the MAC Cycling team: Kathleen Callahan, Martin Shields and Francis Reardon, all of Quincy, Mark Callahan of Milton and Brian Callahan of Hingham.

For more information call 617-320-3169.

Rachael Powers Key In Wheaton Victories



Rachael Powers of Quincy contributed to several victories as the Wheaton College softball team recently extended its winning streak to eight games to improve to 16-2 overall.

The senior co-captain and North Quincy High School graduate went 2 for 3 with two doubles, two runs scored and a stolen base in an 8-0 win over UMass-Dartmouth.

In a 10-5 win over Bridgewater State, Powers belted a solo home run to tie the game at 4-4, and later added an RBI single. She also collected a pair of hits in an 11-0 win over Mount Holyoke.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENTIAL?

It may help to understand the complexity that goes into even basic vehicle design by explaining what a differential is. When a vehicle changes direction, the front wheels scribe a larger arc than the rears, and the outside tires do the same relative to the inside tires. Without differentials, this maneuvering would translate into greater noise and tire wear. A differential allows wheels to operate with some independence, so that the inside tire does not travel the same distance as the outside tire, or the rear tires the same as the front. As a result, the tires do not squeal and the vehicle does not feel like it is trying to jack itself up (known as "binding").

Next time you need work done on any system, including differentials, bring your car, truck, or SUV, into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. Our ASE Certified technicians and our availability of parts will assure you of a job well done. We also use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. We're conveniently located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." We are your local source for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles.

HINT: A full-time four-wheel or all-wheel-drive vehicle will need three differentials - one for each axle and one between the front and rear axles.

21st Annual Quincy Senior Olympics Begin May 12

The 21st annual Quincy Senior Olympics is scheduled to launch a week-long series of events beginning Monday, May 12.

Local seniors are preparing for the Olympic Games by participating in the third annual Sports Day — practice sessions held each Friday morning at Beechwood on the Bay in Squantum.

All interested seniors are invited to take part in Sports Day for the next five Fridays. Volunteer senior coaches will demonstrate and train. "We call it spring training," said Sharron Beals, Beechwood's executive director.

Beals said the Senior Olympics has become a "spirit of aging" for seniors in Quincy and on the South Shore. "They look forward to it all year," she said. "It's like a validation: 'I'm here, I'm fit and I'm fine.' It personifies the philosophy of getting older. We like to tell the George Conway story."

Conway, 100, of Milton, began walking competitively in 1983 at 80 years old. Since then he has won more than 150 medals. He has set world records for his age group in race walking and averages 94 in his Milton candlepin bowling league.

"I like the people at the center," Conway said. "Olympians seem to be a different class of people than you normally meet. They're the first ones to congratulate when you do well, and encourage each other to compete and try new events."

"We encourage all seniors 55 and older to consider participating in the Quincy Games," said Kathy Prince, director of Beechwood's Senior Center. "There is something for everyone. The week-long event includes all interest and ability levels: horseshoes, darts, billiards, bowling and golf; team competitions: bocce, volleyball, softball; and track and field competitions. Every year folks try new events like javelin throw and shot-put."

The planning committee, chaired by Prince, includes Barry Welch, recreation director; Tom Clasby, Council on Aging director; Kristin Priscella, spokesperson for Mayor William Phelan; and Beals.

For information on Friday Sports Day, the Senior Olympics or registration, call Prince at 617-471-5712 or visit Beechwood at 440 East Squantum St.

Jordan Virtue On Hockey High School All-Star Team

Those interested in sponsoring Virtue may send a donation to Team Massachusetts, c/o Jordan Virtue, 15 Pequot Road, Quincy, MA.

Registration Underway For T-Ball League At South Shore YMCA

Registration is ongoing for the T-ball League at the South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy.

Cost is $52 and there is also a $15 annual membership fee. Opening Day is Saturday: 9 a.m. for children ages 6-7 and 10:30 a.m. for ages 4 and half and 5. Games will be played on Saturdays from April 19 to June 14.

For more information call Rich Hanlon, youth and sports director, at 617-479-8500, ext. 104.

Lions Club Run/Walk For Sight April 26

The sixth annual Lions Run/Walk for Sight, free vision and health screening, and a citywide collection of used eyeglasses to help those in need are just a few of the activities that will occur during "Lions Week" in Quincy April 20-26.

Mayor William Phelan, honorary chairman of this year's Run/Walk, recently represented Quincy Lions Club President Christine Cedrone with a proclamation in recognition of the club's 62-year history of serving the community.

To mark Lions Week, the Quincy Lions Club has scheduled a series of events raised at helping blind and visually-impaired persons.

On Thursday, April 24, from 8:30 am. to 12:30 p.m., the Lions Eyemobile will provide free vision, hearing, blood pressure and other basic health screenings to local residents in front of City Hall.

The Quincy Lions Club will also be conducting its annual citywide collection of used eyeglasses and sunglasses. Cedrone noted last year's eyeglass collection resulted in more than 1,000 pairs of glasses being donated by local residents for repair and distribution to people in developing nations.

"Thanks to the generosity of local residents, 1,000 people who needed glasses but either couldn't afford them or didn't have access to them will now be able to see," said Cedrone, who noted a quarter of the world's population has eyesight that could benefit from corrective lenses. "We hope Quincy residents will once again help the Lions Club help others by dropping off their used glasses and sunglasses for recycling."

Throughout Lions Week, residents can drop off their used eyeglasses or sunglasses in special collection boxes at participating businesses throughout the city (see box for list of locations).

"Many people have old pairs of eyeglasses laying around that they don't know what to do with," Cedrone said. "By donating them to the Lions Club, people can make a tremendous difference in the life of someone in need."

Lions Week will culminate with the annual Run/Walk for Sight Saturday, April 26, at Pageant Field. Registration and pre-race registration begins at 9 a.m., with the children's 1K Run/Walk starting at 10:30 a.m. and the 5K Run/Walk beginning at 11 a.m. The race is a USATF certified course.

Registration fee is $5 for children and $20 for adults ($17 for pre-registration). All proceeds will be used to fund eye research and support the Quincy Lions Club's service activities in the local community.

Following the race, lunch will be provided courtesy of Outback Steakhouse Quincy.

"The Run/Walk is really a terrific family event," Cedrone said. "We encourage everyone to come down, participate in the Run/Walk and help support a worthy cause."

Eyeglass Collection Locations

Drop off your used eyeglasses and sunglasses during Lions Week April 20-26 at the following locations.

Each location will have a specially marked Lions eyeglass collection box. Eyeglasses may also be dropped off at the Run/Walk Saturday, April 26, at Pageant Field.

- Allied American Insurance, 382 Quincy Ave., intersection of Quincy Avenue and Southern Artery.
- Century 21 Abigail Adams, 221 West Chestnut St., North Quincy.
- Eastern Bank, 731 Hancock St., Wollaston.
- South Coastal Savings Bank, 1259 Hancock St., Quincy Center.
- South Shore Savings Bank, 370 Quincy Ave., intersection of Quincy Avenue and Southern Artery.

NQ Alumni Soccer Players Form Benefit Association

A group of former North Quincy High School soccer players is starting up an association to help benefit the program.

Headed by Joe LaPierre (class of 1984), Bill Donovan ('75), Dave Brown ('84), Steve Golden ('84) and Mark Scanlon ('86), the association will hold a general meeting Wednesday, April 23, at 7:30 p.m. at Quincy Sons of Italy to identify and elect an official board of officers.

The association will perform several functions, such as administration of a newly created soccer scholarship fund, organization of fundraising events and holding official meetings/elections.

All past team members are invited to attend and participate in the meeting and ongoing efforts of the association. The association is also looking for past team photos to post on its Web site (www.eteamz.com/nqhsalumnisoccer).

For more information contact LaPierre at 617-471-2101 or e-mail JlaPierre@netzero.net.

Robert F. Campbell Memorial Hockey Tournament April 25-27

The fourth annual Robert F. Campbell Jr. Memorial Hockey Tournament will be held April 25-27 at Quincy Youth Arena to benefit leukemia research and patient care at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

The round-robin tournament features local ex-collegiate and junior hockey players throughout New England. The Boston Firefighters will take on the three-time defending champions, Team Campbell, in the most anticipated game of the tourney Saturday, April 26, at 6:30 p.m. Spectators will also be able to take the ice in an open skate Saturday from 3 to 4 p.m.

The Campbell family launched the first annual tournament in 2000 in commemoration of their beloved son and brother. Campbell was a 1982 Whitman-Hanson High School graduate, who passed away from acute myelogenous leukemia at age 21.

The tourney has brought in nearly $45,000 over the past three years. Organizers of the tourney anticipate a large increase in that number this year with the development of both the "Sticks & Pucks Club," which recognizes generous individual donations of $100 or more, and a new feature on the Web site (www.campbelltourney.com) that allows donors to make contributions on-line.

The tourney will kick off Friday, April 25, at 6:40 p.m. and conclude with the championship game at 11:40 a.m. Sunday, April 27. Weekend passes to the event can be purchased at the door for a suggested donation of $10.

For more information about the tournament, including specific game times, visit the Web site or e-mail: info@campbelltourney.com.

Interfaith Social Services Golf Tournament Aug. 18

Interfaith Social Services, Inc. will hold its second annual golf tournament Monday, Aug. 18, at the South Shore Country Club in Hingham.

The Florida Scramble shot-gun tournament is being held to raise funds to support the multiple social services ISS provides throughout the South Shore area.

Tee time is 1 p.m., with registration at noon. Cost is $125 per individual and $500 per foursome, which includes dinner. Cost to sponsor a hole is $100.

ISS, currently located at 776 Hancock St., will be moving to 105 Adams St. May 15.

For more information call ISS at 617-773-6203.

Palm Sunday Cantata At Faith Lutheran

Faith Lutheran Church, 201 Granite St., Quincy, will present its annual Palm Sunday cantata at the 10 a.m. service Sunday.

Rock Whiting, director of music, will lead the choir in "Easter Celebration" featuring the music of Ralph Carmichael.

Soloists for the performance include Betty Maraglia, Barbara Berg, Larry Johnson and Bill Tuori, as well as a duet by Dave and Lynn Danner.

Communion will not be served on this occasion, but will be at the 8 a.m. service.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Take This To Heart: Cardiovascular Screenings Keep Women Informed

By Dr. LISA ANTONELLI

Heart disease is the number-one killer of women in Massachusetts and in the country. Associated risk factors such as smoking, obesity, diabetes, and high blood pressure are all controllable, making heart disease preventable.

The Boston Heart Party"! 2003, sponsored by Pfizer Inc. and several leading healthcare organizations in Boston, has dedicated half a decade to educating over 14,000 women (and men) about CVD, and is offering free cardiovascular screenings from the first day of spring (March 21, 2003) through Mother's Day (May 11, 2003).

Dr. Lisa Antonelli, MD, FACC, of Quincy Medical Center, answered some basic questions about CVD so that women across Eastern Massachusetts can make educated decisions about their heart health.

DR. LISA ANTONELLI

Why is it important for women to know about CVD?

Incidence of CVD is increasing in women, but they do not think that they are at as much risk of CVD as men. However, just over half of the lives taken by CVD each year are those of women, so it is highly important that women are informed about the disease and its associated risk factors.

What are some risk factors of CVD or heart attack that women should know about?

Risk factors include smoking, hypertension, diabetes, a family history of heart disease, a sedentary lifestyle, and obesity. The basic symptoms and signs that a heart attack is occurring are commonly known by most people, such as central chest pain and pressure, sometimes radiating to the left arm.

There are less appreciated symptoms that need not be particularly painful, including pain in the arm and discomfort in the throat, such as burning or constriction. These symptoms may be confused with indigestion, but can signify CVD or a heart attack.

Are there any physiological differences, in symptoms, for women and men for CVD?

Women may tend to have more atypical symptoms, such as shortness of breath and indigestion, while men tend to have more classic symptoms like chest pressure and pain.

What are the most important steps women can take to prevent CVD?

The most important thing is not to smoke. Certain risk factors you can't control, but attention to weight and blood pressure, as well as cholesterol management, are all important. Getting screened every year will alert you to any changes in your numbers, which is why The Boston Heart Party"! is such an important program for women.

Is there any female population or age group that is more at risk for CVD?

Incidence is relatively low before menopause and it increases with age after menopause. African American women are affected more only in that they have a higher incidence of hypertension and diabetes.

Regarding family history of CVD, does it matter what family member has/had CVD? And if there is a family history of CVD, what steps should women take?

Everyone should have her cholesterol screened in young adulthood, starting in the teens. Women with a family history of CVD should be seen by a physician at age 40 to be screened for high blood pressure, diabetes and any other risk factors.

What are some key numbers associated with heart disease women should know?

Blood pressure should be below 140/90, glucose level should be below 120. Overall total cholesterol levels can be deceiving, because an elevated level may not always mean an increased risk, so we like to separate numbers into "good" (HDL), which protects against plaque build-up in the arteries, and "bad" (LDL), which promotes plaque build-up in the arteries, cholesterol: HDL should be above 45, and LDL should be below 130.

It's important for people to educate themselves about the diagnoses that their doctors give them. Patients who understand the importance of the treatments recommended are more likely to comply and be healthy.

Where can women go for information about CVD?

Women can attend a FREE screening at over 100 locations through The Boston Heart Party"!, sponsored by Pfizer, Inc. and several Boston-area healthcare organizations including Primary Care, LLC. After a simple blood pressure measurement, cholesterol and glucose test, participants will have the opportunity to speak one-on-one with a physician or healthcare practitioner. Log onto www.bostonheartparty.com or call 781-356-3336 for more information and a list of screening sites and dates.

April Is Alcohol Awareness Month

By BRUCE ROBERTS
Quitting Time
Addictions Services
A Program Of South Shore Mental Health

BRUCE ROBERTS, Psy. D.

We all know that alcohol addition is a real and serious problem for many people. It can disrupt lives, affect careers and, if ignored, will only make the progress to more serious problems.

April is Alcohol Awareness Month — an annual observance providing people all across the country an opportunity to take inventory of their alcohol usage.

What Is Alcoholism?

Generally speaking, alcoholism is drinking that causes trouble in the drinker's personal, professional, family or school life. It is characterized by:

- Impaired control over drinking.
- Use of alcohol despite adverse consequences.
- Preoccupation with alcohol.
- Increased tolerance to the effects of alcohol.
- Withdrawal syndrome when alcohol is not being used.

How Can I Recognize An Alcohol Problem?

Below are some warning signs of alcoholism that can help you determine if you or someone you know may need to seek help for addiction:

- Drinking to calm nerves, forget worries or boost a sad mood.
- Guilt about drinking.
- Unsuccessful attempts to cut down or stop drinking.
- Lying about or hiding drinking habits.
- Causing harm to oneself or someone else as a result of drinking.
- Needing to drink increasingly greater amounts in order to achieve desired effect.
- Feeling irritable, resentful or unreasonable when not drinking (personality change).
- Medical, social, family, legal, job or financial problems caused by drinking.

Where Can I Go For Help?

A variety of treatments exist to help people stop drinking, including education, individual or group counseling, self-help groups, medication, detoxification and rehabilitation.

Locally, the Quitting Time program provides chemical dependency services for individuals with a primary addition to alcohol and/or other drugs. The program features the 12-step group treatment model, random testing, psychopharmacology and 24-hour emergency services. If you or someone you know could benefit from talking about substance abuse problems with a licensed professional, call Quitting Time at 617-847-1923.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.
IN LOOSE TERMS

According to a recent report by the ADA, three out of four adults experience gum disease at some point in their lives. The report also says that nearly half of those between ages 35 and 44 currently have the condition. The disease, which is a leading cause of tooth loss among baby boomers and older adults in the U.S., is an infection in which bacteria attack the tissues that surround and support the teeth. Gingivitis, which makes gums red, swollen, and prone to bleeding, and other milder forms of periodontal (gum) disease are the most common in adults. More severe periodontal disease causes damage to gums, bone, and other structures that support teeth, which can result in tooth loss.

Good experience with dentistry is based on making the right choice in a family dentist and in taking the right steps to keep dental costs at a minimum through self care at home between visits. We strive to teach good oral hygiene. In the long run you will have better dental health and, of course, spend far fewer dollars. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we're currently accepting new patients. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. If gum disease is treated in its early stages, it can be reversed.

Quincy Point Congregational

A Palm Sunday observance at the 10 a.m. service Sunday will mark the beginning of Holy Week at the Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

Music for the entry of Jesus into Jerusalem will be offered by the Chancel Choir, under the direction of Paul Thistle.

Tenor soloist, Lutfullah Guneralp, will sing "The Holy City."

Rev. Ann Suzedell's sermon for Palm Sunday will be "Cheers, Tears and Jeers."

At the close of the city, Confirmation students and mentors will enact dramatic moments from the arrest and trial of Jesus.

DON DeCRISTOFARO portrays Jesus at the Quincy Point Congregational Church Palm Sunday.

Wollaston Congregational

This Sunday, Wollaston Congregational Church celebrates the beginning of Holy Week with donkey rides on the Lincoln Ave. lawn at 9 a.m.

The 10 a.m. service will feature Mary Lou Gifford as reader, Ellie Cleveland and Gabi Guedes as ushers. Deacon of the month is Gabrielle Guedes.

The Rev. Gary Smothers continues his Lenten sermon series on the seven last words of Christ.

Following the service at 11:30 a.m., an elaborate Passover Seder will be celebrated to commemorate the Last Supper from which Christians derive their celebration of communion. This meaningful and spiritual celebration contains all the elements of a traditional Passover Seder and leaves the participants with a deep sense of history and leads one into Holy Week with a feeling of preparedness and spiritual refreshment.

Cost of the Seder is $8 per person. There will be a main course of sirloin tips, rice pilaf and glazed carrots (non-traditional). All are welcome.

Bethany Congregational

Holy Week services will begin Sunday at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center, with Palm Sunday worship at 10 a.m.

There will be a presentation by children from the Church School.

Greeters will include Carol and Carrie Sunde. Scripture reader will be Tom Starr.

Music will include selections by the Bell Choir, Junior Choir, Chancel Choir and a duet by Alita Norkus and Paul Frazer, soprano and baritone, all accompanied by Tom Boyer, organist.

The Rev. William Harding's sermon is entitled, "Triumphal Entry."

Child care is available for infants and toddlers.

Following the service light refreshments will be available during the Fellowship Hour.

Children are invited to participate in a reenactment of the Palm Sunday procession with a colt to ride upon. This will take place on the lawn on the Coddington Street side of the church.

On Maundy Thursday, a family chicken dinner will be served in the church social hall at 5:30 p.m. Tickets are $5 for adults and $2.50 for children ages 5-12. For reservations call the church office at 617-479-7300 by Tuesday, April 15.

Following the supper a Last Supper portrayal will take place in the Bethany sanctuary beginning at 7 p.m. The service will include Holy Communion and the spiritual service of the Office of Tenebrae, observed by many branches of the church since the fourth century.

On Good Friday, there will be a service at noon in the Bethany chapel. Members of the Quincy Point Congregational Church and Bethany Church will participate.

United First Parish

The Rev. Sheldon W. Bennett, Ph.D., will lead the 10:30 a.m. worship service and preach the sermon "Jerusalem Conversations" Sunday at United First Parish Church (Unitarian) across from City Hall in Quincy Center.

The service will be followed by a coffee hour in the Parish Hall.

Religious education classes are offered for children from preschool through high school. Child care is available.

The church has both hearing assistance devices and large-print hymnals.

United Methodist

The Rev. Carol Stine will lead the Adult Bible Class at 9 a.m. and will continue her series of Lenten sermons at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

Ardys Peterson will serve as lector and will light the peace candle. Dan Bollen will serve as head usher.

Church School will follow the message for young people. Church facilities are handicapped accessible.

Following the worship service, the Fellowship Hour will be hosted by Joan Honig, Maude Kyoperi, Shirley Smith and Meredith Brown.

The New Women's Group will hold a bake sale in Susanna Wesley Hall.

Holy Week Gatherings

The South Shore Evangelical Clergy Association invites the Quincy community to join together for special Holy Week gatherings.

At noon on Good Friday, April 18, an hour-long worship service will be held at Covenant Congregational Church, 315 Whitwell St.

Another opportunity for worship on Good Friday will be held at 7 p.m. at Glad Tidings Church, 158 Washington St.

At both services local pastors and church musicians will take part in leading the worship commemorating the death of Jesus Christ on the cross.

On Easter Sunday, April 20, the annual Sunrise Worship Service will be held at Caddy Park just off of the intersection of Quincy Shore Drive and Furnace Book Parkway. The service will begin at 6:30 a.m. and will be lead by members of the South Shore Evangelical Clergy Association. All are welcome to attend.

Union Congregational

Union Congregational Church, 136 Rawson Rd., Wollaston, will host "Captain Jack's Cocoa House" Saturday, April 12 from 9 a.m. to noon.

Children attending will learn about the resurrection.

Grandpa loved gardening, baseball, and playing the harmonica.

Your memories are precious. That's why, at Keohane Funeral Service, we take the time to find out what made your loved one special.

Whether it's gathering some of the flowers he so tenderly cultivated or finding a musician to play "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" on the harmonica, you can count on us to help you plan a service that will be just as unique as the person you love.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Some of the world's most talented people have never been paid a cent. They are called volunteers. They take time from their work, their leisure, their home-life to volunteer their talents and their energies. Volunteerism is in the spotlight this week. It is the time to publicly thank them for their work and let them know that it is valuable and important to us. This week is the time to make an effort to look around and see who is doing what to help out... Look at the nursing homes and hospitals and you'll see men and women finding time to visit with the residents and help the staff... Look at the schools and you'll see people who serve on committees, who donate materials, who help raise funds all for the love of doing... Look at the churches and you'll see people who give their time to sing in the choir, and work on committees... You'll see people who deeply care about their community and want to work to make it better, honor it and tell others about it.

When asked why they volunteer, the most popular reason heard will be, "Because I care, I want to help."... We ask that our readers join us in saluting the volunteers in our community. ..Let us show them that because they care, we care about them!.

Americo J. DiRado, 82

Retired Postal Worker

A funeral Mass for Americo J. DiRado, 82, of Braintree, a retired Postal Worker in the Washington, DC area, was celebrated April 4 at St. John's Church, 44 School St., Quincy.

He died April 1 at home.

Mr. DiRado was born in Quincy and educated in Quincy schools. He graduated from Quincy High School, Class of 1938.

After high school, he briefly worked at the former Fore River Shipyard in Quincy.

He was a member of the U.S. Marine Corps and served with the 1st Marine Division during World War II in the Pacific Theater. He participated in the Battle of Okinawa and also served in China.

He was employed with the U.S. Postal Service in the Washington, DC area for 35 years and retired in 1987. He returned to Quincy in 1987 and has lived in Braintree for the past four years.

Husband of the late Hazel L. (Perry) DiRado, he is survived by a brother, Victor DiRado of Rockland; two sisters, Reginia Giordani of Norwell and Mary Nichols of Braintree; and many nieces and nephews. He was the brother of the late Albert DiRado.

Burial will be in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Donations may be made to the American Heart Association, 20 Speen St., Framingham, MA 01701.

Covenant Congregational

Covenant Congregational Church, 315 Whitwell St., announces its Holy Week services.

On Palm Sunday, April 13, Sunday School for all ages begins at 9 a.m. At 10 a.m. morning worship will begin and will include a special time with the children and a children's procession with palms. Pastor Karen Palmatier will preach the sermon and all worshippers will receive a palm branch.

A Maundy Thursday communion service will be held Thursday, April 17, at 7 p.m. The choir will sing, led by John Sarkissian, music director. The worship marks the Last Supper Jesus shared with his disciples before his death on the cross and the Sacrament of Holy Communion will be shared.

The following day, Good Friday, April 18, at noon, the Covenant Church will host the Good Friday worship service sponsored by the South Shore Evangelical Clergy Association.

On Easter Sunday, April 20, the celebration of Jesus' resurrection will begin at 9 a.m. with an Easter egg hunt for all children followed by morning worship at 10 a.m. The choir will sing and Palmatier will offer the sermon.

Covenant Congregational Church is a member of the Evangelical Covenant Church. Ministering in Quincy since 1895, the congregation still seeks to serve the community through its Children's Pantry, youth groups, Bible studies and in cooperation with other local churches and organizations.

For more information regarding the church or its Holy Week activities, call 617-479-5728.

Houghs Neck Congregational

Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave., will hold its Palm Sunday worship service Sunday at 9:30 a.m.

Palms will be presented to the congregation in remembrance of Jesus's entry into Jerusalem for Passover.

The Rev. M. Alicia Corea will preach the sermon "Journey's End."

On Thursday, April 17 at 7:30 p.m., there will be a Maundy Thursday service of Worship and Communion, commemorating Jesus's Seder Supper with his disciples before his arrest.

There will be a reception of new Church members.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Rumors of a change in the workplace could make you a mite uneasy about going ahead with implementing your ideas. Best advice: Ignore the talk and proceed as planned.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Everyone has an opinion on how to handle a recent business suggestion. Thank them for their advice. Then go ahead and follow your own fine instincts.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) While home is your main focus this week, new issues in the workplace need your attention as well. Take things step by step. Pressures ease in time for weekend fun.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Be less rigid when handling a relationship problem. You might believe you're in the right, but try to open your mind to the possibilities of facts you're currently not aware of.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Leos and Leonas run at a hectic pace throughout much of the week. But by the 11th, the Lions' Dens become a purrrfect place for you Fine Felines to relax in through the weekend.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Change is favored early in the week. This should make it easier for you to reassess your plans for handling a troubling professional relationship. Good luck.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A suggestion from a colleague could give your professional project that long-needed boost. Meanwhile, someone close to you still needs your emotional support.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Before complying with a colleague's request, check to see that the action benefits all, not just one person's agenda. Continue firming up those travel plans.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your social life is on the upswing, and the only problem is deciding which invitations to accept. Enjoy yourself before settling down for some serious work next week.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) With your creative aspects on high, you might want to restart your work on that novel or painting you put aside. Your efforts will bring a surge in your self-esteem.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) While you're generous with others, be sure you're not overlooking your own needs. Take time to assess your situation and make adjustments where necessary.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Being applauded for your achievement is great. But watch out that you don't start acting like a star. It could lose you valuable support with your next project.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your strong belief in justice, along with your leadership qualities, help you protect the rights of others.

Raymond A. Ciavardini, 73

Retired Typesetter

A funeral Mass for Raymond A. Ciavardini, 73, a lifelong Quincy resident, a retired typesetter, was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) at St. Mary's Church.

He died April 3 at Quincy Medical Center.

Mr. Ciavardini worked 28 years for The Patriot Ledger in Quincy. He was also a furniture salesman for 19 years at Building 19 in Hingham.

He was in the Navy and Air Force for 14 years and served in the Korean War.

He is survived by his wife, Margaret J. (Trifiletti) Ciavardini; a son, Paul M. Ciavardini of Quincy; and a sister, Mary DiCenso of Natick.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St.

Mary M. Murphy, 64

Housekeeper, Nurse's Aide

A funeral Mass for Mary M. (King) Murphy, 64, of Quincy, a housekeeper and nurse's aide, was celebrated Tuesday at St. Ann's Church.

She died April 3 at home.

She was a nurse's aide at Quincy Hospital from 1978 to 1988.

Born in Boston, she was a life-long Quincy resident.

She is survived by a son, Kevin Murphy of Hawaii; two daughters, Kim Murphy of Hawaii and Paula Murphy of Quincy; a sister, Barbara Sayers of North Quincy; and many nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to the Salvation Army, 6 Baxter St., Quincy 02169.

Paul Harold Honored As Sun 'Citizen Of Year'

sporting running club's names. Paul showed up with a shirt saying "Thomas Crane Public Library."

"I said, 'Paul, why are you wearing that shirt?' He said, 'I have to promote the city and the library asked me to help them out.' He never forgot the city.

"On ski trips up to New Hampshire, he'd always show up three hours after the last event in Quincy, whether it be the Broad Meadows spring concert or something else like that. He had his priorities and it was always the city of Quincy and his people."

Paul Harold was selected as the recipient of the award by a panel of judges from among 24 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers.

Harold had a deep love and respect for history — especially Quincy's history.

He was instrumental with the Quincy Historical Society in having the Presidents John and John Quincy Adams Birthplaces transferred from city ownership to the National Park Service in 1979 to assure the proper upkeep of those historic sites which were showing their age at the time.

And before his death last Aug. 12 at age 53, he was working on plans to have the Dorothy Quincy Homestead become part of the Adams National Historical Park for the same reason.

A faithful son, he combined his love for his father and mother, Joseph R. and Marguerite Harold, with his love for Quincy's history by donating two handsome Victorian chandeliers in their memory for the city council chamber, which was restored to its appearance when Quincy became a city.

His political career spanned more than a quarter century as city councillor, city council president, state senator and Norfolk County Register of Deeds. He was in his second year in the latter office at the time of his death.

He was elected to the city council in 1975 and made local political history two years later when he was re-elected at-large by 21,243 votes — the most ever received by a city council candidate since Quincy became a city 114 years ago. The record still stands.

Many believe he could have been mayor if he wanted to but chose not to run for that office.

He was the most widely traveled of any elective official in the city's history, going overseas to many countries for the U.S. Information Agency to teach American values.

He received degrees and certificates from such institutes as the John Hopkins Euro Center in Bologna, Italy, and Worcester College in Oxford, England.

He was a visiting professor of American studies at University College in Cork, Ireland, and locally taught at Quincy College, Curry College and Aquinas Junior College.

He was a board member of the National Center for International Visitors in Washington, D.C., where he hosted State Department visitors including Queen Noor of Jordan, Prince Bander of Saudia Arabia and David Lange, prime minister of New Zealand.

He met many notable world figures overseas and here including Pope John Paul and Mother Teresa as well as Presidents Jimmy Carter and Bill Clinton.

He was as much at ease in their presence as he was with a campaign worker.

A graduate of then Broad Meadows Junior High School, he proudly carried the school banner to the school in Pakistan that Broad Meadows Middle School students raised money to build in memory of Iqbal Masih, a 12-year-old former child labor slave who visited Broad Meadows in 1994 seeking students' help to end child labor. He was murdered on his return home.

In his memory, Broad Meadows students of Ron Adams, The Sun Citizen of the Year in 1999, spearheaded a drive that raised $147,000 to build a five-room school in Iqbal's name.

The Broad Meadows banner that Harold delivered was hung on a wall in honor in the Pakistan school.

Harold was active in the community. He was a supervisor of the Adams Temple and School Fund, served on the Governing Board of the Quincy Historical Society, Greater Boston Boy Scouts Council, American Red Cross, the Quincy Salvation Army Advisory Board and the Quincy College Trust Committee. He was also a former president of the Quincy Harvard Club.

He was a graduate of UMass-Amherst with a degree in government, Suffolk Law School and the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard where he received a master's degree in public administration.

He started his public career as a reporter for The Quincy Sun in 1969. He originated and for many years wrote The Sun's popular Quincy's Yesterdays column. He wrote his last one just a few days before his death.

The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year Award was also his idea. And he was nominated for it several times down through the years but disqualified himself, preferring instead to serve on the judging panel to honor someone else.

"Paul is missed but will be fondly and long remembered," Henry Bosworth said in closing the award ceremony.

Adams National Park Seeks Temp Workers

The Adams National Historical Park is accepting applications for two temporary, full time jobs as museum technician and laborer.

Deadline for museum technician applications is Monday, April 21, and the laborer is Friday, April 18.

The position of museum technician involves the care, maintenance and preservation of historic buildings and their contents. He or she will also help in cataloguing the collection, entering records, editing data and make periodic inventories.

The laborer position calls for janitorial maintenance of public areas, including restrooms and kitchens and assistance in moving materials and equipment for special events, lifting and carrying items weighing up to 75 pounds.

To be eligible, applicants must be United States citizens and submit an Optional Federal Employment Form or resume to Adams National Historical Park, Personnel Division, 135 Adams St., Quincy, MA 02169-1749 with all supporting documentation.

At Crowded Public Hearing

Support Even For New Open Space, Parks Upgrading

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Supporters of refurbishing the city's parks and advocates of acquiring new open space were pretty much evenly divided at a two-hour public hearing Monday night.

A standing room crowd filled the City Council chambers for the hearing called by Mayor William Phelan seeking input from the community regarding the $10 million bond issue for the natural resources space initiative.

More than 150 residents attended and about 30 stepped forward to stress the need to either refurbish the parks or acquire open space.

The opinions were about evenly split, leaving Phelan with much to ponder before sending his final recommendations to the City Council.

Phelan told the audience that the open space committee had met and discussed the use of the bond and wanted input from the community.

When the committee met its recommendations included:

ED KEOHANE
President of the Quincy Partnership
"City Needs Both."

• Using $1 million to provide necessary matching funds for an Army Corps of Engineers wetlands restoration project at Broad Meadows.

• Using $1 million to pay for required cleanup costs at the Highpoint site on Quarry St.,, of which 22 acres will be given to the city as open space.

• Installing a new track and synthetic turf field and constructing restrooms for the disabled at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

• Repaving the Pageant Field parking lot.

• Overhauling various areas at Adams Field including bleachers, the lighting system, restrooms and irrigation system.

Phelan told the audience Monday night that the plan so far is for $1 million to go toward Marshland restora

Keating: 'Everyone Needed To Fight Domestic Violence'

By TOM HENSHAW

District Attorney William Keating told a conference on domestic violence Tuesday night that one of the greatest single factors in curbing domestic violence has been the change in how society views family violence of all kinds.

"And being part of that change, he said, is the contribution that any man — not just a judge, a police officer, a district attorney or legislator — can make," he said.

WILLIAM KEATING

Keating spoke at the launching of the Quincy Campaign Against Family Violence, a drive to collectively encourage a city free from violence.

"Brother, fathers, coaches, teachers, neighbors," said Keating, "anyone can and must get involved and never ignore what they suspect to be a domestic vio

Fenway Park License Plate Would Aid Mini-Fenway

By CHRIS POISSON

Supporters went to bat Tuesday for a bill to create a special Massachusetts license plate of Fenway Park.

Proceeds from the proposed license plate will benefit Mini Fenway Park to be built off Ricciuti Drive in West Quincy.

They spoke at a hearing before the Committee of Public Safety, which took the testimony under advisement.

Lineup of supporters included: Former Red Sox star and Mini Fenway Park, Inc. board member Luis Tiant, state Sen. Michael Morrissey, state Rep. Bruce Ayers and Ron Iacobucci, CEO of South Shore and

Cleaner, Greener Quincy Project Set For May 3

The 14th annual Cleaner, Greener Quincy project will be held Saturday, May 3, announces Mayor William Phelan.

The cleaning will be at parks, beaches and open space areas throughout the city from 9 a.m. to noon.

Last year, more than 1,200 volunteers cleaned more than 10 tons of debris from city public land. Volunteers working with city personnel targeted 22 different spots.

"Cleaner, Greener Quincy is not only a great way to keep our city beautiful, but it is also a chance to build our community," said Phelan. "Every year, residents join forces to clean parks and beaches in their neighborhoods and foster a sense of community pride in the process. I appreciate the work of our volunteers and I urge anyone that hasn't joined us in the past to come out and enjoy the experience.

"With a cooperative effort between our residents and city departments, we can accomplish quite a bit in one day," said Phelan. "Cleaner, Greener Quincy helps our younger people take a sense of ownership in our public lands which can lead to a lifelong stewardship of our parks, beaches, marshes and open spaces."

Following the cleanup Phelan will host an appreciation barbeque for volunteers at the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex from 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m.

Phelan urges those who want to participate in the project to organize a team of volunteers and select a cleanup site. The Park Department will support cleanup efforts with the necessary tools, including rakes, brooms, bags, gloves and other equipment.

All volunteers will receive a Cleaner-Greener Quincy t-shirt.

Those wanting to volunteer or asking for more information may call the Park Department at (617) 376-1254.

A WELCOME RETURN – Mayor William Phelan (center) is presented with a citation from National Guard Sgt. Michael Eastwick for the city's support during Operation Enduring Freedom in Afghanistan. Eastwick and fellow National Guardsmen returned home recently along with the city's flag, which was signed by the mayor and families of the men. The National Guardsmen returned the favor by signing the flag themselves. From the left are: Director of Information Technology Ron Donovan, Sgt. Bill Mitchell, Sgt. Military Officers, City Flag Return From Afghanistan

Members of the National Guard from Quincy returned from Afghanistan last week and brought with them the city's flag sent there by Mayor William Phelan.

Sgt. Michael Eastwick, Sgt. Paul Foley, Sgt. Bill Mitchell, Cpl. Dennis Keenan and Sgt. Dan Parisi met with Phelan and presented him with the flag and a certificate praising the city for its support during Operation Enduring Freedom.

The flag was signed by Mayor Phelan in January and sent to Bagram Air Force Base in Afghanistan.

The National Guardsmen returned the favor by also signing the flag for its return home.

New Firefighter Appointed

Three Promoted In Fire Department

Three Quincy firefighters were promoted and another was hired during a swearing-in ceremony Monday at City Hall.

Mayor William Phelan presided over the ceremony while City Clerk Joseph Shea performed the official swearing-in of the officers.

"These promotions are well-deserved," said Phelan. "The Quincy Fire Department has a long history of rewarding excellence and loyalty. These promotions continue that tradition."

New Deputy Chief George McGunagle joined the department in 1975. He was promoted to Lieutenant in 1984 and Captain in 1989. He was the acting deputy chief since August, 2002. Currently, he is the group 4 commander.

McGunagle is a second-generation firefighter, the son of retired Capt. George F. McGunagle and nephew of William and Walter McGunagle, also veterans of the department.

Many members of McGunagle's family were in attendance at the ceremony, including his wife, Carole McKeon McGunagle, their children, Mark and Melissa; mother, Ruth Howard McGunagle; brother, Lt. Michael McGunagle; and brother in-law, Deputy Chief Anthony J. Innello.

New Captain Dennis O'Brien was appointed to the fire department in 1978. He was promoted to Lieutenant in 1991 and has been acting Captain since August, 2002. He is currently assigned to the Houghs Neck Fire Station.

New Lieutenant Paul Leonard was appointed to the fire department in 1987 and was promoted to acting Lieutenant in August, 2002. Currently, he is assigned to the West Quincy Fire Station.

The city also hired new firefighter Gerald Murphy, who was appointed last summer but was unable to take the position due to military duty. Murphy was called up by the US Navy and served overseas. He returned recently to take the position.

Report Shows City Would Lose $6 Million In Local Aid

Gov. Mitt Romney's proposed budget for fiscal 2004 would cut Quincy's share of local aid by 14 percent, or approximately $6 million, according to a new report.

Released by the Massachusetts Budget and Policy Center (MBPC), the report estimates that the city's Chapter 70 monies, which are earmarked for education programs, would jump almost seven percent, to $18 million. However, unrestricted aid to the city would dive by 30 percent to $17 million, the report said.

Overall, the city's share of local aid from the state would decrease by 14 percent, or almost $6 million.

Local aid payments from the state fall into three categories: Chapter 70 funds, unrestricted aid, and categorical aid.

Chapter 70 funds are distributed to local communities for the costs of maintaining their school systems. School Building Assistance (SBA) funds are included in this category also, as well as monies for school lunch programs and school transportation.

Unrestricted aid, which consists mainly of state funds from the lottery, is the area that has been cut drastically, according to the MBPC. This money can be used for general government purposes.

Categorical aid is the smallest portion of local aid from the state and can be used by local communities for specific uses, such as libraries and veterans programs.

Historic Sites Open Saturday, Monday

The National Park Service will open the Adams National Historic Sites, to the public Saturday, April 19.

They include the Adams Birthplaces at 133 and 141 Franklin St., where Presidents John Adams and his son John Quincy Adams were born.

And the Adams Mansion at 135 Adams St., which became the summer White House for two generations of Adams presidents.

The Dorothy Quincy Homestead, where John Hancock courted his wife-to-be, will be open for visitors starting on Monday, April 21.

Tours of the house at 34 Butler Rd., Quincy, will begin at 1 p.m. and continue until 4 p.m. Admission will be free for the holiday.

The Homestead is owned by the state but furnished with vintage furniture, utensils and clothing by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames, which administers the property.

Newton Not Running

There will be another open city council seat -- an unexpected one -- in this year's city election.

Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton will not seek a third term.

NEWTON

"I am not going to run," he confirms. "Because of personal time demands I now have, I feel I just won't be able to dedicate the time necessary to faithfully serve the people of Ward 6. I don't think it would be fair to them."

Among matters needing personal time and attention:

He and his fiancee, Laura MacKnight are planning a Nov. 15 wedding. "There's a lot to it," he says.

Newton is trying to find the time to remodel a house they bought on Aberdeen Rd. in Squantum. "It needs work from top to bottom," he says.

And, after the wedding:

"We want to start a family."

Newton calls his two terms as Ward 6 councillor a "labor of love."

"I am going to miss it. I love the job and the people. But I just have to take a breather. As councillor I am hardly ever home. Seems every night there is something to do -- meetings or someplace to go -- and telephone calls to return."

Newton was elected to the city council in 1999, the same year as Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley. And they will be leaving together. Hanley, now a Pembroke resident, is vacating his seat at the end of the year.

"But I can always run again -- he can't," muses Newton. "Maybe in a couple of years I will try again."

Time is on his side there. He's only 35.

NEWTON'S DECISION not to seek re-election should produce a more crowded field of contenders for the seat.

MAHONY

BRACKEN

Maryann Mahony, who has run twice against Newton, had already decided to run again. And Mark Bracken, a law school student had announced his candidacy.

Atty. William Keener is getting in the race. He is expected to announce his candidacy at a reception Tuesday, April 22, 6-8 p.m. at Murphy's Twin Shamrocks, Hancock St., North Quincy. (Tickets $25. For more information: 617-984-2044).

KEENER

Keener was one of the 15 candidates for the school committee seat William Phelan left after being elected mayor. The seat went to Elaine Dwyer at a joint convention of the city council and school committee.

Newton's decision might be just the thing to bring Brian McNamee back into Ward 6 contention.

McNamee has been thinking of running in Ward 6 or at-large and is planning an "announcement reception" for May 1, 6-9 p.m. at the Great Western Adams Inn, North Quincy.

McNAMEE

McNamee, now the chief financial officer for the South Essex Sewer District based in Salem, ran for the Ward 6 seat in 1997.

He defeated Newton in the preliminary election that year but lost to Bruce Ayers, now a state representative, in the final.

Newton's departure may be the convincer for McNamee to go for the open Ward 6 seat instead of at-large.

There could be other candidates getting in.

TECHNICALLY, THERE'S A third open seat -- the at-large one held by John Keenan.

Keenan was named by the council in February to fill the seat vacated by Tim Cahill after he became state treasurer.

KEENAN

Keenan will kick off his "Keep Keenan Campaign" Wednesday, April 23, 6-8 p.m. at the Common Market, Willard St.

Tickets are $26 and available at the door. For more information, call 617-786-9406.

FORMER WARD 1 Councillor Leo Kelly will also kick off his campaign for the Ward 1 seat Wednesday, April 23, 7-10 p.m. at the Bryan VFW Post, Broad St.

Kelly, now chairman of the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission, held that seat from 1974-1984.

KELLY

Suggested donation for the event is $15 per person, $25 per couple. Tickets available at the door.

IT TOOK FIVE years, but Jerry Dacey finally has his missing hat back. (Or, is it a look-alike?)

His beloved black and white woolen Brooks Brothers cap disappeared Dec. 16, 1998 at a joint meeting of the Quincy Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions Clubs at the Neighborhood Club.

DACEY

Jerry, a Rotarian, offered a $5 reward "no questions asked" for its safe return at the time. No response, however.

But Jerry never gave up hope.

And, the other night at the Beechwood Life Center benefit dinner coincidentally at the Neighborhood Club, seven representatives of the three service clubs took him by surprise.

Rotarians Tom Accomando, Joe Cappadona, Steve Marini, Peter Racicot; Lions Don Uvanitte and Ed O'Leary, and Kiwanian Bob Bosworth stunned him by producing the cap. (Somehow, it looked newer than when Jerry lost it.)

"I'm grateful," he managed to say. "My head has been cold for the past five years."

Okay, Jerry, now cough up the five bucks. (Can seven guys split it?)

Incidentally, Dan Flynn, the dynamic emcee and auctioneer at the dinner, was marking his 40th birthday. And at the end of the evening celebrated by buying drinks for everyone in the house.

FLYNN

Happy birthday, kid.

Gov. Romney Speaker At Chamber Luncheon Today

Gov. Mitt Romney will be the guest speaker at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Annual Luncheon Meeting today (Thursday) from 11:44 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at Lombardo's in Randolph.

Jim Welch, 2002 chairman of the South Shore Chamber, will be honored at the luncheon.

Admission is $30 for members and $40 for non-members. Tables of 10 are available for $300.

For tickets, call 617-479-1111.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS ANTIQUE POSTCARD was mailed from the old Atlantic post office in December, 1912 to St. Louis, Missouri. It is a view of the public landing with pier and floats that was located at the foot of Atlantic Street on Quincy Shore Drive. The postcard is titled Moswetusket Landing, which is a spelling variation of the Indian name for the Hummock just across the bay to the left of this view. Commonly spelled Moswetuset today, the Indian name loosely means arrowhead shaped hill. Branscheid & Martens, who operated two variety stores at the time, one on Sagamore Street near the Atlantic Depot and the other on Billings Road in Norfolk Downs, published the postcard.

Emergency Preparedness For Seniors Program Has Interesting, Beneficial Information

I wish to acknowledge my gratitude to the Citizen Police Academy Alumni Association and the Quincy Police Department for the outstanding program in Emergency Preparedness for Seniors that entailed eight hours of interesting and beneficial information.

This program included some of the following topics:

- How to prepare for an emergency
- Emergency supply of food and the equipment needed in such an event
- Emergency first aid, Examples C.P.R., how to recognize the difference between a heart attack and stroke, etc.
- What is needed in a first aid kit.
- Working together in your neighborhood
- The City's plan for emergencies
- Defining the Terror Alert Chart and that fact that this chart is used for natural disasters.

It is my understanding that five members of the Citizens Police Academy and a Quincy Police Officer were certified to instruct the Community Emergency Response Team program. Therefore, I want to thank this excellent team: Sgt. Dan Mitton, Officer Bob Hanna and Citizens Police Academy Alumni Association volunteers Steve Buckley, Mark Gillis, Terry LaBelle and Donna Lymneos.

I received an identification contact card that displays my picture, personal information and two contact persons. This card will be valuable in all emergencies that may confront us.

The program that the Community Emergency Response Team had presented to the senior citizens at the Bauer House will enable me to be more aware of situations that could be problematic in my daily life.

My aim is that these instructive programs will survive by continuing to fund the Quincy Police Academy because the benefits to the citizenry is undisputable.

I implore our elected officials to support the Quincy Police Academy.

Support Our Troops

The show of support for our troops fighting over in Iraq has been outstanding. Men, women, children, young and old alike getting together to let those in uniform thousands of miles away know that we remember them and the sacrifices they are making for all of us.

There have been several rallies supporting the troops here on the South Shore. Ordinary people coming forward standing up to the loud anti-Bush, anti-war crowd that simply doesn't get it.

This is part of the same anti-war crowd a generation ago that villified returning American soldiers as baby-killers. Sometimes a country has to fight and I commend President Bush for standing up to the so ineffective United Nations. President George H.W. Bush could have saved us a lot of trouble 12 years ago had he completed the job but it took his son to do that.

Last Saturday, Quincy residents help up signs of support for our troops and another rally is scheduled in Quincy Saturday, April 26 on Quincy Shore Drive at noon.

However, this coming weekend on Saturday, April 19 the Line of Support rally will be held from Castle Island to Southie to Wollaston Beach. People will attempt to form a line of support over the 8.8 miles. For more information, you can contact www.lineofsupport.com.

When the war is over, we can all debate how the war was handled. However, right now we need to support those risking their lives for us.

It is important to show our support of those in the battlefield.

Sal J. Giarratani

What Is The Difference?

We are pulverizing Iraq "for Freedom and Democracy."

Two seemingly opposing views of the world are engaged in mortal combat in Iraq: Dictatorial and Democratic.

In a Dictatorial System, you may be beheaded if you talk against the Government.

In a Democratic System, you may talk your head off and nobody pays attention.

How much sense does it make for President George W. Bush to send several hundred thousand young Americans to die for The American Democratic System?

Service To End On Old Colony Line

This Week
1949
54 Years Ago

Laurence F. Whittemore, president of the New Haven Railroad, said that unless some new source of revenue is found passenger service to the South Shore on the Old Colony Line will end in a few months.

"It is my opinion," he said, "that if we cannot relieve the cost of operating this service by some such arrangement as state purchase of the South Station we will not be able to continue after this summer."

Whittemore said when the New Haven applied for rate increases in New York it was told, "We won't give you a cent until you stop wasting money on the Old Colony in Massachusetts."

He placed losses at $1.7 million in 1947 and $2.2 million in 1948.

FIREARMS BAN

Mayor Charles A. Ross filed an ordinance with the City Council that would ban firearms within the city limits except by licensed gun clubs and military organizations.

Allen H. Hermances, Jr., 20, of Milton, was shot and killed April 2 by a stray bullet while he was target shooting at Lyon's Quarry. The shot was believed to have been fired by another target shooter.

"The time has come when we must put a stop to tragedies like this," Ross said.

TRAILER CAMP OPPOSED

Mrs. Ambrose S. Thomas, president of the Squantum Women's Club, announced that the club will revive its fight for a city takeover of Squantum Park to forestall construction of a trailer camp.

Mayor Ross said that a prominent Boston politician had been trying to get a permit to establish such a camp there but that Ross had turned it down. The area is owned by the city of Boston.

"A trailer camp is unthinkable," said Mrs. Thomas. "The fact that a trailer camp was even considered shows how important it is for the Squantum Park to be taken over as a public park."

QUINCY-ISMS

A poll taken by the Quincy Chamber of Commerce revealed that 95 percent of Quincy shoppers favor improvement of downtown parking under a bill which would permit Quincy to borrow up to $150,000 for a parking project. . . Clifford W. Kelly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Murray T. Kelly, 316 Beale St., Wollaston, finished basic Army infantry training at Fort Benning, GA. . . The Rev. Walter B. Quincy Rotary Club Kids' Auction Classic To Be Held May 1

The Quincy Rotary Club will host its Kids' Classic Auction 2003 Thursday, May 1 at the Quincy Neighborhood Club, 27 Glendale Rd.

The event begins at 6 p.m. with a silent auction and cocktail reception, followed by dinner and a live auction at 7 p.m.

Daniel Flynn, CEO of Daniel J. Flynn & Co. Real Estate, will serve as auctioneer.

The auction will feature hundreds of items to bid on.

There will also be a drawing featuring a grand prize of a trip to Bermuda donated by Fallon Ambulance Service. Tickets for the raffle are $25 each.

Phyllis Godwin of Granite City Electric and Bob Curry of Curry Hardware are co-chairmen of the event.

"Plans are moving along very well for this special event," said Peter Racicot, president-elect of Quincy Rotary. "We are always on the lookout for more donations for the auction. We hope that businesses and individuals will come forth to help make this our best year yet."

Among the other auction items are a membership to the dating service Successful Singles; four Red Sox tickets donated by Tiger Home Inspection; numerous other Red Sox and sporting tickets; a one-year membership to the South Shore YMCA in Quincy; several trips including a week in Florida; a scenic flight over the Cape and Islands with lunch in Nantucket; golf at TPC in Norton; and other prizes.

The auction is one of Quincy Rotary's two large fundraisers. Proceeds will benefit a number of local charities, including scholarships to graduating seniors at Quincy High School and North Quincy High School.

Admission to the auction is $40 per person which includes dinner.

For more information, contact Peter Racicot at 617-698-0215 ext. 117.

Wollaston Child Care Center Hosts Child ID Program

DR. PEYMAN KHADIVI, D.D.S. does a dental impression on Brian James Gutro, 2 months old, who is held by Shirley Jean Black, a member of the Wollaston Child Care Center Board of Directors. Brian is the son of Susan Gutro (right) and Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro. The Wollaston Child Care Center hosted the Child Identification Program in cooperation with the Wollaston Lodge of Masons, the Massachusetts Dental Society and the Crime Prevention Officers Association.

QUINCY COMMUNITY POLICING Officer Bob Edgars fingerprints Kate Lydon, 5, at the Child Identification Program held recently at the Wollaston Child Care Center, 47 Weston Ave. Parents and guardians of the community were invited to bring their children for a brief taped interview, fingerprints, and dental impressions. All items were given to the parent or guardian for safe-keeping at no cost.

KAYLA GRALTAU, age 2, has her fingers printed by Quincy Community Policing Officer Ralph Radzevich while her aunt, Tina Brennan (kneeling) and her mom, Angela Perito (partially hidden, standing up) look on. The CHIP program addresses the alarming fact that more than one million children are reported missing each year. The program is provided free of charge to all participants. Quincy Sun Photos/Trish Bossart

Squantum Resident, Former Quincy Manager

Marsha Cannon Appointed New Boston Postmaster

Marsha A. Cannon, former Quincy Post Office manager and Squantum resident, has been appointed postmaster of Boston.

Cannon, postmaster of Cambridge before the appointment, was manager of the Quincy Post Office from 1981 to 1983. She has lived on Crabtree Rd., since 1981.

In assuming management of the oldest Post Office in North America, Cannon becomes the 51st in a line of Boston postmasters going back to Richard Fairbanks who was appointed the first postmaster in the American colonies by King Charles I in 1639. She is the third woman to hold the position.

Succeeding John W. (Mike) Powers, who was named Middlesex/Central District Manager, Cannon served in her Cambridge post since March 1998.

MARSHA CANNON

The Boston Post Office services more municipalities than any Post Office in the United States. In her new position Cannon will be responsible for 103 postal stations and branches located in 24 cities and towns. She will manage 4200 postal employees and the daily delivery of mail to 725,000 delivery points. This area comprises the entire 021, 022, and 024 ZIP Code areas except for the City of Cambridge.

Cannon began her postal career as a distribution clerk at the then General Post Office (now John W. McCormack Station) in downtown Boston. She entered the Management Trainee program in 1974 and has held numerous positions in both the customer services and mail processing functions in Boston including manager of Operations Programs Support, manager, Station/Branch Administration, tour superintendent and general supervisor.

She has served on several USPS Headquarters, Regional and Area task forces, her knowledge of delivery operations being highly valued by USPS top management.

A native of Charlestown, Cannon grew up in Dorchester and graduated in 1965 from St. Gregory High School. She attended Boston State College.

Cannon lives with her husband, Bob Cannon, USPS spokesperson and manager, Public Affairs for eastern and central Massachusetts. Her father, the late Richard Brady, was the manager of the Chestnut Hill Branch of the Boston Post Office.

Of her appointment Cannon said, "Of course, it's a dream come true. I am deeply proud and honored by my long association with the United States Postal Service and especially with the highly dedicated postal employees in Boston. I look forward to helping them provide the best possible service to the customers of the Boston Post Office."

MELISSA NEWTON, OWNER of Creed's Crossing on Beale St., holds a damaged, three-foot Corpus of Christ from the Sacred Heart Church in North Quincy. Newton, who repairs and restores religious items, spent more than a month restoring this particular statue.

Restoring Religious Items A 'Healing Process'

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The Easter season is always the busiest time of year for Melissa Newton, owner of Creed's Crossing at 25 Beale St., Wollaston.

Newton derives satisfaction from restoring and repairing religious items from area residents, including Quincy's large population of citizens who practice the Roman Catholic, Protestant and Greek Orthodox faiths.

Among the items she restores are family heirlooms, processional crosses, religious statues, rosary beads, Christmas ornaments and framed prints.

"Many people do not want to part with something special, so they would rather have it restored," said Newton, who opened Creed's Crossing five years ago. "As a spiritual person myself, I do invite the Holy Spirit to guide me, and it just makes the work more intimate."

Using special paint, brushes and other restoration tools, Newton labors over small details of an item. Sometimes it can take months to repair an item.

Currently, the lifelong Quincy resident is repairing a three-foot crucifix of Christ, which is part of a large wall display at Sacred Heart Parish in North Quincy. The Christ figure came into her store with damaged feet, hands and shoulders. Restoration of the item is almost complete, she said.

Last year, she restored a wall mosaic of the Last Supper from St. Ann's Church in Wollaston. She said she hopes to do more work for local parishes and churches.

"I've always had a natural inclination not to be afraid to repair something," said Newton, who was chosen as Class Artist during her days at North Quincy High School. She said she learned most of her creative skills while a student at the school.

After restoration is complete, Newton said reuniting an item with its owner can be a very emotional experience.

"Many times I have cried along with the owner when they see the finished product," she said. "It is a healing process. They feel so blessed when they get something back and it looks almost like new."

THE FINISHED PRODUCT – Newton and Rev. John O'Brien, pastor of Sacred Heart Church, inspect the restored Corpus of Christ as it is placed back on a cross in the church.

Indicates It Will Be His Last Run

Francis McCauley Will Seek Re-election To City Council

Councillor Francis McCauley officially announced Wednesday that he will seek re-election to his at-large council seat in the fall election.

The former mayor, who will complete 30 years in municipal elective office this year, indicated this will be his last run.

In announcing his decision to seek re-election, McCauley said:

"Although I had originally planned on not seeking re-election to the city council, concerned citizens have convinced me that today's financial constraints warrant and experienced, mature presence on the city council.

FRANK McCAULEY

"Therefore, I am pledging my commitment to the stability of our finances and will be a candidate for re-election to one more term on the city council,"

The Sun reported in January that McCauley, known as "the financial watchdog of the council," was thinking of not running and closing out his political career this year.

The article resulted in residents urging him to seek another term, citing the financial challenges facing the city.

McCauley will be seeking his eighth term on the council, his sixth at-large.

His 30 years in elective office include eight as mayor, 10 as councillor at-large, four as Ward 1 councillor and eight on the School Committee.

He is the only one in the city's history to be elected to all four municipal offices.

In addition, he was appointed to the Quincy Housing Authority Board of Commissioners for five years and served six years as executive director of the State Retirement Board, an appointment by State Treasurer Joseph Malone.

McCauley is married to the former Sandra MacKinnon of Quincy. They have five adult children and 13 grandchildren.

He is the author of "Quincy, Massachusetts: A Political History" covering the city from 1889 to the year 2000 and published as part of the city's millennium celebration.

River Bay Club Conducting 'Operation Shoebox' For Military

"Operation Shoebox," a program that encourages residents to support their men and women deployed overseas, is underway at the River Bay Club.

The River Bay Club, a Brookdale Living Community, provider of Exceptional Senior Living, is collecting items throughout the month of April.

The program urges citizens to collect items – such as batteries, toothpaste, dry goods and deodorant – and send them to the troops overseas.

Additional items include: soft toilet paper, travel games, playing cards, writing paper and pens, disposable razors, dental floss, mouthwash and cereal in small boxes.

Anyone who wishes to donate items can drop them off at the River Bay Club, 99 Brackett St. Quincy, or call for pickup at 617-472-4457.

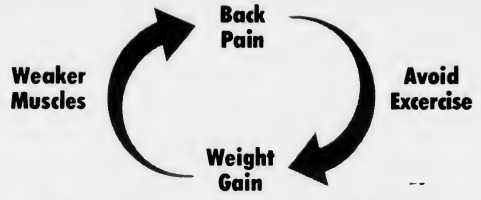
Jay Roche New President Of School-Community Partnership

Jay Roche, vice chairman of Roche Bros. and Sudbury Farms, was recently elected president of the Quincy School-Community Partnership.

Roche succeeds Kevin Meskell who decided to step down as president after a decade leading the partnership.



The Quincy School Community Partnership pairs businesses with public schools. Businesses provide services to school students and help the schools develop courses and programs.

Representatives of the schools and businesses in the partnerships attended last week's event naming Roche as president. Held at the Boston Marriott Quincy Hotel, the event was attended by Mayor William Phelan and featured speeches by Roche and Peter Meade, executive vice president of Blue Cross-Blue Shield of Massachusetts.

Founded in 1988, the partnership originally was made up of 13 member businesses.

The organization has grown to include 120 business members now.

70 Residents Attend Beaches And Coastal Commission Meeting

About 70 residents recently turned out to hear an update from the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission as it moves toward its goal of creating a Quincy Coastal Heritage Trail guidebook and map.

The commission is compiling a record of all of Quincy's recreational, historical and cultural resources along the coastline.

Held at the Thomas Crane Public Library, the meeting allowed residents to provide input into the creation of the guidebook and map.

"We had a great turnout," said Leo Kelly, chairman of the commission. "This demonstrates that Quincy's residents have great concern and love for its coastlines. This was one of the most active meetings I've ever attended.

"Greater public input will lead to better results for the project. Quincy's coastlines are truly a treasure and one of our most important assets," he said.

A survey was sent to residents recently asking them to assist in documenting the coastline.

Input from the surveys will be incorporated into the final products, said Kelly.

The meeting was attended by Mayor William Phelan and Dave Murphy, program manager of the Quincy Park Department.

Bruce Berman from Save the Harbor/Save the Bay, the organization whose grant has made the project possible, also attended the meeting.

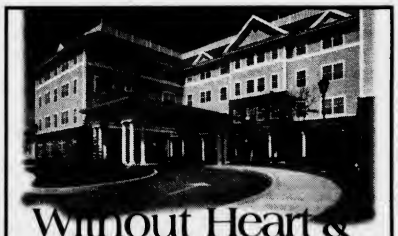
Rhode Island Nightclub Fire Victim Was Quincy Native

Kevin J. Dunn was looking forward to attending the Red Sox game on Patriot's Day with his kid brother.

But that prospect ended two months ago on Feb. 20, when Dunn was one of 99 persons killed as fire swept through the Station night club in West Warwick, R.I.

Dunn, 37, who lived in Attleboro for the past eight years, was not readily identified as a victim with Quincy, where he was born and attended school.



"He was at the club with his friend, John Gibbs," said his mother, Mrs. Teresa Dunn of 500 Washington St., Quincy Point. "John just made it out. Kevin didn't."

Dunn, a sheet metal worker, leaves his wife, Eileen, and a daughter, Joanna, who was 13 months old at the time of the fire.

"I'd like to thank those who remembered Kevin and sent their condolences, including cards, phone calls, thoughts and prayers," said Teresa Dunn.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Colossal Cheesecake

I'm always looking for an easy way to make one of my favorite desserts - cheese cake....it should be called cheese pie though...And I finally found one that is the best one yet and the simplest to make especially if you buy the graham cracker crust already made. This is the one we will have for Easter.

Cheesecake Crust

1 1/2 cups graham cracker crumbs
2 tablespoons light brown sugar
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
6 tablespoons butter or margarine melted

Filling and topping

32 ounces cream cheese softened
1 cup sour cream
1 1/2 cups sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
4 large eggs
grated rind from 1 lemon
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon vanilla

Heat oven to 350 degrees

For the crust, mix the crumbs, sugar cloves. Stir in the butter. Press over bottom and halfway up the sides of a 9 inch pan. Refrigerate.

For the filling, beat the cream cheese for about minute. Add the sugar and cornstarch and beat until smooth. Beat in the eggs one at a time. Beat in rind, juice and vanilla. Pour into crust.

Bake for 55 to 60 minutes. Spread the sour cream over the top and bake for another 15 minutes. Let cool and then refrigerate it until cold.

When serving, strawberries or pineapple slices are a wonderful addition.

Quincy's Scottish Heritage Historical Society Topic

Guest lecturer Peter Preble will present an illustrated history of Quincy's Scottish community at a meeting of the Quincy Historical Society, Thursday, April 24, at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy, Quincy Center.

Preble will discuss the patterns of Scottish immigration to colonial America and the United States, both directly from Scotland and via Canada. He will focus on the historical contribution of Scots to Quincy, particularly in the granite and shipbuilding industries, the influence of the Scottish community on the life of the city, and on that community's continuing vitality.

Preble, a Quincy native of Scottish ancestry and a former teacher, is currently a seminarian at St. John's Seminary.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission fee.

Granite Railway Tour April 26-27

Mass Bay Railroad Enthusiasts and the MDC announce the first Granite Railway Quarry-to-Wharf tour of the year will be held Saturday, April 26 and Sunday, April 27.

Participants will explore the remnants of the first chartered U.S. commercial railroad in West Quincy and East Milton. Tour includes visits to the preserved 1826 Bunker Hill Ledge terminus; the 1830 double-track incline; parts of the abandoned right-of-way; several quarries with spectacular views; and the stone Neponset River wharf.

The two guided, limited-capacity, three and a half hour van tour departs April 26 and April 27 at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. (The Sunday morning tour runs only with sufficient advance reservations).

A $5 donation is requested from all tour participants to help defray the cost of the van rental.

Pre-registration is required. For more information or to pre-register, call Vic Campbell, tour leader, at 617-822-4046.

Other tours are scheduled June 7-8 and July 19-20.

For information on related activities and exhibits, call the MDC at 617-698-1802; Friends of the Blue Hills, 781-326-0079; or the Quincy Historical Society, 617-773-1144.

Tenacious Quincy Attorney Wins Biggest Award For Paraplegic

Paraplegic Mary Cooper of Shirley is more than $6 million richer, thanks to the tenacity of Quincy attorneys Peter Eleey and Richard Corbett.

It is believed to be the highest court settlement of a paraplegia spinal cord injury in Massachusetts history.

Cooper, 37, a firefighter and single mother of 5-year-old Hannah, was paralyzed from the waist down in an auto accident on Route 2 in Westminster in November, 2000.

The car she was driving was rear-ended by a truck in a chain of accidents that began when the auto in front of her swerved to avoid an old rug that had fallen in the road from another vehicle.

At fault in the accident was obviously the person or persons who left the rug in the road. But who was it and how do you find him or her?

Enter Eleey and Corbett.

Eleey located a dump two exits from the accident scene. He subpoenaed the dump's records and found that six trucks had dumped loads at the facility before the accident that day.

One truck, owned by Waste Management, a Texas company, had picked up a trash container at Rome Furniture Store in Gardner just 20 minutes before the accident took place. Store records showed that the store had recently replaced several old rugs.

Eleey put the rug remnant in his car and began making the rounds. The first stop was the home of Paul Breen in Templeton. Breen to one look at the rug and said, "It's mine." It also matched a piece of carpet Breen was using to cover a flight of stairs.

Further investigation showed that the rug had been discarded into the dumpster at the Rome Furniture Store, the same dumpster that had been picked up by Waste Management the day of the accident.

After considering the evidence gathered by Eleey and Corbett, the jury found Waste Management guilty of negligently loading the truck and awarded Mary Cooper the record settlement of more than $6 million.

"I know my life, and that of my daughter, would have been a lot more difficult if Peter and Richard hadn't been so determined to get to the bottom of what happened," said Cooper, who hopes to return to work as a dispatcher.

"This was one of those situations where one piece of evidence led to another, until everything came together," said Eleey. "By sticking with it we were able to make a difference for Mary and Hannah, and we're very gratified by that."

Eleey is a former member of the Governor's Council and a nephew of former Mayor and Senator James McIntyre.

Keating: 'Everyone Needed To Fight Domestic Violence'

tion.

"By calling police or DSS when you see someone behaving erratically around the home, slapping a child in a grocery store, a man grabbing, berating or intimidating his wife or girl friend in public, you help to create a paper trail for authorities.

"If your suspicions are wrong, nothing bad will happen to you or the person you reported. But letting authorities know where there is a possible situation of abuse lets them make contact with that family That can be so important."

Karen Flood of Quincy, a "survivor" of domestic violence herself, told the conference that everyone's life is affected by such violence, not just the person who is abused.

"This message is really to everyone," she said. "Wee need everyone to take some responsibility. Unless we challenge the status quo it will never change."

She quoted Henry Thoreau with a apt saying for the occasion: "It takes two to speak the truth; one to speak and another to listen."

She reminded those in dangerous domestic situations that DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) has a 24-hour hot line they can use by dialing 617-471-1234.

The Quincy Campaign Against Family Violence "will strive to educate city residents and professionals alike about the prevalence of family violence in our communities . . . and give them tools to stop the violence when they see it or offer support when they suspect its occurrence.

The conference also featured Quincy's first "White Ribbon Ceremony," heralding a grass roots campaign, empowering and urging men to take a stand and work alongside women in the effort to end violence against women.

Co-chairs for the White Ribbon Campaign in Quincy are District Attorney Keating, Mayor William Phelan and Sheriff Michael Bellotti.

The Quincy Campaign Against Family Violence is endorsed by a number of Quincy and Norfolk County groups, including:

The city of Quincy, the Manet Community Health Center, District Attorney Keating's Office, the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office Victim Services Unit, the Quincy Housing Authority's Department of Support Services, the Quincy Public Schools.

The Quincy Police Department, the South Shore Mental Health Center, Eastern Nazarene College, Quincy Community Action Programs, the Family Counseling and Guidance Center, Catholic Charities, DOVE, the South Shore YMCA, Quincy Asian Resources and individual Quincy residents.

Taxpayers Association Assails QHS 'Urgently Needed' Label

The Quincy Taxpayers Association (QTA) has urged David Driscoll, the state commissioner of education, to rescind his placement of a new Quincy High School on a "most urgently needed projects" list for state reimbursement.

Alan Cousin, president of the QTA, in a letter to Driscoll, said the city failed top meet state regulations in not considering all the alternatives, not requiring that the new QHS have an expected useful life of 50 years and not seeking a site that would minimize environmental impact.

"Frankly, I was surprised and appalled that Commissioner Driscoll ever gave preliminary approval to this project without addressing the city's failure to meet these regulations," said Cousin. "It makes you wonder if ordinary people can do anything once public officials have decided what they want to do.

"But we cannot and will not just sit by and let this boondoggle be foisted on the taxpayers of Quincy."

Driscoll last week named Quincy as one of 29 communities given "preliminary approval" to receive 90 percent state reimbursement of the cost to build the new high school as long as it approves funding by June 30 and produces other approvals and reports by Aug. 29.

After that, the city takes its place on a waiting list of more than 300.

Cousin's letter to Driscoll said, in part:

"The only alternative ever documented as renovating the existing high school for continuance in its present use. Given that the report was produced by the same firm that will design the new high school, I find their evaluation highly suspect.

"To many Quincy taxpayers, it seems that one of the driving forces behind the high school proposal is the companion proposal to renovate the existing high school to serve as a new Central Middle School. But no documentation exists to show that the existing CMS cannot be renovated or replaced with new construction.

"New construction projects , in order to be approved, would normally have to have an expected useful life of 50 years. Yet the proposed high school will accommodate a smaller number of students than the existing high school. It is reasonable to expect that over 50 years (enrollments) will increase significantly.

"The proposed high school is to be built on a wetland, remediation of which is expected to cost $7.7 million.

"At a time when local and state resources are being stretched beyond the breaking point. it is entirely out of order for this project to be funded, especially without full documentation that all alternatives have been fully and fairly considered."

Thomas Carter Top Producer In Jack Conway's Quincy Office

Thomas Carter has been named the top lister for 2002 in Jack Conway & Co.'s Quincy sales office, company President Richard F. Cahill announces.

Carter received the award from Cahill during the 16th annual Conway Country Convention. The event, which included a trade show, workshops and continuing education courses for agents, was held at the Mansfield Holiday Inn.

"It's a pleasure to recognize the achievements of our agents during the past 12 months," Cahill said. "It's been a great year for our company because of the hard work of agents like Tom."

Also at the convention, former Massachusetts Association of Realtors Executive Officer Milton H. Shaw was named the Conway Country Citizen of the Year. Chairman Jack Conway said Shaw was selected for the honor because of his leadership in the real estate industry. Shaw's book, "Handbook of Real Estate Examinations and Practice," has helped thousands of people prepare for the Massachusetts real estate prelicensing test.

TOP LISTER – Richard Cahill (left), president of Jack Conway & Co., presents an award to Thomas Carter as the Top Lister in office for 2002 in the company's Quincy office. Both Cahill and Carter are Quincy residents.

Founded in 1957, Norwell-based Jack Conway & Co. is the largest independent real estate firm in Massachusetts, with more than 650 associates in 41 offices from Boston to Cape Cod. Last year, the company ranked among the top 100 real estate firms in the United States by REALTOR Magazine, the official publication of the 750,000-member National Association of Realtors.

Scholarships For Real Estate Professionals, Students Available

The Massachusetts Association of Realtors® (MAR) Charitable and Educational Foundation announces the availability of a new series of educational grants for individuals pursuing a professional designation or degree program in real estate or another industry-related field of study.

This year, up to ten $1,000 educational scholarships will be awarded through the MAR Charitable and Educational Foundation's Annual Scholarship Fund. To be eligible to receive a scholarship, students must be a resident of Massachusetts pursuing a college-level educational degree program or professional designation (i.e. GRI, CBR, CIPS, CRS, CRB, CCIM, CPM, SIOR, etc.) in real estate or another industry-related field of study.

Applications are welcome from MAR members and other licensed real estate professionals, as well as the public. However, trustees of the MAR Foundation, members of their immediate family, and relatives of the association president are ineligible to receive scholarship funds.

Qualified applicants must complete a one-page application form and submit it to the MAR Charitable and Educational Foundation by Aug. 1. Selected applicants also may be required to appear before the Foundation's Scholarship Committee to complete a personal interview. Individuals chose to receive scholarships have up to two years from the date grants are awarded to complete their coursework and receive scholarship monies.

Real estate licensees and others interested in learning more about the MAR Charitable and Educational Foundation's 2003 Scholarship Fund may contact their local Realtor® association or the MAR Customer Service Department at 800-725-6272 to obtain a brochure and application form. Scholarship information is also available on the MAR's web site at www.marealtor.com.

Upgrade Your Bathroom, Maximize Its Use

(NU) — It's the room that people talk about the least but renovate the most.

Therefore, the bathroom is one area of the house that should not be overlooked. To ensure you have the most comfortable and functional bathroom, ask yourself this question: How can I maximize the use of light and space to best fit my needs?

First, take into account your family's daily routine. Do you have the bathroom all to yourself or do you share it with others? Do your family members take a lot of time in the morning to get ready for work and school? Do you intend to turn your bathroom into a safe haven you can escape to for a relaxing bath at the end of the day?

Here are some tips for improving your bathroom and modifying it to fit your lifestyle, from Mr. Fix-It Lou Manfredini, home improvement expert, author and "Today" show correspondent:

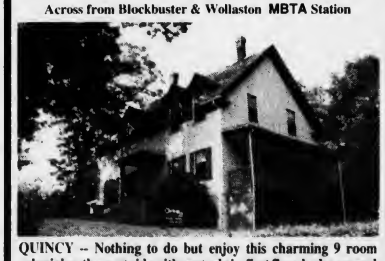
• Use your imagination for creative space solutions. To add space, build a hutch with an additional electrical outlet to accommodate your personal care and first aid items. Make it deep enough to fit all of your toiletries comfortably.

• After you've built your hutch, be sure to stock your bathroom with personal care items that are both convenient and efficient. One to consider is the Philips Sonicare Plus, an electric toothbrush which, according to the manufacturer, is gentle on gums and removes significantly more plaque than a manual toothbrush. And if you want the option of personalizing your shave, the new Norelco Spectra Shaving System is the first razor to feature nine personal comfort settings for all skin types.

• When you're getting ready to face the world every morning, it also is important to see yourself in the best light. Thus, in the bathroom, not only is the position of the lighting important but so is the quality of the lighting. To make a bathroom mirror more effective, follow the universal law: Illuminate the object that's being reflected and not the reflective surface itself. Put fixtures at eye level on either side to create evenly distributed light and avoid unflattering shadows.

Real Estate Workshop At Roche Brothers

Quincy Community Action Programs invites potential real estate buyers to a free three-session workshop April 22, 24 and 29 from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Roche Brothers Supermarket Community Room, 101 Falls Boulevard.



Speakers are real estate professionals. Participants receive a workbook with valuable reference material and a certificate, which is a prerequisite for favorable soft downpayment closing cost assistance.

Home Is The Destination For Boomer Generation

As spas go, this one truly defines luxurious living. It has a "wellness center," a Club Room, billiards and wine rooms, individual "his and her" offices, a kitchen designed for catered entertainment, 10 baths plus a guest suite, limestone floors, gleaming copper and tile roofs and an indoor sport court.

You don't need a membership at this club, however. It's your own home — or it could be, if you count yourself among the multitude of aging Baby Boomers who have earned enough over the years to afford this kind of luxury. And according to industry research, there is no shortage of Americans approaching retirement with sufficient wealth to buy ultra-upscale "empty nester" homes.

Called "home Destinations," this 10,000 square-foot showcase was designed to demonstrate innovative building and home products, along with new concepts in residential living. It was built to coincide with the annual International Builders Show held in Las Vegas in January. Thousands of building professionals were expected to tour the home while it was open for display.

Like many sponsors, the Copper Development Association (CDA) was eager to participate because of the impact the so-called Baby Boom generation will have on housing in the years ahead.

"Ever since they began buying homes, Boomers have exerted enormous influence on the housing market," explains CDA spokesman Ken Geremia. "They worked hard for what they've earned, and they understand quality. They want high-value home products like copper that ensure long-term, maintenance-free performance, and that also makes a statement of good judgment about the homeowner."

By far the biggest bulge in U.S. population is the so-called Baby Boom generation born between 1945 and 1964. Members of this group are just beginning to move into their retirement years, a trend that will continue until around 2010. According to a Harvard Joint Center for Housing Studies report cited by the developers, the median net worth of Boomers is double that of the national average.

"This is a generation raised to expect customization in every major purchase," says a spokesman for the project's principal sponsor, Builder magazine. "Their wealth, expectations and sheer numbers are sure to transform luxury housing."

Included among the many convenience features in the house — an assemblage of interconnected structures that resembles a miniature village — are master-bedroom kitchenettes, dumbwaiters for shuttling laundry and food between floors, centralized electronic controls for all house functions and a full-screen theater in the Club Room. After the convention, the house is expected to be sold at an estimated price of $5 million to $6 million.

The CDA contributed all of the copper sheet for the roofing, gutters and flashing, as well as plumbing materials for the project. "Everything in this house is top-shelf and designed to last," adds Geremia. "The copper plumbing, for example, carries a 50-year warranty, and all the other copper products in the home will still be in service long after the original owners — and possibly even their children — have moved on."

Getting Your Garden Ready For Spring

(NU) – Breathes there a soul whose heart does not skip at the sight of a flower garden in full bloom?

In the spring especially, with its promise of renewal, our steps are made lighter by bright and perky flowers that seem to surround us everywhere. As Green Thumbers know well, a garden can bloom year-round with careful planning and judicious selection of annuals.

Fast-growing, free-flowering and festive, annuals live for the moment. They have to their entire life cycle is less than a year, and often only a few months.

Annual plants come in a variety of colors and shades and can flower in every season. Ortho's "All About Animals" guidebook contains planting instructions for the 300 best annuals.

Early annuals leap from the ground and bloom before perennials know it's spring. Some summer annuals party from June until first frost. Later bloomers carry on past Labor Day with their flowers fading into winter. Tougher plants even survive mild winters.

From geraniums and marigolds to petunias, lobelia and impatiens, even common annuals can make your home come alive with bright colors. And they're easy to plant, inexpensive and trouble-free.

"All About Annuals" explores the surprising seasonal effects possible with annuals. It explains how plant form and structure are the basis for good design. Complete with color photographs, the book also has a "bloom season" chart to help you plan overlapping seasons of color all year.

The book also contains a wealth of information about buying annuals. A few tips:

• Be very picky when you shop. Keep in mind that annuals live only for one season, so buy those that look like they've gotten off to a health start.

• Shop around. Visit several nurseries before you buy to get an idea of what's out there. Buy at outlets that have a wide selection of plants that are attractive, well rooted and vigorous.

• Look at the roots of a potted plant. Tip the plant out of its container to check its roots. If they're tightly wound, the plant is rootbound and generally should be avoided.

• When planting, give them room. Don't crowd them: allow for growth. You may find it helpful to mark with stakes the location of your plants.

Check your local bookseller to buy your new copy of "All About Annuals" or nay of the other 15 new Ortho All About Gardening books on topics ranging from perennials and pruning to roses and garden pools.

Neighborhood Housing Services Homebuyers Workshop May 3

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore, in collaboration with South Shore Savings Bank, will sponsor a free First-Time Homebuyers Workshop Saturday, May 3, at South Shore Savings Bank, 1584 Main St., South Weymouth.

The one-day workshop will run from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Breakfast will be provided.

All potential first-time homebuyers are encouraged to attend this educational workshop. Topics covered include mortgage options, legal aspects of the homebuying process, how a home inspection works and other presentations from real estate professionals.

Down payment grants up to $10,000 per family are available. Participants must complete the workshop to qualify for grant programs.

Advanced registration is required. Call 617-770-2227, ext. 31 or visit www.neighborhoodhousing.org.

Support For New Open Space, Parks Upgrading

tion; $4 million for the acquisition of open space; $2 million for the 22 acres at Highpoint.

Phelan named several areas in Quincy that are considered open space but added, "the city does not take land against people's wishes."

However, one person who lives on Newbury St. one of the areas that Phelan mentioned as open space came forward. Barbara McCaughety said "Mr. Mayor, I want to get off your list—I am the open space, this is a house and I live there."

After a loud applause, Phelan replied "I think we can accomplish this . . . consider yourself off the list." Another loud applause followed.

Bob Griffin, president of the Junior Baseball League said he supports the $4 million for park improvements and cited three main reasons.

- A good safe park system improves the health of both children and adults.
- Parks attract national and state events which the city hosts.
- Quincy is a charitable community using its parks for many road races, arts and other events that raise money for charity.

Bob Curry, owner of Curry Hardware agreed with Griffin and called the effort a "win, win situation - on the same team." He said five or six years ago, the parks in the city were in "deplorable condition," but he said he thinks there in "pretty good condition now."

He said that Boston Magazine in its April issue listed Quincy as the 15th highest city in Massachusetts for open space. Quincy's percentage of open space is 38.56 percent.

While some had praise for Tom Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery departments for doing a "remarkable job," others said when they visit other states and communities and view their parks, sometimes it's an "embarrassment."

Bob Haley, representing the Quincy Taxpayer's Association, said he hoped the money for the park restoration would come from the hotel, motel tax and not the general fund.

Michelle Lydon, who started the Quincy Park Improvement Committee, said she was instrumental in procuring the Collins Rest-A-While as a park and also the Beechwood Knoll park, both of which, she said, is enjoyed by many.

Ed Keohane, head of the Quincy Partnership, said his dream is to make Quincy an "All American City." He said improvements of the parks and acquiring open space are both correct, but warned that "we still have to pay for these things and be fiscally responsible."

Jody Purdy-Quinlan, a member of the Fore River Watershed Association, said it is "good to have open space. Kids need nature as much as they need to hit balls."

Most persons who came forward pleaded with the mayor to consider using monies for open space stating that "people yearn for natural environment . . . if we don't buy the land now, it will be gone forever."

Ken McPhee of Norwell, a teacher and coach in Quincy for 32 years who favored the restoration of parks, said, "The most valuable reserve we have is our children." He said, "Our facilities are hurting — we must have self pride in the city."

Josephine Shea, chairman of the Park and Recreation Board, said she favors the $4 million for parks, citing countless uses for the 51 parks in the city. She said, "Keeping children occupied is keeping them out of trouble."

Geoff Hennessey, a field and track coach said the Babe Ruth World Series which will be held at Adams Field in August, will be played on a field that has locker rooms and the stands all "crying for upgrading."

Clara Yeomans, for years an advocate of conservation and once chairman of the Conservation Commission, said she was "dedicated to saving the planet." She cited the Marshlands, Blue Hills, Furnace Brook and Black's Creek, calling them all "environmental treasures."

As the last of many spersons spoke and sat down, Phelan asked if anyone else wanted to speak. Just then a Houghs Neck resident ran in breathless and said he had been watching the meeting on television and felt compelled to come down and speak.

He said children make up "25 percent of the population; but 100 percent of our future."

After hearing all of the pros and cons for the bond, Phelan thanked everyone who participated and said it looked like "we have more needs than money."

He said the open space committee will have a follow up meeting the first week of May.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

THE ADDED BENEFIT OF DENTAL IMPLANTS

Not only do dental implants provide patients with the most natural looking and feeling tooth replacement available, but implants also perform the important task of preserving the underlying bone. When a tooth is lost, the bone beneath it no longer receives stimulation and, as a result, begins to deteriorate. On the other hand, the anchoring portion of a dental implant forms a strong bond with the jaw, much like the tooth's own natural root. This serves to preserve the stable foundation for replacement teeth and prevents the bone loss that would otherwise be inevitable with missing teeth. Without implants, missing teeth and associated bone loss cause the lower third of the face to collapse and shrink inward.

Could a dental implant improve the look and feel of your mouth? Our experienced dental and support staff takes pride in providing the most comprehensive care possible for all members of your family in a relaxed, comfortable setting. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Remember, when you look good, you feel good. When you come to visit us at 44 Greenleaf Street, you can expect the highest level of cosmetic and restorative dentistry available. Call us at 617-479-6220 for an appointment. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com.

Work Hard, Avoid Drugs And Alcohol

Celtic Paul Pierce Brings Positive Message To 50 Kids At YMCA

Boston Celtics co-captain Paul Pierce addressed more than 50 local children at the South Shore YMCA in Quincy Monday on the importance of hard work, education, and avoiding drugs and alcohol.

"Being positive about education and understanding that through hard work any goal can be accomplished is very important to me and I am happy to share it with today's youth," Pierce said. "Kids today are very easily influenced and it's important that they understand the value and the importance of staying in school."

Pierce also spoke about the positive influence sports can have in one's life and the role basketball has played in his own.

The children that were in attendance are participants at South Shore YMCA's as well as their "One in Three" initiative.

The "One in Three" initiative is designed to involve one in three teenagers in the South Shore area in meaningful YMCA activities. Through the program, participating branches of the South Shore YMCA recruit, hire and train specialized staff focused solely on providing much needed support and services to the teens in their service area.

Also teaming up with Pierce were representatives from McDonald's and Ronald McDonald House Charities (RMHC) of Eastern New England: Edie Stevenson, executive director RMHC; Joe Napoli, McDonald's local owner/operator; and Dan Kiley, McDonald's operating company manager.

"McDonald's and Ronald McDonald House Charities of Eastern New England are proud to partner with the Celtics and Paul Pierce to educate local youth about the importance of hard work and education," Stevenson said.

The Boston Celtics organization has teamed up with local McDonald's restaurants to improve the lives of children and families throughout the region. Since it began in 1986, RMHC has given over $11 million in grants to more than 1,000 non-profit organizations and programs helping thousands of children and families in eastern New England.

RMHC also supports the Ronald McDonald House in both Boston and Providence, R.I., which provide a home away from home for the families of seriously ill children receiving treatment at nearby hospitals.

Koch Club Youth Baseball Registration

Registration for the 53rd season of Koch Club Youth Baseball will be held April 28 and 30 from 6 to 7 p.m. in the parking lot at Atlantic Middle School on Hollis Avenue, North Quincy.

Cost is $15 and every child that joins will receive a hat and T-shirt. Boys and girls ages 5-10 are eligible to register. A child must be 5 years of age by July 1, 2003. Every youngster who joins Koch Club will participate; there are no tryouts.

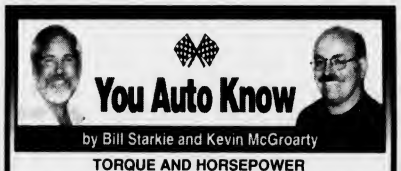
The program is loosely structured for kids to learn how to play the game and have fun. Parents are encouraged to help organize and supervise the games.

All games will be played at O'Neil Field behind Atlantic Middle School. Games will be held Mondays and Wednesdays at 6 p.m. from May 5 through July 2.

Richard Joyce and Brian Glennon are the co-directors of the Koch Club Baseball program. For more information call Glennon at 617-479-7997.

Jason Vaga, Lauri Moody Running Boston Marathon For Salvation Army

Quincy residents Jason Vaga and Lauri Moody will run the 107th Boston Marathon Monday, April 21, on behalf of the Salvation Army to raise funds for its many programs.



They join eight other runners that have trained together since January and have taken part in weekly runs and monthly team dinners at various Salvation Army locations.

"We are extremely thankful that these people have chosen to run for the Salvation Army," said Lt. Colonel Van Brunt, divisional commander of the Massachusetts Salvation Army. "Each runner's dedication to training and raising funds during the last several months will ultimately help those in need of our many services."

They were inspired to run on behalf of the Salvation Army by their past history with the charity.

The Salvation Army helped Vaga's mother by providing Christmas presents for three straight years when he was a child.

Moody's mother remembers that as a child the Salvation Army gave her family a Thanksgiving meal as well as toys for Christmas when her grandfather, who raised her, was temporarily out of work.

TORQUE AND HORSEPOWER

One of the blessings of today's technology is that drivers are nearly instantly warned of impending problems in their vehicles. With the convenience comes the responsibility of knowing exactly what all the indicator lights on the dashboard are indicative of. Some of these warnings require immediate attention, while others simply make known the need for maintenance. To determine which warning lights are located on the dashboard, switch the ignition key to the "on" position without actually starting the vehicle. This will serve to show the position of each indicator light. It pays to be especially cognizant of the red brake light, which could warn of significant loss of braking ability. The oil light also requires immediate attention.

Pay attention to your vehicle's on-dash warning lights. It can save you much money in repairs. Raiders Drop Opener, Play Barnstable, Quincy

BOYS' BASEBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

Not to make any excuses but first-year head coach Rick Del Vecchio said there were some factors that led to the North Quincy High School baseball team's 8-0 loss in Monday's season opener.

First, it was the Red Raiders' first game of the season and Bridgewater-Raynham's fifth; second, it was on the road against a tough first-place team; third, it was everybody's first taste of the varsity level; and fourth, it was their first time using wooden bats.

Still, Del Vecchio felt North Quincy played well despite being no-hit by the Trojan pitcher and before unraveling defensively in the sixth inning with five errors that led to seven unearned runs.

"The kids played very well for five innings," Del Vecchio said. "Unfortunately we made a few mistakes in the sixth inning that led to some runs. We have to try to avoid letting other teams get those big innings."

"It was our first game outdoors and everybody's first varsity experience," he added. "B-R was already a first-place team at 4-1. We're a young team and we're going to be very good in the next few years."

North Quincy (0-1) traveled to Barnstable Wednesday and today (Thursday) it faces Quincy at 7 p.m. at Adams Field.

The Red Raiders received an encouraging performance from junior pitcher Steve Reardon, who mixed his fastball, curveball and change-up to keep it a 1-0 game going into the sixth. He allowed only one earned run on two hits with five strikeouts when he left with one out in the sixth.

"He was very poised and in command," Del Vecchio said. "He did a good job holding the runners in check. You're going to hear a lot about Steve Reardon in the future."

Sophomore left-hander Matt Haskins relieved Reardon in the sixth and got the final two outs. "He threw the ball exceptionally well and showed a lot of poise as a sophomore in his varsity appearance," Del Vecchio said.

Del Vecchio also said he was pleased with junior catcher Andy McAllister. "He caught extremely well and worked hard defensively. He's emerging as a real team leader."

Presidents Fall To 1-1 As Bats Go Quiet

Michael Draicchio sure didn't expect the results his Quincy High School baseball team had against Dennis-Yarmouth Monday afternoon at Adams Field.

After a season-opening 8-1 win over Holbrook, the Presidents' offense never got off the ground as they were no-hit by the Dolphins in an 5-0 loss with 17 strikeouts.

"I never would've expected to get no-hit after the last game we played," Draicchio said. "The kid pitched a great game. No question. He kept us off balance with his curveball."

Quincy (1-1) played Archbishop Williams Tuesday, Sandwich Wednesday and today (Thursday) it squares off against North Quincy at 7 p.m. at Adams Field.

D-Y grabbed a 1-0 lead in the second inning with an unearned run off senior left-hander Anthony Boyle as the defense committed two errors behind him. After the run scored Boyle, a little flustered, balked to move a runner to second.

"I think those couple of mistakes got him out of his rhythm," Draicchio said. "When he balked, that's not like him."

Quincy had its best chance for a hit in the bottom half of the inning when senior center fielder Rob Muollo lined a shot up the middle only to hit the pitcher, who was able to throw him out.

In the third D-Y extended its lead to 4-0. After an error, single and hit by pitch loaded the bases, Boyle yielded a two-run single to the clean-up hitter with one out. The next batter reached on a fielder's choice to bring in the fourth run.

Boyle gave up a lead-off triple in the fourth inning but bounced back with consecutive strikeouts and a ground ball to escape the mini-jam.

The Dolphins added the final run of the game in the fifth inning. With two outs, Boyle walked a batter, who stole second and scored on an RBI double.

In the bottom half Quincy left a runner stranded at third with one out when the next two batters went down swinging.

"I knew coming in they were a solid team," Draicchio said. "I think there are going to be a lot of low scores this year with the wooden bats. We're not down about this game."

Sophomore John Folino relieved Boyle in the sixth inning and turned in another solid outing. The right-hander allowed a single and a walk while fanning three. In his first appearance of the season Folino punched out two and gave up an unearned run.

"John Folino did a solid job for us," Draicchio said. "He has a lot of confidence. He's very poised on the mound."

Pond Street Batting Cages Vandalized

Quincy High School baseball head coach Michael Draicchio reports there has been vandalism to the batting cages at the Pond Street field.

Draicchio estimates the cost of damage to be at least $1,000 to replace the poles and nets that have been ruined.

"If someone would come forward with some information it would be appreciated," Draicchio said. "My biggest problem with it all is that the cages mean a lot to be me because of where they came from. It's disheartening."

The Conti family donated the cages in the spring of 2001 in memory of Joseph Conti Jr., who died in 1999 at age 32 in a flash fire at Twin Rivers Technologies.

Conti, a former teammate of Draicchio's and a good friend, graduated from Quincy High in 1985 and later was elected to the school's Baseball Hall of Fame.

Quincy, Sorensen Overpower D-Y, 17-2

GIRLS' SOFTBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School softball team couldn't have turned in a better performance in Monday afternoon's season opener at Dennis-Yarmouth.

Junior pitcher Rachel Sorensen overpowered the Dolphins and the Presidents capitalized with timely hitting to coast to a 17-2 victory.

"Not a bad start in our first game," said head coach Mike Sedar. "We played really well and we didn't make too many mistakes."

Quincy (1-0) traveled to Sandwich Wednesday and today (Thursday) it takes on North Quincy at 3:30 p.m. at Pageant Field.

Sorensen tossed a complete-game, allowing one earned run on three hits and two walks while striking out a dozen, including the side in the second and third innings and eight of the first nine hitters.

"She was on it all day," Sedar said. "Her fastball was popping. It's fun for us. We don't have to do too much. We just kind of sit back and watch her. She was just as strong in the seventh inning as in the first. She's going to have that type of year."

A 3-0 game after four innings, the Presidents scored five runs in the fifth, three in the sixth and six in the seventh to distance themselves from D-Y.

"Their pitcher walked a lot of hitters and we were able to get the timely hits," Sedar said.

Senior quad-captain Diane Gilbody went 1 for 3 with two RBI and sophomore left fielder Katie Walsh stroked a two-run single to pace the attack.

Junior catcher Rose Bell ripped an RBI triple and senior quad-captain Shannon Paine collected a pair of hits.

Freshman switch-hitter Leanna Lam stood out in her first varsity game, going 1 for 3 with three walks. Senior quad-captain Liz Campbell also drew three walks.

Sophomore Rebi Sorensen, injured during the pre-season, made several nice defensive plays at third base.

Sacred Heart Wins Championship

The Sacred Heart fifth-grade boys' travel basketball team recently completed a successful season.

Playing in the Saturday night Abington Basketball Association League at the Weymouth Naval Base, it won the championship and finished with a 10-1 record.

In addition, it played in the CYO League and competed throughout the season in tournaments, playing in Hastings, N.Y., and taking second place in Sacred Heart's March Madness.

The team, which finished with an overall record of 22-12, was coached by Larry Liuzzo and Paul DeCilio and was helped out by Tim Gillis and Paul Hoban.

Houghs Neck T-Ball Registration Friday, Saturday

Registration for the Houghs Neck T-Ball League will be held Friday from 6 to 8 p.m. and Saturday from 9 to 11 a.m. at Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St.

Registration fee is $25. Players must be between the ages of 3 to 7. Games will be played Saturday mornings at Labrecque Field, Sea Street. Coaches and helpers are needed.

NQHS Soccer Association Meets April 23

The North Quincy High School Soccer Association will hold a general meeting Wednesday, April 23, at 7:30 p.m. at Quincy Sons of Italy to identify and elect an official board of officers.

The association was formed by former NQHS soccer players Joe LaPierre (class of 1984), Bill Donovan ('75), Dave Brown ('84), Steve Golden ('84) and Mark Scanlon ('86).

The association will perform several functions, such as administration of a newly created soccer scholarship fund, organization of fund-raising events and holding official meetings/elections.

All past team members are invited to attend and participate in the meeting and ongoing efforts of the association. The association is also looking for past team photos to post on its Web site (www.eteamz.com/nqhsalumnisoccer).

For more information contact LaPierre at 617-471-2101.

Robert Campbell Memorial Hockey Tourney

The fourth annual Robert F. Campbell Jr. Memorial Hockey Tournament will be held April 25-27 at Quincy Youth Arena to benefit leukemia research and patient care at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

The round-robin tournament features local ex-collegiate and junior hockey players throughout New England. The Boston Firefighters will take on the three-time defending champions, Team Campbell, in the most anticipated game of the tourney Saturday, April 26, at 6:30 p.m.

Spectators will also be able to take the ice in an open skate Saturday from 3 to 4 p.m.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Have you ever noticed those persons who think twice before making a promise can usually be counted on to keep the promise? Careless promise should never be given -- or counted upon. A promise that can cause discomfort, harm or injustice to yourself -- or to others -- should never be made, no matter how much prodding or persuasion is involved.

It is usually very easy to make a promise . . . Expediency or change of mind is seldom a justified excuse for breaking a promise. A promise involves honor, duty and ethics . . . The best promise you can make -- is a promise to yourself . . . Promise yourself you will never make a promise to anyone, unless you are fully prepared and able to keep your promise. . . In addition to spiritual benefit, it is a good way to gain honor, stature, praise and prestige among men. . .

Easter Services At Local Churches

Area churches will be holding various services to celebrate the Easter holiday.

Each church will conduct its own schedule.

Gateway Baptist Church will begin its Easter Sunday service at 8:15 a.m., while the First Church of Squantum will hold its Sunday Service at 10 a.m.

First Church of Squantum will hold a Maundy Thursday service, which will include Holy Communion and the Service of Tenebre.

Pastor David Wood of the First Church in Squantum, along with Tom Williamson, Louise Randall and Marie Mildram will take part in the Good Friday Service at Quincy Community United Methodist Church in the 2:40 p.m. to 3 p.m. segment tomorrow (Friday). The service itself begins at 12 noon.

Pastor Wood and Pastor Dan Byrd of the Gateway Baptist Church will take part in the Evangelical Clergy's Good Friday Service from noon to 1 p.m. at Covenant Congregational Church.

Both pastors will also take part in the Easter Sunrise Service at Caddy Park on Easter morning.

"There will be some occasions where both churches will come together," said Pastor Wood.

The First Church of Squantum recently welcomed the members of Gateway Baptist Church in sharing use of their building.

Good Friday Walk Of The Cross

The public is invited to take part in a walk with the Cross of the Lord on Good Friday which will begin at the First Baptist Church in Braintree, 594 Washington St., to Union Congregational Church, 136 Rawson Rd., Wollaston.

The walk, which begins at 3:30 p.m., will be preceded by a worship service at 3 p.m. at First Baptist Church. Following the walk, a supper will be held at 6:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. worship service at Union Congregational church.

The public is invited to attend all or part of this event. Transportation will be provided along the route, if needed, and to and from Braintree.

Those in need of transportation can call the Union Congregational Church office at 617-479-6661.

Julio Leone, 80

Former Owner of Quincy Taylor Shop

A funeral Mass for Julio Leone, 80, of Quincy, the former owner of the Quincy Taylor shop, was celebrated April 10 at St. Joseph's Church, 556 Washington St., Quincy.

He died April 7 at home after a brief illness.

Mr. Leone owned the shop from 1960 until his retirement in 1982.

Born in Avalino, Italy, he lived most of his life in Quincy, where he was raised and educated.

He is survived by his wife, Katherine (Buchanan) Leone; a son, Carmen Leone of Rockland; four daughters, Natalie Durante of Rockland, Mary Brodeur and Phyllis Haidul, both of Quincy, and Tina Thompson of Braintree; 13 grandchildren; and 10 great-grandchildren. He was the husband of the late Philomenia "Philly" (Delvecchio) Leone.

Burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery, West Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were by Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy.

Donations may be made to South Shore Hospice, 100 Bay State Drive, Braintree 02184, or the St. Vincent DePaul Society of St. Joseph's Church, 550 Washington St., Quincy 02169.

Covenant Congregational

Covenant Congregational Church, 315 Whitwell St., announces its Holy Week services continue with a Maundy Thursday communion service tonight at 7 p.m.

The choir will sing, led by John Sarkissian, music director. The worship marks the Last Supper Jesus shared with his disciples before his death on the cross and the Sacrament of Holy Communion will be shared.

The following day, Good Friday, April 18, at noon, the Covenant Church will host the Good Friday worship service sponsored by the South Shore Evangelical Clergy Association.

On Easter Sunday, April 20, the celebration of Jesus' resurrection will begin at 9 a.m. with an Easter egg hunt for all children followed by morning worship at 10 a.m. The choir will sing and Palmatier will offer the sermon.

For more information regarding the church or its Holy Week activities, call 617-479-5728.

HOCUS-FOCUS

BY HENRY BOLTINOFF

Find at least six differences in details between panels.

Differences: 1. School sign is different. 2. Bow is missing. 3. Tree is gone. 4. Hat is different. 5. Girl has briefcase instead of books. 6. Boy has short sleeves.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A little woolgathering is OK. But don't let that dreamy state linger beyond midweek, when you'll want to be ready to take on new workplace responsibilities.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Love rules the week for single Bovines seeking romance. Attached pairs also find new joy in their relationships. The 18th should bring news about a business opportunity.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Home becomes the center of a new social whirl, as you show your talent for hosting great parties. You can expect to impress a lot of people who've never seen this side of you.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The Moon Child might have to raise those powers of persuasion a notch to get a still-wary colleague to agree to go along. Finding more facts to back up your position helps.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Hold off trying to fix the blame for an apparent mishandling of a work situation. A full investigation could reveal surprising facts on how and why it really happened.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your ability to find details others might overlook gives you an advantage in assessing a possibly too-good-to-be-true offer. A trusted colleague has advice.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Expect to be called on once again to act as peacemaker in a long-simmering dispute that suddenly flares up. Offer advice, but be careful to stay out of the fray.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your organizational skills help you line up your priorities so that you get things done without added pressure. The weekend could hold a special surprise.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) New ventures are favored. But don't launch yours before rechecking all facts and sources. Also, be sure you can rely on support from certain people.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Don't be pushed into renegotiating an agreement, even though it might help avoid a potential impasse. Get legal advice before you sign or agree to anything.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Helping others is what Aquarians do so well. But this time, someone wants to help you. Expect to hear some news that will both surprise and delight you.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Things go so swimmingly by midweek that you're tempted to take on more tasks. Best advice: Finish what you have now, then enjoy a well-earned relaxing weekend.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your understanding of human nature helps you make wise decisions that are appreciated by all. You would make a fine judge.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE
UNDER THE AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT

In accordance with the requirements of title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, the City of Quincy (City) will not discriminate against qualified individuals with disabilities on the basis of disability in the City's services, programs, or activities.

The City does not discriminate on the basis of disability in its hiring or employment practices. The City will not ask a job applicant about the existence, nature, or severity of a disability. Applicants may be asked about their ability to perform specific job functions. Medical examinations or inquiries may be made, but only after a conditional offer of employment is made and only if required of all applicants for the position. The City will make reasonable accommodations for the known physical or mental limitations of a qualified applicant or employee with a disability upon request unless the accommodation would cause an undue hardship on the operation of the City's business. The City will make an individualized assessment of whether a qualified individual with a disability meets selection criteria for employment decisions. To the extent its selection criteria for employment decisions have the effect of disqualifying an individual because of disability, those criteria will be job-related and consistent with business necessity.

The City will provide appropriate alternative format of document, auxiliary aids and services, including Braille, large print and cassette tapes, qualified sign language interpreters and assistive listening devices, whenever necessary to ensure effective communication with members of the public who have hearing, sight, or speech impairments, unless to do so would result in a fundamental alteration of its programs or an undue administrative or financial burden. A person who requires an accommodation or an auxiliary aid or service to participate in a City program, service, or activity, should contact Jonathan Y. Yip, ADA Coordinator, Office of Constituent Services, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02169 at (617) 376-1500 (voice), (617) 376-1375 (TTY) as far in advance as possible but no later than 48 hours before the scheduled event.

The City will not place a surcharge on a particular individual with a disability or any group of individuals with disabilities to cover the cost of providing auxiliary aids/services or reasonable modifications of policy, such as retrieving items from locations that are open to the public but are not accessible to persons who use wheelchairs.

Copies of this notice is available by contacting the ADA Coordinator

LEGAL NOTICE

City of Quincy
Grievance Procedure under The Americans with Disabilities Act

This Grievance Procedure is established to meet the requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act. It may be used by anyone who wishes to file a complaint alleging discrimination on the basis of disability in employment practices and policies or the provision of services, activities, programs, or benefits by the City of Quincy.

The complaint should be in writing and contain information about the alleged discrimination such as name, address, phone number of complainant and location, date, and description of the problem. Alternative means of filing complaints, such as personal interviews or a tape recording of the complaint, will be made available for persons with disabilities upon request.

The complaint should be submitted by the grievant and/or his/her designee as soon as possible but no later than 60 calendar days after the alleged violation to:

Jonathan Y. Yip, ADA Coordinator
Office of Constituent Services
1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02169
(617) 376-1500 (voice), (617) 376-1375 (TTY)

Within 15 calendar days after receipt of the complaint, the ADA Coordinator will meet with the complainant to discuss the complaint and the possible resolutions. Within 15 calendar days of the meeting, the ADA Coordinator will respond in writing, and where appropriate, in format accessible to the complainant, such as large print, Braille, or audio tape. The response will explain the position of the City of Quincy and offer options for substantive resolution of the complaint.

If the response by the ADA Coordinator does not satisfactorily resolve the issue, the complainant and/or his/her designee may appeal the decision of the ADA Coordinator within 15 calendar days after receipt of the response to the mayor or his or her designee.

Within 15 calendar days after receipt of the appeal, the Mayor or his or her designee will meet with the complainant to discuss the complaint and possible resolutions. Within 15 calendar days after the meeting the Mayor or his or her designee will respond in writing, and, where appropriate, in a format accessible to the complainant, with a final resolution of the complaint.

All written complaints received by the ADA Coordinator, appeals to the Mayor or his or her designee, and responses from the ADA Coordinator and Mayor or his or her designee will be kept by City of Quincy for at least three years.

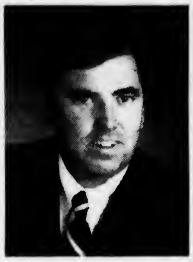
Fenway Park License Plate Would Aid Mini-Fenway

(Cont'd From Page 1)



Neponset Valley Foundation, the parent organization of Mini Fenway Park, Inc.

Red Sox Hall of Famer and board member Carl Yastrzemski, who was unable to attend the hearing, waits on deck and will provide written testimony at a later date.

"Tiant told the committee it was a good concept and that he's working with us to develop it," Iacobucci said. "He said it was another way of raising money for the park. He said Mini Fenway Park is great for the kids and can help make their dreams come true."

"We're hoping Red Sox fans and youth baseball and softball fans would be attracted to it," he added. "It's a great way to contribute to the project. It's a chance for fans to participate and support Mini Fenway by buying a plate."

Iacobucci said the first 100 plates would be auctioned off by the Registrar and after that the plates would be available to the public at $40 apiece.

MICHAEL MORRISSEY

BRUCE AYERS

RON IACOBUCCI

Thomas S. Duane, chief creative officer at Woolf Associates, designed the colored license plate. Woolf Associates will also develop the brand identity for Mini Fenway Park.

The project for a miniature-sized version of Fenway Park in Quincy was first conceived by former Red Sox third baseman Tim Naehring when he played for Boston during the 1990s.

Former Gov. Paul Cellucci signed a bill for the park in 1998, but the project flopped when Naehring sustained a career-ending elbow injury and later joined the Cincinnati Reds organization.

Several years ago Iacobucci's non-profit group filed a bill to continue the project. Since the bill became law last Nov. 1, Iacobucci said the proposed license plate is just another step along the way to raise money to build the park.

On June 9, a Mini-Fenway fantasy auction will be held at Fenway Park. For more information contact 617-471-3332.

Seven Inmates Graduate From Sheriff's Peer Education Program

After eight weeks and approximately 30 hours of instruction, seven inmates recently graduated from the Norfolk County Sheriff's Health Education class, said Sheriff Michael Bellotti.

The program, funded by a Department of Public Health grant, prepares inmates to plan and conduct men's health classes for other inmates.

Bellotti's Public Health Administrator Kerry Grennan trains the selected inmates on various topics including nutrition, hepatitis, tuberculosis, HIV and sexually transmitted diseases.

"This is an important program," Bellotti said. "It's a very positive thing inmates can do while they are incarcerated, and it really helps to improve the overall health and awareness of our inmate population."

The latest graduates will join prior graduates to conduct three to four peer health classes per week.'

The goal of the classes is to help inmates "develop sensitivity toward health issues," Grennan said.

"These classes give the inmates the opportunity to talk about health problems with each other in a non-judgmental environment," Bellotti said.

The first class being conducted by the newly graduated peer counselors is currently underway. The next peer educator class will begin within the next two month.

Phelan's Natural Resources Plan:

$5M Open Space $4M For Parks

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Mayor William Phelan has submitted to the city council a $10 million natural resources plan that earmarks $5 million for open space and $4 million for park improvements.

The final plan was released to the council this week for review. The council was expected to address the issue at Tuesday night's meeting.

After last week's spirited public hearing at City Hall, the Open Space and Parks Improvement Committee submitted its final recommendations to the mayor. Phelan adopted the committee's recommendations.

"I wish to thank the members of the committee for their hard work and the public for participating in the process," said Phelan. "There always seems to be more need than there is funding. Yet the plan we are putting forward protects, improves and increases Quin-

3,519 Visitors In Four Days

Adams Historical Park Sets Record Opening

By TOM HENSHAW

The Adams National Historical Park, which opened for the 2003 tourist season Saturday, experienced its best opening weekend ever.

The park entertained a record 3,519 visitors in the four days from April 19 to 22. Last year, from April 19 to 23 the attendance was 2,440.

"We did very well," said Marianne Peak, the superintendent, "and we're still going full speed ahead.

"It has been school vacation week and there were a lot of traveling families. A lot of people will be going where they can get to by car and public transportation."

Tuesday the park entertained a group of about 28 visiting Rotarians from Kennebunkport, Maine, who came to the Boston area by train.

"No, George Bush wasn't among them," said Peak, noting that Kennebunkport is the vacation home of the former president.

"We have a great deal in common with Maine for presidents' vacation homes and father and son presidents."

John Stanwich, the supervising park ranger, said he can recall only one opening day that came close to this year's opener. That was the time one of the Boston papers featured the park in its travel section.

"This day was equally busy," he said.

Peak said the park could have entertained quite a few visitors if it had opened before April 19.

"People are still excited over David McCullough's biography of John Adams," she said. "They're making Quincy their destination now.

Previously, Quincy was just an interesting way stop for tourists en route to Plymouth or the Cape.

Still to come are the large groups of students who take advantage of the park's education programs in April, May and June.

"We expect 20,000 students this spring," said Peak.

Only one thing was missing — the famed daffodils at the Adams mansion are late this year.

"They haven't popped yet," said Peak. "They'll probably be in full bloom next week. A lot of people come just to see the daffodils."

Two Quincy individuals and two Quincy organizations have been singled out by WORK, Inc., to be honored for their exemplary public service.

Sheila Egan was selected for the Daniel Hickey Award for Residential Support.

"Despite her mild retardation, Sheila has been living independently since 2001 through the assistance of ongoing case management and skills training from WORK, Inc.

"Sheila, who has been employed at Roche Brothers since 2001, manages her finances, pays her own rent, and takes care of her apartment and her own shopping.

"Through her determination and persistence, Sheila has achieved her goal of independence."

Gail Ann Walsh will receive the Denis Smith Award for WORK, Inc., Employee of the Year.

"Gail has been a dedicated WORK, Inc., employee since October, 1979 and currently serves as supervisor in WORK, Inc.'s workshop.

"In November, 2002, thanks to her quick response, Gail was responsible for saving the life of a consumer who was in respiratory distress.

"In addition, Gail recently completed a certificate in Human Services, thereby fulfilling her dream of one day going to college.

"Gail is a local hero, who in her over two decades at WORK, Inc., has helped hundreds of individuals with disabilities achieve the dream of employment, as well as making her own dreams come true."

Quincy Department of Planning and Community Development won the Best Friend Award.

"The Department's support and community funding over the past 15 years have been instrumental in enabling WORK, Inc., to continue to improve the lives of individuals with disabilities in Quincy.

"In addition, during the last 18 months, the Department has been influential in developing and advising WORK, Inc., on a feasibility and master plan for its 3 Arlington St., Quincy, location.

"Without the Department's input, the planning would not have occurred."

Granite City Electric Supply Co. & Phyllis Papani Godwin, chairman and CEO, was selected for the Corporate Award "for their dedication to providing employment for people with disabilities through a partnership with WORK, Inc., for more than five years.

"Granite City Electric Supply Co., which was established in 1923 in Quincy and has 15 locations through New England, provides employment for three WORK, Inc. consumers.

"For people with disabilities, receiving a paycheck is an extraordinary achievement and a partnership with an organization like Granite City Electric Supply Co. allows WORK, Inc., to continue to provide that experience to its consumers."

They will be presented with their awards at WORK, Inc.'s annual Awards Night & Celebration Monday, April 28, at 6:30 p.m. at Lombardo's in Randolph.

MWRA Plans To Drain Reservoir, Replace With Underground Tanks

The MWRA plans to drain the Blue Hills Reservoir off Chickatawbut Road and replace the eastern portion with two 10 million gallon underground storage tanks of reinforced concrete.

The object is to improve the reliability of the system and maintain drinking water quality of the MWRA water supply.

Since the work temporarily impacts 8.4 acres of waterway, the MWRA is seeking a permit from the Army Corps of Engineers. The public comment period ends May 19.

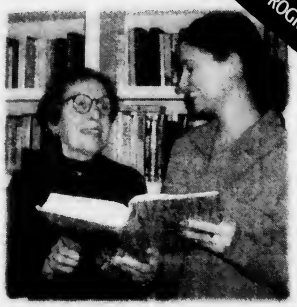
The work consists of construction of the tanks and appurtenance structures, a new dam within the footprint of the reservoir and enhancement of the western section.

Drainage of the reservoir is expected to take 30 days and will be accomplished by a controlled discharge into the Pine Brook and Furnace Brook watersheds while the tanks and dam are being constructed.

Drainage will be halted two days prior, during, or two days after a storm event is predicted or estimated to produce at least one inch of rainfall over a 24-hour period.

The area above the underground water tanks will be planted with meadow grasses and the western end of the reservoir will be refilled with water and turned over to the MDC for park purposes.

Anyone wishing to comment on the MWRA plan should submit them in writing by May 19 to the Army Corps of Engineers, New England District, 696 Virginia Rd., Concord, MA 01742-2751.



Questions should be addressed to Ted Lento at 978-318-8863 or call the toll free number 800-343-4789 or 800-362-4367 if calling from within Massachusetts.

Next Door To North Quincy Library

Atlantic Center May Get A Permanet Home

The Atlantic Neighborhood Center, which has been wandering about North Quincy for years, may find a permanent home next door to the North Quincy branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library on Hancock Street.

Mayor William Phelan announced his intention to move the busy center from the privately owned building at 11 Hayward St. to a renovated garage that used to house the library's bookmobile on Hancock Street.

The bookmobile will be garaged at the DPW yard and the garage refitted to fill the Center's needs with the funding coming from the sale of a city-owned building that once housed a girls' school at 595 Hancock St.

"This is long overdue," said Phelan. "The Atlantic Neighborhood Center does great things for the community; it needs a permanent home — and it deserves one."

Linda Stice and Thomas Fabrizio of the city's Constituent Services Department visited an evaluated nearly two dozen locations in the search for suitable space before targeting the site next to the library.

"Linda and Tom did a truly professional job — thorough and focused," said Phelan.

Patricia Thorley-Small, director of the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, endorsed the new location and expressed the hope that the center would be able to move in without delay. The City Council must authorize the sale of the old school property.

On Streets Slated For Repaving

Gutro Urges DPW To Adopt Safety Policies For Utilities

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro has called on Public Works Commissioner Jay Fink and City Engineer Fran Sandonato to adopt policies that protect public safety as well as the lifespan of city streets scheduled to be repaved.

Gutro, vice chairman of the City Council's Public Works Committee, urged the DPW to adopt a policy that requires utilities to elevate emergency shut off valves,

City To Receive Homeland Security Grant Money

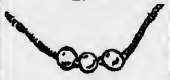
The city will receive funds from the U.S. Department of Homeland Security for all-hazards emergency management activities, according to Tom Gorman, director of Emergency Management.

Tom Ridge, secretary of the U.S. Department of Homeland Security, announced that the Emergency Preparedness and Response Directorate, known as FEMA, has granted more than $3.4 million to Massachusetts for emergency management.

Quincy will receive a portion of those funds, called the Emergency Management Performance Grant (EMPG).

Gorman said soon he would be meeting with state officials regarding the allocation of funds. It is not yet known what Quincy's portion will be, Gorman said.

EMPG funding is allocated to the states based on population and risk assessment.



Mayor's Office Hours Cancelled

Mayor William Phelan's office hours with the public have been cancelled today (Thursday) because the mayor is on vacation.

His office hours will resume next Thursday from 3 to 5 p.m.

The Council And The Woman's Touch

There are a lot of people who think the all-male city council chamber could use a woman's touch.

Could this be the year?

There will be at least two women council candidates and, it appears, probably a third with a strong vote-getting record.

Supporters have been urging School Committee-woman Jo-Ann Bragg, who isn't up for re-election, to run for one of the three council at-large seats.

BRAGG

And some are even asking her to consider a bid for mayor.

"I'm leaning toward running for the council," she acknowledges. "But I won't make a final decision until I talk it over with my committee."

Bragg would be a formidable candidate.

She's in her 10th year, third term, on the school committee where she is a past vice chairman. And, in her last two elections, topped the school committee field.

Two women will be among the growing field of candidates for the Ward 6 council seat incumbent Joseph Newton is leaving.

Maryann Mahony of Hummock Rd., a community activist, and co-chairman of the Quincy Foundation for Excellence in Education, has twice ran for the seat against Newton. And early declared she will make a third run this year.

MAHONY

Alicia Gardner of Deerfield St., another community activist, will be making her political debut. "I'm definitely running," she says. And plans to make it official at a fundraiser in mid-May.

GARDNER

Gardner is former president of the Squantum Community Association and Squantum School PTO. She is also former chairman of the North Quincy High School Senior Stay Out Committee and still active in it.

There have been only three women -- to 366 men -- on the city council since Quincy became a city in 1889.

AUSTIN

CONDON

TOLAND

Edna Austin was the first elected in 1942, retiring in 1959.

Joanne Condon was the second, elected to the Ward 6 seat in 1978, leaving in 1985 to unsuccessfully challenge incumbent Mayor Frank McCauley.

Pat Toland was the third and last woman to serve on the council. A former school committee member, she was elected in 1981 and served until 1993 when she left and became assistant city clerk.

She is the only woman in the city's history to serve as council president, holding that distinction in 1988 and 1989.

It has been an all-male council now for 10 years.

And it has been an all-male mayor's office for 114 years. Twenty-nine men. No women.

Four women have tried to win the keys to that office without success. The four:

Rita Anderson (1971), Grace Saphir (1973), Joanne Condon and Sabina Kavanagh Stenberg, both in 1985.

Of the four, Mrs. Saphir, who recently died, was the top vote-getter, challenging Mayor Walter Hannon and racking up a respectable 10,416 votes to his 15,429.

Condon was second highest with 7,307 against McCauley's 13,117 in 1985.

But there are those -- including many men -- who would like to someday see what a woman could do in that office.

Women have fared a little better as school committee candidates with 17 elected. And right now, for the first time, women are actually in the majority.

It's a 4-to-2 line-up: Vice Chairwoman Christine Cedrone, Elaine Dwyer, Linda Stice and Bragg the majority and Ron Mariano and Michael McFarland the minority on that board.

Or, it's 4-to-3 if you count William Phelan who as mayor is also chairman of the school committee.

But it's been pretty much a man's world, politically speaking, the past 114 years.

In his political history of Quincy covering 1889 to 2000, McCauley found that 456 individuals have been elected to municipal office. Of which 436 were men and only 20 women.

As of the 2001 election, the figures now stand: 460 individuals elected, 440 of them men and women still 20. (Dwyer was the choice of the council-school committee convention to fill out Phelan's term on the school committee).

Politically, things have been pretty lopsided in favor of men.

That, despite the fact that women voters continue to outnumber men by something like 5,000 to 6,000.

Ladies, maybe it's time to unite.

THEY DIDN'T PLAN it that way, but Mayor William Phelan and Councillor Frank McCauley coincidentally picked the same night for fundraisers. And the exact same time.

PHELAN

McCAULEY

Both are set for Tuesday, April 29 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Phelan's is a $125 per reception at the Quincy Marriott Hotel. McCauley's a $75 per campaign kick-off at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Wonder how much traffic there will be between the Marriott and the Neighborhood Club that night?

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1912 postcard view of the courts of the Quincy Tennis Club when it was located near the corner of Woodward Avenue and Huntley Road in Quincy Center. For a time it was also known as the Wollaston Tennis Club. One of the oldest organizations in Quincy the club was first located on Bigelow Street in 1887. The courts were then on the grounds of the Miller Stile Inn, now the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. There was also at that time an Atlantic Lawn and Tennis Club at the other end of the city. In 1913 the Quincy Club moved to its present hidden-from-view site off Glendale Road, next to the Neighborhood Club.

Enjoyed Multicultural Celebration At Snug Harbor

Thanks to the announcement we saw recently in The Quincy Sun, we had the great pleasure of attending the Multicultural celebration at Snug Harbor.

It was a true joy to see people of all ages, backgrounds, cultures, and races enjoying activities: a wonderful fashion show, with elementary school students in many countries' costumes walking the runway, like professional models. The emcee, Mr. Hennessey, did a wonderful job, supporting, encouraging, and praising: he was right, all the girls were beautiful and all the boys were handsome!!

Also, the display of country posters made by the fifth graders showed a good knowledge of geography and history. And, the ethnic food array was varied and very tasty – the perfect way to wrap up the event.

Much credit is due to Kathy Quigley, director of the Germantown Neighborhood Center, and the many additional volunteers, including the Guidance interns, Meghan and Alanna, and Donna Johnson of the People of Color Focus Group.

We hope you all keep up the great work. We're already looking forward to next year.

Seaside Food Pantry Sends Thanks For Donations

Recently, the Merrymount School collected canned foods for the Seaside Food Pantry for two weeks. The amount of food collected was amazing. The amount of food collected will keep the pantry operating for at least another few months.

The Merrymount School has been one of the best suppliers of food to our pantry. In the past year the school has collected over 8,000 pounds for us. This amount of food is about 20 percent of the amount of food that our pantry uses in the course of a year.

With all of the proposed cuts and the actual cuts that the government is making the use of the pantry is becoming a necessity. Without all of the food drives we would be out of food in a very short time.

The Seaside Food Pantry wishes to thank every teacher, every student and every family for the donation of food for those in need. Many families will be able to feed their children and themselves.

Again, all of us thank each and every one of you for your donation of food.

Operation Iraqi Freedom And Reality TV

. . . And the winner of this year's best reality T.V. show is . . . (drum roll, please) . . . President George W. Bush and CNN Headline News for their "War On Iraq: Operation Iraqi Freedom" miniseries.

The plot of this show was, how much needless death and destruction will be caused before we finally find and kill Saddam Hussein? Like "Joe Millionaire," the plot was that only the audience, not the participants, knew the ending -- thousands of dead civilians, shock and awe as all of Baghdad was conflagrated, complete devastation and destruction. And, all in vain as we would NEVER find, capture, or kill President Hussein.

The surprise twist ending for the audience was the looting of Government buildings and homes by both American soldiers and Iraqi citizens.

Shame on you, Fox Television, for not thinking of such an impacting reality T.V. series.

Hearing Held For New High School

This Week
1921
82 Years Ago

A large but generally quiet crowd attended a City Council public hearing into a proposal to take land at the corner of Woodward Avenue and Coddington Street on which to build a new high school.

No one spoke in favor of the landtaking and only three spoke against it.

They were Otto A. Hayward, whose home would be taken; Martin Burns, who did not want land taken from the tax rolls in Quincy Center; and Alfred P.J. Pinel, who objected to the method of taking.

NEW HAVEN GRADE WORK

A.P. Russell, president of the New Haven Railroad, said that only the lack of money was standing in the way of a quick elimination of all grade crossings in Quincy.

"Under present circumstances," he said, "there is absolutely nothing available in the way of funds for any work outside the necessities of keeping the road in operation."

Work began last fall on the elimination of the Saville St. crossing but, said Russell, there has been a general falling off of business on the old Colony Line since last November.

UNION BLASTS OFFER

Union officials put out a flyer urging that employees of the Eastern Mass Street Railway reject a company offer that would reduce their wages 20 percent.

"The company's proposals," said the flyer, "destroy the work begun 18 years ago, carried on ever since by negotiation, agreement and arbitration and are intended to destroy your union if you accept them."

$30,000 FIRE

A $30,000 fire damaged the Berman Block, 1601-03 Hancock St., and attracted a large crowd, including members of the Box 52 Association of Boston, who were dining at the Engineers Club.

TRIPLE FEATURE AT ALHAMBRA

The triple feature at the Alhambra, "Quincy's leading photoplay theater," was composed of "His Own Law," starring Hobart Bosworth; "Hard Luck," featuring Buster Keaton; and "Her Lord and Master," with Alice Joyce.

Admission was 11 cents from 1:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. and 25 cents from 5 p.m. to 10:30 p.m., including ward tax.

QUINCY-ISMS

Claude Hart, president of the Wollaston Golf Club, proposed that members buy $200 certificates to raise money to purchase the club. . . Outside grade paint was $3 a gallon at the Walter J. Burgess paint factory, 42 Holmes St., Norfolk Downs. . . Bill Shyne of Merrymount Road scored a technical knockout over Eddie Barcelli of Quincy in the eighth round of their bout on the Quincy Boxing Club card at the Coliseum. . . George V. Mahoney was installed as commander of the Bryan VFW Post at GAR Hall. . . President Forrest I. Neal of the Chamber of Commerce named a special committee to investigate damage done to Quincy beaches by oil refuse from the Massachusetts Oil Co. plant in East Braintree. . . Mayor William Bradford attended the opening of the new Grossman Coal Co., on Granite St., where the first car full of 48 tons of egg coal was unloaded in two minutes. . . Coffee was 39 cents a pound at Mills Butter and Tea Corp., 1429 Hancock St. . . . A bill filed by Rep. Stanley Bates would provide for sittings by the Norfolk Superior Court in Quincy. . . The tanker H.C. Folger was at the Fore River shipyard for repairs after colliding with the battleship Connecticut in the Delaware River. . . The new North Quincy Knights of Columbus Council was instituted with William H. O'Brien as grand knight. . . Houlihan hit a home run in the second inning but the Quincy High baseball team lost to Milton, 3-1. . . Police under Inspector John T. Larkin raided a house on Bryant St., West Quincy, and seized 10 gallons of wine, two 10 gallon barrels of corn and raisin mash and an alcohol gauge. . . A 15-ounce jar of strawberilade was selling for 40 cents at Foy's Market on Franklin St., Quincy Adams. . . A seven room house with electric lights and a double garage near the beach in Wollaston was on the market for $5,500, with a down payment of $2,000. . . Neil A. McDonald, former chief, was presented with a gold watch by fellow members of Clan MacGregor. . . An Auburn Beauty Six touring car was $1,695 at Penniman's Garage, corner of Washington and Wibird Sts. . . Carl W.A. Linder of Quincy finished fourth in the Boston Marathon with a time of 2 hours, 28 minutes and 2 seconds. The only other Quincy entry in the 26 mile grind was Otto O'Lenius.

Arts & Entertainment

THE BIG BAND music of the Olde Kids on the Block dance band will be featured along with the Brockton High School Jazz Ensemble at "An Afternoon of Jazz and Dance" to benefit the Mollie Hirshberg Learning Fund Sunday, May 18, at the Lantana, Randolph.

Big Band, Jazz Ensemble To Benefit Hirshberg Fund

"An Afternoon of Jazz and Dance" to benefit children in need served by the Mollie Hirshberg Learning Fund will be held Sunday, May 18, from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Lantana, Randolph.

The fourth annual event will feature the Olde Kids on the Block dance band in music of the 1930s and 1940s and the Brockton High School Jazz Ensemble.

Honorary chairman is Ron Della Chiesa, Quincy native and WGHB radio classical music and jazz program host.

Tickets are $25 and will be available at the door.

The fund was established in the memory of Mollie Hirshberg of Quincy by her late husband, Dr. Sumner Hirshberg, and other family members and friends to continue her work in helping children in need.

The non-profit charitable organization is now headed by their daughter, Lois Hirshberg of Marstons Mills.

The fund has provided grants to organizations that assist disadvantaged children and their families.

Adams Mansion Garden Tour Saturday Morning

The Quincy Park Department's Environmental Treasurers of Quincy program will celebrate its third anniversary with a garden tour of the Adams Mansion on Adams St., Saturday, April 26 at 10 a.m.

The tour will be hosted by Bob Mackenzie, gardener at the National Park Service site.

Visitors may view the fields of golden daffodils at the mansion site and learn gardening tips from the professional gardening staff. There is no charge for the Environmental Treasures of Quincy program.

"We are happy to partner with the National Park Service by showcasing the beautiful landscape at the Adams Mansion," said Tom Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments. "The important history of this site is rivaled only by the beauty of the site itself. It is most appropriate that we celebrate our third anniversary at the site where we first started the Environmental Treasures program."

Persons interested in joining the Environmental Treasures tour should meet at the main entrance to the site on Adams St. at 10 a.m.

"I would like to thank the National Park Service for their help on this program and all that they do in Quincy," said Mayor William Phelan. "I would also like to thank program volunteer Sally Owen who has been instrumental to the three successful years that the Environmental Treasures program has enjoyed."

For more information on the Environmental Treasurers program, call the Quincy Park Department at (617)376-1254.

Benefit Raises $45,000 For South Shore YMCA

The seventh annual Taste of the South Shore raised $45,000 to benefit South Shore YMCA programs.

The recent event, featuring the finest cuisine of 16 restaurants, drew a record attendance at Lombardo's in Randolph.

Money raised will assist in sending low-income children to camp, provide teen programs and fund programs the YMCA operates out of the Germantown Neighborhood Center in Quincy.

Participating restaurants included Tosca, Bridgeman's, Ascari, The Chef's Table, Stars on Hingham Harbor, Casa Del Rey, Giomatti's, Riva, Tullio's, Lombardo's, Malai, Mamma Nina, Red Parrot, the Bistro at Cataldi's, White's Pastry Shop and X&O European Trattoria.

Funds raised at the 2002 Taste of the South Shore provided resident camp experience for 127 teens, summer day camp for 272 children, after-school programs for 141 children and assisted 1,000 children and families in Quincy.

MR. and MRS. EDWARD WALSH, IV

Carrie DiTullio Wed To Edward Walsh, IV

A reception at the Sheraton Braintree Hotel, Braintree, followed the Nuptial Mass wedding of Carrie Marie DiTullio of Quincy and Edward Walsh, IV of Worcester at Sacred Heart Church in North Quincy.

The bride is the daughter of Thomas and Charlotte DiTullio of Quincy. The groom is the son of Edward Walsh, III of Worcester and Kathleen Walsh of Worcester.

The bride is a graduate of North Quincy High School and Quincy College. She is employed by UMass Memorial Medical Center in Worcester.

The groom graduated from St. Mary's High School, Worcester and UMass Amherst, Amherst. He is employed by NStar Gas, Worcester.

After a wedding trip to Aruba, the couple is living in Worcester.

Scottish Immigrants Topic At Historical Society Meeting

Peter Preble will present an illustrated history of Quincy's Scottish community tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at a meeting of the Quincy Historical Society at the Adams Academy.

Preble, a Quincy native of Scottish ancestry, will discuss patterns of Scottish immigration in the United States both directly from Scotland and by way of Canada.

His talk will focus on the historical contribution of Scots to Quincy, especially in the granite and shipbuilding industries and the influence of the Scottish community on the life of the city.

Preble is a former teacher and currently a seminarian at St. John's Seminary.

Everyone is welcome to attend. Admission is free.

Quincy Elks Host 150 Seniors At Dinner

The Quincy Lodge of Elks recently entertained 150 of the city's senior citizens at a dinner-dance in the Elks Home on Quarry Street.

The dinner, catered by Barrets, was served by club members and their wives and a group of young girls from Quincy and North Quincy High Schools.

The seniors danced to music played by disc jockey Dennis Kelly.

Exalted Ruler Jim Ryan extended the greetings of the Lodge.

Mayor William Phelan, State Rep. Bruce Ayers, Council President Daniel Raymondi and Councillor Bryan Connolly addressed the seniors and went from tables to tables discussing issues.

Atherton Hough School Dance May 2

The Atherton Hough School will hold its fourth annual dance Friday, May 2, from 6 to 8:30 p.m. in the school gym.

The dance, with a theme of "Red, White and Blue," is sponsored by the Atherton Hough PTA.

Quincy Medical Center Presents Recognition Awards

The award program, which also includes a monthly Employee award, recognizes excellence in the Quincy Medical Center staff.

"Quincy Medical Center's best asset is our employees," said Christine Schuster, RN, MBA, president and CEO of QMC. "I feel privileged to work with such a motivated and caring group of people who epitomize Quincy Medical Center's Truly Remarkable spirit."

Betty Cifuni, RN, a nursing manager for QMC for more than 21 years, was named the Truly Remarkable Manager of the Year. She was recognized for her role as a teacher, mentor, nurturer and friend.

"Betty is well loved by staff, patients, management and physicians alike," Schuster said. "Her unique blend of kindness and collaboration has increased both patient and staff satisfaction."

Former Medical Staff President Dr. William "Bill" Kasimer, medical director of the clinical services laboratory, was recognized as the Truly Remarkable Physician of the Year. Dr. Kasimer, who joined QMC in 1989, was recognized for his work to render Quincy Medical Center a place recognized by physicians as a high quality healthcare organization.

"Whether he is leading the clinical services laboratory, functioning as the past president of the medical staff, or meeting with the Board of Trustees, Bill advocates for clinical excellence quality patient care," Schuster said.

The late Mark Mael, a long-time Quincy Medical Center volunteer, was named the Truly Remarkable Volunteer of the Year. Mr. Mael was remembered posthumously for his tireless commitment to Quincy Medical Center. A dedicated volunteer, he completed more than 20,000 volunteer hours -- including work on holidays -- in QMC's printshop.

Mr. Mael was always willing to go the extra-mile and was known to hand deliver projects to colleagues faced with a tight deadline. He took great care in his work and offered the same giving spirit to his colleagues and friends. "Mark was dearly loved here at Quincy Medical Center. His presence certainly made a difference in all of our lives," Schuster said.

Carolyn Sullivan, RN, a nurse with QMC's medical/surgical unit (A6), was named Truly Remarkable Employee of the Year.

Sullivan, a QMC nurse for more than a decade, was recognized for the care and compassion she shows her patients and colleagues.

"Carolyn is everything that care for patients is all about," Schuster said.

Quincy Medical Center is a 232-bed acute care community-teaching hospital providing South Shore residents with comprehensive medical and surgical services. The medical center's Alliance for Quality with Boston Medical Center (BMC), formed in 1999, brings academic medicine to the community. At Quincy Medical Center, physicians from Boston Medical Center direct the departments of medicine, surgery, anesthesia and emergency medicine.

Additionally, physicians from BMC who are board-certified in a range of medical and surgical specialties work side-by-side with community physicians to ensure the continuity of patient care.

THE LATE Mark Mael, a long-time Quincy Medical Center volunteer, was honored posthumously as the Truly Remarkable Volunteer of the Year at QMC.

QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER's Truly Remarkable Physician of the Year award is presented to Dr. William "Bill" Kasimer, M.D., by QMC President and CEO Christine Schuster. He was recognized in part for his advocacy for clinical excellence quality patient care.

Lions Club Youth Group Donates $1,000, Blankets To Father Bill's

The Quincy Leo Club, the youth group affiliated with the Quincy Lions Club, recently joined forces with other Greater Boston area Leos and Lions to donate $1,000 and 100 blankets to Father Bill's homeless shelter.

Club officers presented the cash donation and blankets to Father Bill's Shelter Manager Craig Bosse. Club officers are Julie Rackauskas, president; Nicole Ryan, vice president; Fiona Wu, secretary; Catherine Tan, treasurer; and Marilla Pereira, director.

"Collecting blankets and coats for the needy is an annual event for the Leos, but this year the drive took on added meaning due to the extreme cold," said David Sawyer, first vice president of the Quincy Lions Club and advisor to the local Leo Club. "After reading an article about the desperate need for blankets in the region, the Leos decided to champion the cause."

Leos from Quincy, Wrentham, Plainville, Norfolk and Franklin banded together to collect the blankets, Sawyer said. To raise the cash donation, the Leos conducted a raffle at the recent Lions District 33-K Mid-Winter Conference. The grand prize in the raffle was a chiminea, or outdoor fireplace, donated by Granite Discount Liquors of Quincy.

Comprised of civic-minded high school students, the Quincy Leo Club was chartered in March of 2001.

"Like the Quincy Lions Club, the Leo Club aims to serve the local community through volunteer activities and charitable donations to worthy causes," Sawyer said. "The club is completely self-governed by the students themselves, with 100 percent of any monies raised going to the charities of their choosing."

During the past year, he added, the Quincy Leos have collected donations for the Salvation Army during the holidays, conducted free vision and hearing screenings aboard the Lions Club Eyemobile, collected used eyeglasses, volunteered during a WGBH pledge drive and participated in the American Cancer Society Relay for Life.

New club members are welcome and need not be a student at Quincy or North Quincy high school.

For more information, contact David Sawyer at (781) 348-4923 for an application and meeting times.

Course Manager Tells Quincy Business Council Would Also Attract National Attention

Granite Links Golf Course Could Have 'Huge' Impact On Local Economy

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

When completed, the Granite Links Golf Club at Quarry Hills could have a "huge" impact on the local economy, according to an executive hired to oversee construction and management of the course.

Stan Abrams, president of Senior Tour Players, Inc., met with the Quincy Business Council last week to provide an update on the progress of construction of the 27-hole facility and to give the business community a sense of the effect of having a world-class golf course in the area.

"A major golf facility can have a huge impact on the Quincy economy," he told the business council during a meeting held at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

Abrams said the "spectacular" facility would attract national attention and boost the local economy. He said he will attempt to attract nationally televised events to the facility.

The introduction of a major golf course to the area will boost tourism, hotel and motel occupancies, and the restaurant business, he said. Corporate events and other social affairs will attract an influx of visitors during the winter also, he said.

The first nine holes in Milton will be ready for use in June, he said. The second nine holes, located in Quincy, will be completed by the end of the year and ready for play in Spring, 2004, he said. The final nine holes, also located in Quincy, will be completed by the end of 2004 and ready for use in Spring, 2005, he added.

Abrams said Senior Tour Players has begun to aggressively market the golf course with the goal of securing memberships from corporations and citizens.

"By getting corporations in here early we can keep the green fees fairly reasonable," he said.

The company is in the process of setting the rates for green fees and dues for residents and corporate memberships. A rate schedule will be revealed in a few weeks, he said.

Membership fees are necessary because daily green fees do not provide a steady cash flow throughout the year, he said.

Abrams said the green fees likely will be more expensive than the costs at a typical municipal golf course, but less than the rates at most private courses.

"This is not an inexpensive golf course," he told the business council. He added that Granite Links is not considered a municipal golf course, even though it occupies municipal land. Quarry Hills Associates, a private company, was awarded the contact to build the Granite Links Golf Club.

Senior Tour Players will be setting up special rates and programs to encourage children to use the course, he said. "It really is a new phenomenon," said Abrams. "Today, more and more people are taking up golf because their kids play golf."

Quincy residents will receive a 20 percent discount on green fees Monday through Thursday, Abrams said.

He also revealed plans for a clubhouse to be built on the course. The 43,000-square-foot facility will not be complete until the end of 2004, he said.

The clubhouse will be available free of charge for city events and community groups. All Quincy high school golf players will be able to use the course at no charge.

Business Council Chairman Dan Flynn said he hopes the business community will rally behind Abrams' efforts in marketing the course to the public.

"I think you will see good things happen," said Flynn. "I would put this (golf course) up there with the top courses in the country."

Abrams said he would need the support of the Chamber of Commerce because "this is a monstrous undertaking."

But Abrams said the finished product will be "the experience of a lifetime, if you are a golfer."

CDBG Funds Used for 29 Years

City Celebrating National Community Development Week

The City of Quincy this week joins other communities across the nation in celebrating the National Community Development Week, Mayor William Phelan announces. The observance runs until tomorrow (Friday).

This is the 29th anniversary of the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG), which the city receives through the federal U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The Germantown Neighborhood Council and the South Shore YMCA sponsored a series of events yesterday (Wednesday) at the Germantown Neighborhood Center, 333 Palmer St., to celebrate the week-long observance.

An interactive disc jockey provided music and games, and Peter Gross performed a magic show for youths. Kathy Quigley, Community Center director, provided a workshop on violence prevention.

Enacted into law in 1974, the CDBG program has contributed to the development of viable urban communities by helping to provide decent housing, a suitable living environment and expanded economic opportunites for low and moderate-income persons.

Since its inception, the CDBG program has provided more than $60 million to the city for housing rehabilitation, first time homebuyer financing, public facility improvements, economic development, and improvements for streets, sidewalks and parks.

The Quincy CDBG program is administered by the City of Quincy Department of Planning and Community Development under the direction of the mayor.

Seniors Offered Tax Abatement Assistance

The Quincy Council on Aging is providing assistance to senior citizens in filling out tax abatement applications.

Seniors needing assistance are asked to call 617-376-1506 to make an appointment.

Or they may pick up an application at the Council on Aging office, 83 Saratoga St., Squantum Gardens.

Lynda Watson Named QCAP Director of Community Programs

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) is announces Lynda Watson had been named director of Community Programs at the agency's South West Community Center (SWCC) located in the Brewer's Corner neighborhood of West Quincy.

LYNDA WATSON

As director, Watson will manage the agency's Emergency Food Center, services for at-risk seniors, and the Adult Basic Education (ABE) and workforce development programs.

QCAP's Food Center provides fresh and nonperishable food to 1,000 unduplicated households consisting of nearly 3,000 individuals. The agency is also designated by the Massachusetts Department of Education to provide ABE services in Quincy and Weymouth.

Through the program, the agency provides free basic literacy, pre-GED, GED and English for Speakers of Other Languages instruction to more than 200 adults annually. Eligible adults are also linked with a scholarship program to pursue further education or job training.

Watson holds a master's degree in social work and brings 20 years of experience in the social service field to QCAP. She has a diverse professional background that includes work as a sub-committee appointee to the Mayor's Task Force on Homelessness in Boston, a racial justice and equity promoter with the Milton Multicultural Association, a volunteer at the Milton Food Pantry, and various positions administering counseling services to youth and adults.

Watson most recently served as the Director of the Transition to Work Collaborative, a program that provides vocational support to homeless families.

"I am excited to have the opportunity to work with the community to address nutrition and adult education needs," Watson said. "I also look forward to learning more about Quincy, Weymouth and the other South Shore communities we serve and hearing from residents about issues that impact their quality of life."

She can be reached at (617) 471-0796 x 108 or at lwatson@qcap.org.

Quincy College changed my life.

I came to Quincy College as a transfer student from the University of New Orleans. Although born and raised in Quincy, at the naïve age of eighteen I felt the need to remove my "tree" from its "roots" and attend school out of state. Long story, short: no family, superficial friendships, and a campus containing 17,000 students was not for me. After I came home, carrying with me several thousand dollars in student loans, another four year school was just not feasible. Quincy College was the affordable solution, yet the lessons, resources and experiences I will be taking with me upon graduation are worth their weight in gold.

Not only have I developed new friendships, but also the instructor relationships I have formed would not have been possible at a larger college. The Quincy College faculty and administration are some of the most influential educators I have known. I know that I will always be welcomed back to Quincy College for the support and inspiration I may need.

From my first semester at Quincy College, I built the foundation for my educational success. The College also became the support beam for my growth as a woman. My instructors helped me evaluate my life and set goals for the future. It was after one semester with Professor Raymond in the Psychology Department that I changed my degree program to Psychology. Her guidance, like the support of so many people I have met at Quincy College, has helped me define who I am today.

Now, with a clear sense of the future I will be transferring to a four year school in the Fall, but I am confident that at no matter what stage of my education, be it six months from now or six months to completing my dissertation, I will always be grateful for the "stepping stone" that Quincy College provided me.

Christopher Smeglin Earns Academic Award

Midshipman Christopher Smeglin of Quincy has received a Silver Star at the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy in Kings Point, N.Y., for academic achievement during the fall term.

Silver Stars are equivalent to being named to the Dean's List.

Smeglin is a freshman (plebe) at the academy, majoring in maritime operations and technology. A graduate of Boston College High School, he was nominated to attend the Academy by Cong. William Delahunt.

100th Anniversary In Quincy

Council Resolution Commends Laborer's International Union

Councillor Joseph Finn and City Council President Dan Raymondi Tuesday night co-sponsored a resolution citing the contributions of the Laborer's International Union of North America and its origins in Quincy.

According to Finn, the Laborer's Union has its roots in Quincy, when it began 100 years ago as the International Hod Carriers' and Building Laborers' Union of America. The movement would later become the Laborers' International Union of North America.

The first International headquarters was located on School St. and the first General President came from the city, Finn said.

"I think it is important to mark this celebration because of the significant role that the labor movement plays in the city, and to commemorate Quincy's role in the establishment of the Laborer's Union," said Finn.

He said the Laborer's International Union Locals 133 and 1139 continue to be a positive presence in the city.

Planning Board Approves Houghs Neck Zoning Change

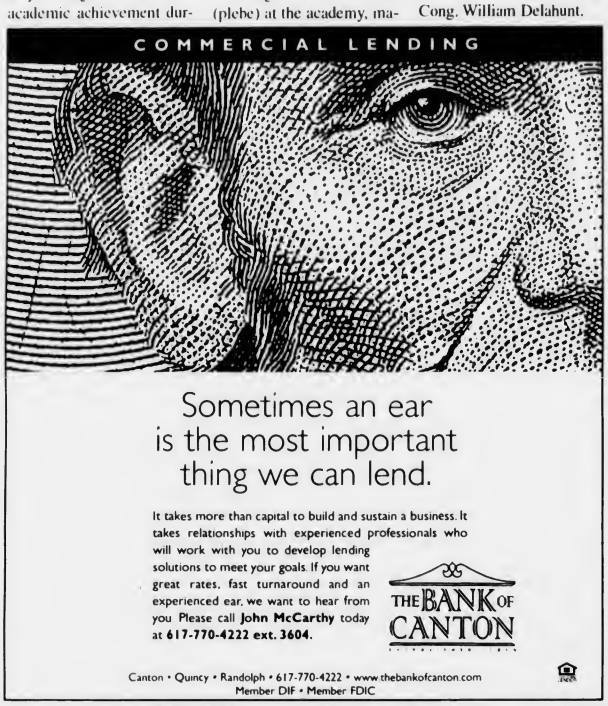
The Planning Board has voted unanimously to rezone a 40,000 square foot parcel of land in Houghs Neck from Business B to Open Space

The parcel is owned by the MDC and is bounded by Sea Street and Bayview Avenue. It includes the site of the Marine Center.

The vote was taken after City Councillor At-Large Francis McCauley and David DiBona, president of the Houghs Neck Community Council spoke in favor of the rezoning.

The City Council will hold a public hearing on the plan Monday, May 5, at 7:20 p.m. in the Council chamber.

Ayers Discusses 'Helping Hand' At Lions Lunch



State Rep. Bruce Ayers discussed the Helping Hand program, a medical supply loan plan operated on donations, at a recent Noon-time lunch meeting of the Quincy Lions Club.

Ayers said he "founded the program to offer assistance to individuals who need medical supplies but cannot readily afford them without making substantial personal sacrifices."

He pointed out that Helping Hand has been specifically helpful to senior citizens who exist on small fixed incomes.

Ayers commended Lions Club President Christine Cedrone and the membership for their civic leadership and commitment in enhancing the community through their service.

"The Lions Club displays the kind of civic spirit that has helped us to endure during times of crisis in the past and their example will help us to weather the current fiscal crisis," he said.

Sometimes an ear is the most important thing we can lend.

It takes more than capital to build and sustain a business. It takes relationships with experienced professionals who will work with you to develop lending solutions to meet your goals. If you want great rates, fast turnaround and an experienced ear, we want to hear from you. Please call John McCarthy today at 617-770-4222 ext. 3604.

Brian McNamee Candidate For Ward 6 Council Seat

BRIAN McNAMEE

Brian McNamee, 46, of Commander Shea Boulevard, announces his candidacy for the Ward 6 city council seat which is now open with incumbent Joseph Newton's decision not to seek re-election.

"I enter the race to faithfully represent the citizens and taxpayers of Ward 6 on issues ranging from city finances and property tax stabilization to traffic and over development," McNamee said.

"We need not only a voice to express our collective concerns but someone whose actions demonstrate they posses the political will to tackle the tough issues.

"I think my public record and history as an activist, commentator and council candidate has demonstrated I possess the political will to make a difference."

McNamee has run for both the Ward 6 seat and councillor at-large in the past.

In 1997 he edged Newton in the preliminary election but lost to then incumbent Bruce Ayers, now a state representative, in the final election.

In 2001, McNamee won a nomination in the preliminary at-large election in a field of nine candidates but was unsuccessful in the final election.

McNamee is currently the chief financial officer for the South Shore Essex Sewerage District, a regional water authority based in Salem and serving communities north of Boston.

McNamee has a BA from Villanova University majoring in government and an MBA from the University of Massachusetts at Boston with concentrations in accounting and finance.

McNamee said he is responsible for investing more than $40 million of the South Essex Sewerage District's funds and administers a $25 million operating budget.

Prior to assuming that post, he had his own accounting and management consulting business. He is a former member of Ernst & Young's Entrepreneurial Service Group. His early career training was as a staff auditor at the accounting firm of Grant Thornton International.

McNamee was an advisory board member of the University of Massachusetts at Boston College of Management from 1991 to 2001. He is a former technical advisory board member of Boston Fund Services and Integrated Financial Transactions Services, Inc.

His professional, civic and social memberships and affiliations include:

Association of Government Accountants, Massachusetts Government Finance Officers Association, Atlantic Neighborhood Association, Quincy Citizens and Wollaston Park Association, lifetime voting member Irish Cultural Center, Quincy Environmental Network, Quincy Taxpayer's Association, Quincy Historical Society, Greater Quincy Knights of Columbus and Quincy Elks Lodge.

A campaign kick-off reception will be held Thursday, May 1, from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Great Wester Adams Inn, 29 Hancock St., North Quincy. Tickets are $15 and will be available at the door.

Patrick Bregoli On Dean's List

Patrick Bregoli of Quincy is on the Dean's List at the University of Rhode Island, Kingston, for the first semester.

Bregoli, the son of Paul Bregoli, is a freshman majoring in textile marketing.

Interfaith Social Services Benefit Walk April 27

The 29th annual South Shore Walk to benefit Interfaith Social Services (SS) will be held Sunday, April 27.

Uncle Sam Rounseville is honorary walk chairman.

The 6.2-mile walk will help raise funds for social services provided by ISS in 10 South Shore towns including a food pantry, clothing program, financial assistance and counseling program. The agency's programs assist people in Quincy, Cohasset, Braintree, Hingham, Holbrook, Hull, Milton, Randolph, Scituate and Weymouth.

The walk begins and ends at St. Ann's School on St. Ann's Road in Quincy with stops at Christ Church, 12 Quincy Ave., the future home of ISS at 105 Adams St., East Congregational Church, 610 Adams St., Milton, and returns to St. Ann's School.

Registration starts at 12:30 p.m. and the walk kicks off at 1 p.m.

The walk is important to help ISS meet its financial goals. Money raised over the years through the walk has helped ISS provide much needed services throughout the South Shore.

For more information regarding the walk contact the ISS office at 617-773-6203.

DARE Program Survives Despite Lack of Public Funds

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

As the economy continues to flounder and public funds dry up, the Quincy Police DARE program remains steadfast in its mission to educate children on the dangers of drug use.

With the help of private donations, the DARE program remains one the only health-related courses of study for elementary and middle school students. More than 12,000 kids have taken the class since the program began in 1989.

Quincy Police officers Donald Sautter and John Grazioso teach 5th and 7th grade students at city schools about the dangers of drug use, peer pressure, violence and other health-related topics. Grazioso has been teaching students for eight years, while Sautter started his role as a DARE officer two years ago.

Currently, Grazioso handles the middle school students while Sautter teaches at the city's 16 elementary schools.

Tough fiscal times have hampered many public programs, and DARE has not been immune. But Sautter and Grazioso have looked to the private sector for help. The feedback has been positive, and DARE thrives despite a lack of public funds.

"Most of the people we contacted were more than happy to donate, and they seemed to think the program was a good idea," said Sautter. "Not only were we teaching them drug abuse prevention and resistance but we are also forming relationships with kids, and they see that there can be a positive relationship with law enforcement."

In the past the Quincy DARE program relied on as much as $40,000 annually from state grants. That number was cut to $13,000 a few years ago. Now, the program receives virtually nothing from the state, the officers said. The city funds the salaries of the DARE officers as part of the police department budget.

"We used to receive more support, but it keeps whittling down to the point where we have received no grant money this year," said Sautter. Grant funds were used to purchase food for children, print anti-drug literature, and rent space for meetings. From time to time, the officers would invite guest speakers, such as jail inmates or crime prevention experts, to speak to students.

The Massachusetts Governor's Alliance Against Drugs was responsible for funneling the money to local communities, but the agency's budget has been hit hard during the economic downturn, Sautter said.

"Because there has been less and less money, the agency is getting more and more specific about what the grant money can be used for," he said. "The support is just not there anymore."

Grazioso said some communities have stopped the DARE program altogether, due to fiscal constraints.

Local businesses have been more than willing to pick up the slack, they said.

The officers sent out letters to local companies and engaged in some old fashioned legwork to raise money for the program.

"This was the first time we really had to do it," said Sautter. "We will have to continue to do things like this because I'm pretty sure we won't have any money coming in from the state."

He said some businesses have been very generous, donating up to $1000 to the program. A local automobile dealer donated two vans that are used as DARE vehicles. "Most people knew of the DARE program and corporate people have their own kids in the program so that was very helpful," said Grazioso.

As a result, DARE continues to provide numerous services for students.

This year, DARE has partnered with Father Bill's Place to offer a presentation about the consequences of drug and alcohol abuse. Language translators for Asian families are available. In addition, the DARE program offers modified classes for special education students.

DARE also assists the high schools with their alcohol-free, after-prom parties.

With the help of local sponsors, the Quincy DARE program will hold its 9th annual golf tournament in May. The tournament is just one more way the officers raise money to keep the program afloat.

Along with high school peer educators, the DARE officers conduct after-school programs for students. Sautter and Grazioso also work with school principals to address any school-related issues.

"I try to form relationships with the kids besides just the classroom," said Sautter.

Sautter said he and Grazioso are available to meet with parents and address any concerns or issues. DARE did conduct two evening meetings with parents and school guidance counselors but the state grants have dried up and forced the officers to cut back the program to one night.

In the past, DARE sponsored a summer camp with the assistance of grant money from the Norfolk County DA's office. That money has stopped as well. Sautter said the program is worthwhile and keeps children occupied during the summer vacation. "If we do anything this year it will require donations," said Sautter.

DARE may have hit a few bumps in the road, but the program is alive and well in Quincy due to the generosity and support of the community.

"We talk to the kids about life issues," said Sautter. "We might not talk about academics, but the activities we talk about can affect academics. We are in a position to help kids or direct them to where they can get help."

DARE OFFICERS John Grazioso and Donald Sautter talk to fifth grade students at the Snug Harbor Community School, Germantown, about the dangers of drug use. Despite a lack of public funds, Quincy DARE has soldiered on with the help of the private sector.

DARE OFFICERS Donald Sautter and John Grazioso stand alongside their DARE vehicle in front of the Snug Harbor Community School, Germantown. The vehicle was donated to the program by Foley Chrysler-Plymouth on Hancock St., North Quincy.

William Keener Candidate For Ward 6 City Council

Quincy attorney and retired Boston Police Officer William H. Keener of 19 Gladstone St. is a candidate for the Ward 6 city council seat.

Keener announced his candidacy Tuesday at Murphy's Twin Shamrocks at 425 Hancock St.

Keener is a recipient of the George L. Hanna Medal of Valor, the highest honor bestowed upon a police officer in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. He also received the Boston Police Medal of Honor and several other medals and commendations.

Keener was forced into early retirement after he was seriously and permanently injured in the line of duty.

Upon his retirement, Keener earned his law degree from the New England School of Law. He is a practicing attorney at his law firm, Keener & Benson, in Quincy Center.

At the civic level, Keener has served on the Quincy Conservation Commission, the city's Open Space Committee, and the Mayor's Fair Housing Committee. He also a member of the Squantum School Council and is a coach for the Squantum Girls softball league.

WILLIAM KEENER

He and is wife, Laura, have three daughters, Kelsey, Alexandra and Lily. All three daughters attend Squantum Elementary School.

In announcing his candidacy, Keener said, "I bring valuable experience, courage, a commitment to public service, and the personal skills needed to represent the best interests of the residents of Ward 6. I will be the zealous advocate that Ward 6 needs and I promise that my constituents will find me readily available to address their concerns."

In an effort to increase voter registration, Keener said he will host three voter registration drives. The first is scheduled Thursday, May 1 from 5 to 7 p.m. near Tedeschi's on East Squantum St. in Squantum.

Other voter registrations drive will be held Friday, May 2 from 5 to 7 p.m. on the Marina Bay Boardwalk; and Saturday, May 3 at the Wheelhouse Diner at the intersection of Hancock and Hayward Sts.

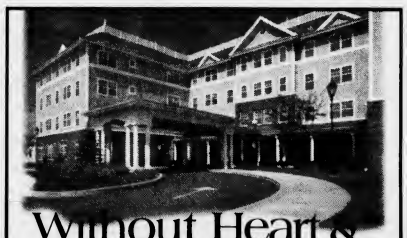
William Anastasia On Springfield Dean's List

William Anastasia of Quincy has been named to the Dean's List for the fall semester at Springfield College.

He is a junior majoring in communications/sports journalism.

Salvation Army Accepting Registration For Summer Camp

The Salvation Army of Quincy is accepting registration for children ages 6-12 to attend the Salvation Army's Camp Wonderland, an accredited, overnight Christian camp facility in Sharon.



Founded 77 years ago, Camp Wonderland offers a summer camp experience to children who might otherwise not be able to afford it.

Located on 110 acres on Lake Massapoag, Camp Wonderland offers activities such as swimming, boating, pioneering, nature hikes, arts and crafts, sports, Native American education, and much more. The camp features a spacious dining hall and rustic cabins that house a total of 216 campers per session. A health unit staffed with medical personnel is available 24 hours a day for all campers. Chapel services are held each morning to start the day with words of inspiration.

The cost is only $45 per child for one week of camp. Parents/guardians will need to provide the camp fee, the child's medical insurance card, and complete the camp forms. Families having no medical insurance are also welcome to register their children. The Salvation Army provides transportation to and from the camp.

Quincy will be sending campers for the session that runs July 10-16.

To register a child for the camp program, call Major Linda Jones at 617-472-2345 or stop by the offices at 6 Baxter St., Quincy.

Brush Up On Your Painting Know-How

NAPSI - Before beginning an indoor painting project, here are some key steps to consider:

• Accurately calculate how much paint you need, and do surface preparation before painting. Be sure to read the paint can label, and use the right type of brushes and rollers. For proper ventilation, open windows and doors.

Handling Leftover Paint

• If your calculations were too generous and you have leftover paint, store it properly or consider donating it to a community service group, theater, school or church.

For more tips on painting and decorating, visit www.paintinfo.org.

Did You Know?

(NAPS) - According to the floral experts at 1-800-FLOWERS.COM, you should keep an indoor bulb garden in bright, but indirect sunlight. A kitchen windowsill might make the perfect home. Also, do not forget to water your bulbs. Ideally, the soil should be evenly moist at all times.

Keep the bulb garden away from direct heat sources and void dust settling on the bloom.

(NU) – Indoor or outdoor container gardening is one of the fastest-growing gardening activities in the United States. In fact, more than 23 million households are growing plants in containers.

Container gardening is an excellent way to get involved with gardening. Container gardens fit in almost any space, and your choice of plants and containers is nearly unlimited. A container garden is even a great learning tool for that garden novice who wants to get growing.

Here are a few tips when you start planning your container garden:

• Select your containers. The only limit is your imagination. An antique washtub, metal water can, or clay or plastic pot are excellent options. Use larger pots for larger plants. Be sure to drill small holes for drainage if necessary.

• Pick out your plants. Almost anything goes. Annuals, perennials, bulbs, cacti and roses make excellent choices. Dwarf or smaller plant varieties are ideal. Just make sure you choose the right plants for the container's location – sun or shade.

• Choose the right potting mix. Choosing the right potting mix can make all the difference. Container plants not only require water and fertilizer to thrive, they also need protection from aphids, thrips, whiteflies and other insects that can stunt their growth or kill them.

Bayer Advanced Garden offers two potting mixes – Bayer Advanced Garden All-in-One Potting Mix and Bayer Advanced Garden 3-in-1 Multi-Purpose Potting Mix – that combine a premium potting mix with three additional important benefits: premium fertilizer that lasts for up to nine months; insect protection that lasts up to fours months; and moisture control that helps plants get the right amount of water. It is like having three products in one. If you just don't need the added insect protection or if you are growing edible food plants, such as herbs, fruits and vegetables, try new Bayer Advanced Garden Multi-Purpose Potting Mix With Moisture Control. This product combines the premium potting mix with a long-lasting fertilizer and moisture control.

You can learn more about caring for your lawn and garden and about discounts on various Bayer Advanced products by visiting www.bayeradvanced.com or by calling 1-877-BAYERAG.

Anthony Agnitti Named South Shore Chamber Chairman

Anthony L. Agnitti of Agnitti Insurance Agency, Inc., has been named chairman of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, the 2,300-member organization that services communities from Quincy to Plymouth.

He succeeds James Welch of Needel, Welch and Stone, the Rockland CPA firm.

Agnitti listed his goals for the Chamber "to grow a strong business environment which will provide jobs to employ citizens as well as take the burden off the homeowner by having a solid business community paying property tax in the community they reside.

"Business, government, citizens, community and church are all spokes on the wheel that are needed to move toward a high quality of life and self-actualization."

Agnitti said he feels his new position on the South Shore Chamber of Commerce will be helpful to Quincy, particularly in reviving the Greenbush railroad line.

"The Greenbush Restoration is a concentration of the Chamber as a major regional business catalyst to positive growth," he said. "Presently, Quincy has the rail but is not realizing the full benefit of the rail due to the lack of a Greenbush component.

"A recent chamber survey showed that close to 18 percent usage would be from further south to Quincy which means reduce traffic and higher access.

"I am excited about positive growth in the shipyard as well as by addressing Greenbush. I feel Quincy will benefit. In a high tide, all ships rise."

Agnitti has been the longtime chairman of the Quincy Business Council, past chairman of the Salvation Army Board and past president of Quincy Kiwanis.

He is a founder and director of Horizon Bank and a longtime advocate and sponsor of Quincy Youth Sports teams as well as several Quincy charities on whose boards he has served.

Eugene Thomas Salon Cut-a-Thon To Fight Breast Cancer

For the fourth year in a row, the staff of the Eugene Thomas Salon is turning out for a special Sunday Cut-a-Thon to raise money for a worthy cause.

This year, for the second consecutive year, the receipts for bargain-priced haircuts and manicures will go to the National Cancer Society to fight breast cancer.

Between the hours of 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. Sunday, May 4, haircuts will be $20 and manicures will be $10.

Usually the salon, which is normally only open Monday through Saturday, charges $35 to $40 for a haircut and $12 for a manicure.

Previously, the Eugene Thomas Salon has held Cut-a-Thons to raise funds to fight AIDS and domestic violence. Last year, $500 was raise to counter breast cancer.

$5M Open Space $4M For Parks

cy's precious open space and recreational areas in a manner that will have a lasting impact on our city."

The mayor's proposal calls for spending $5 million on the acquisition of open space, $4 million for park improvements and $ 1 million for the city's share of the Army Corps of Engineers project for wetlands restoration at Broad Meadows.

In addition, the plan calls for the rezoning of approximately 50 acres of land to open space.

Phelan said he will work with the city's legislative delegation to explore the possibility of the city assuming jurisdiction of certain MDC parcels of land after the agency is dissolved.

"Given that some of the city's most significant recreational parcels, particularly the Wollaston Beach Reservation and Squantum Point Park, are under the control of the MDC, we should make every effort to seize the opportunity to control the look, use and promotion of certain parcels," said Phelan.

Included in the $4 million proposal for park improvements:

• Using $1.6 million for improvements to Veterans' Memorial Stadium. The plan calls for the installation of a new perimeter track and synthetic turf field as well as the construction of a restroom for the disabled.

• Earmarking $850,000 for repairs and work on Adams Field. The plan would install new bleachers, upgrade the lighting system, replace aging restrooms and construct a new backstop and perimeter fencing.

• Using $200,000 for improvements to Mitchell and McCoy Fields. The proposal calls for new lighting, fencing and backstops as well as upgrades to the bleachers.

• Spending $400,000 for citywide park improvements. The plan would repair irrigation systems, fencing, courts and backstops at many of the city's parks.

• Using $100,000 to improve the city's beaches. The plan would include the replacment of sand at the city's 10 municipal locations.

As part of the open space plan, the city will pay $2.2 million for cleanup costs at land next to Highpoint, the huge luxury apartment complex being built atop a former landfill on Quarry St. Some 22 acres of land will be given to the city in exchange for payment of the environmental remediation.

Phelan also wants to acquire several parcels of land for open space. Included in the plan are the following locations:

• Lot 23, remainder on Seaport Dr. in Marina Bay

• Certain land on Hazeltine properties

• 271 Sea St.

• 40-66 Newbury St.

• 10-39 Cleverly Ct.

Phelan said the plan would be paid for with the city's room occupancy tax, which was proposed by Council President Dan Raymondi and approved by the city council in 2001.

The tax took effect in July, 2001 with a one percent tax levied on the price of every hotel, motel or inn room. The progressive tax increased to two percent last July. It would rise annually until it hits a cap of four percent.

Eighty-five percent of the money must be used for open space and recreation, while the remaining 15 percent would be earmarked for tourism. Funds generated from the hotel/motel tax would be used to pay down the bond over 15 to 20 years.

Two weeks ago, Phelan's initial attempt at seeking a $10 million bond for the proposal was postponed by Raymondi, who wanted to know how the city would pay for the plan.

But Thomas Largey, the mayor's director of operations, said the hotel/motel tax will cover the costs of the $10 million bond.

"The request is reasonable and based on sound fiscal projections," said Largey. "Bob Foy has run the projections on the hotel/motel tax, and he is content that the numbers support the $10 million bond."

Park, Forestry and Cemetery Commissioner Tom Koch, who also sits on the open space committee, called the overall plan "balanced."

"This plan strikes a good balance and will please most people," said Koch. "It meets some of our needs that would not have been addressed under the regular budget. The plan is even more important, given these tough fiscal times."

Koch said he was confident that the hotel/motel tax could pay for the bond.

"It may be a little tight at the beginning, but there should be a larger pool of money down the road beyond the bond payment," he said.

Some of the work for improving the parks has gone out to bid already, Koch said. Renovations to Adams Field should be done as soon as possible to make way for The Babe Ruth World Series, which is scheduled to take place there in August, Koch said.

He said park improvements will be done with a combination of private contractors and in-house work.

Hard-Working Raiders Gaining Experience

BOYS' BASEBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

As he rebuilds the North Quincy High School baseball team, first-year head coach Rick Del Vecchio knows there'll be games like Monday afternoon's 9-1 loss to Canton at Adams Field.

He also knows his young, talented squad can have a day like last Wednesday — a come-from-behind 9-7 victory at Barnstable for its first win of the season.

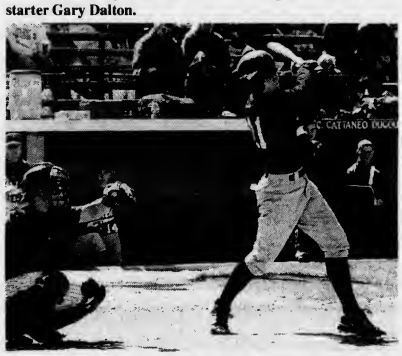
"The problem is we have very little varsity experience," Del Vecchio said. "A lot of the guys are just getting their feet wet. The kids and I are still getting to know each other. They're working hard at practice. It takes time and effort because they're young and inexperienced."

North Quincy (1-2) traveled to Braintree Tuesday and today (Thursday) at 1 p.m. it hosts Milton at Adams Field.

Canton reached senior pitcher Gary Dalton for three runs in the first inning. After walking the leadoff batter, who stole second base, Dalton struck out the next two batters looking before yielding three straight singles.

The inning ended when junior catcher Andy McAllister gunned down a runner trying to steal second base.

Canton added a run in the second inning when the leadoff hitter's grounder to shortstop took a wicked bounce over junior Steve Reardon's head to drive in the runner from third base.



In the fourth inning Canton pushed across four runs for a commanding 9-0 lead thanks to three hits (two doubles) and two walks. Dalton pitched a scoreless fifth inning before giving way to senior James Zapata, who escaped a bases-loaded, one-out jam in the sixth.

"Gary Dalton was a little erratic, not his usual great command," Del Vecchio said. "When he made mistakes they hit them."

In the bottom half North Quincy got on the scoreboard for its lone run of the contest. Senior James Coughlin drew a leadoff walk and moved to second on sophomore John Fitzgerald's single to right field. McAllister walked to load the bases and senior Chris Dolbeare knocked in the run with a fielder's choice.

JAY FIDALGO pitched the seventh inning in relief of senior starter Gary Dalton.

SEAN SULLIVAN takes a hack at an offering by the Canton pitcher in North Quincy's 9-1 loss Monday afternoon at Adams Field.

Senior Jay Fidalgo tossed the seventh inning, allowing two hits and an unearned run when another grounder took a bad hop over senior third baseman Dom Delgardo's head.

"Canton is a very well-coached, exceptionally talented baseball team," Del Vecchio said. "They're the best team we've played yet."

"Their pitcher was dominant," he added, as NQ managed only two hits. "He had three pitches, moved the ball in and out and had great velocity. He overpowered our hitters in the middle innings."

In the Barnstable game Dalton notched the win, allowing one earned run on just one hit while striking out seven in 5 1/3 innings. At one point, he retired 14 straight batters. Zapata closed out the game with no-hit relief for the save.

Trailing 4-2 in the sixth inning the Red Raiders sent 12 men to the plate and exploded for seven runs for a 9-4 advantage. McAllister (2 for 4) and Reardon (3 for 4) each stroked two-run singles in the inning.

"Barnstable is one of the better teams in the Old Colony League," Del Vecchio said. "It was good for our boys to get a win. They played exceptional."

Presidents Playing Good Ball But Need Some Luck

The seventh inning did not treat the Quincy High School baseball team well last week.

In the final frame, the Presidents yielded the winning runs to Archbishop Williams, a 3-2 loss last Tuesday, and to Sandwich, a 6-3 setback last Wednesday.

"We're playing some good ball," said head coach Michael Draicchio. "We haven't come up with any luck. We played good enough to beat both teams."

Next week, Quincy (1-3) heads to Randolph Monday and Plymouth North Wednesday before returning home Thursday night at 7 to battle rival North Quincy at Adams Field.

In the Sandwich game Quincy evened the score at 3 in the sixth winning. Senior Liam Powers reached on a fielder's choice, stole second and scored on senior Rob Muollo's RBI double.

The Blue Knights, though, pushed across three runs in the seventh for a 6-3 lead with the help of a Quincy error. Muollo, who went 3 for 3 at the plate, pitched into the seventh before he was relieved by senior Bob Ritchie.

Earlier in the game, Chiocchio blasted his third home run of the season 356 feet down the left field line.

Against Archbishop Williams the Presidents grabbed a 1-0 lead in the second inning. Senior Matt MacNeil walked, stole second, moved to third on a fielder's choice by senior Shaun Gibbons and scored on a wild pitch.

Quincy extended its lead to 2-0 in the fourth inning when the AW right fielder dropped a fly ball off the bat of MacNeil that enabled Muollo (double) to score.

In the fifth inning AW evened the game with a pair of unearned runs and scored the game-winner in the seventh on a wild pitch. Senior Ryan Conley tossed a strong game, allowing only five hits and no earned runs while striking out six.

"We made a couple of mistakes and Archies capitalized on it," Draicchio said. "A wild pitch is a tough way to lose. We have to start making more plays in the field and hit more, just like everybody else. No one is really putting up numbers with hits."

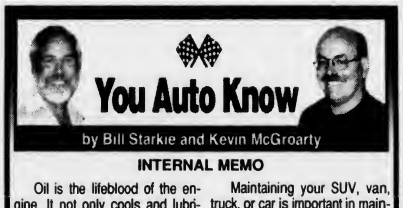
Lions Club Run/Walk For Sight Saturday

The Quincy Lions Club will host its sixth annual Run/Walk for Sight Saturday, April 26, at Pageant Field.

Registration and pre-race registration begins at 9 a.m., with the children's 1K Run/Walk starting at 10:30 a.m. and the 5K Run/Walk beginning at 11 a.m. The race is a USATF certified course.

Registration fee is $5 for children and $20 for adults ($17 for pre-registration). All proceeds will be used to fund eye research and support the Quincy Lions Club's service activities in the local community.

Following the race, lunch will be provided courtesy of Outback Steakhouse Quincy.



"The Run/Walk is really a terrific family event," said Quincy Lions Club President Christine Cedrone said. "We encourage everyone to come down, participate in the Run/Walk and help support a worthy cause."

Richard Moore Memorial Golf Tournament

The second annual Richard A. Moore Memorial Golf Tournament will be held June 9 at Widow's Walk Golf Course in Scituate.

An 8:30 a.m. shotgun start, the tournament will benefit the Jimmy Fund at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

For more information contact Shawn Craig at 781-446-1191 (days) or 617-471-2195 (nights).

INTERNAL MEMO

Oil is the lifeblood of the engine. It not only cools and lubricates the engine's internal parts, but its detergent components clean the engine as well. Particles caused by normal wear, along with corrosive by-products of combustion, are removed by the circulating oil and deposited in the oil filter. At the same time, when an engine is starved of oil, it leads to wear and other damage. For instance, an ominous rumbling or knocking sound at certain engine speeds and loads may be indicative of worn crankshaft bearings. A distinctive ticking sound, which is especially noticeable when the engine is first started, may warn of trouble with the hydraulic valve lifters. At this point, an engine rebuild may be necessary.

Maintaining your SUV, van, truck, or car is important in maintaining its value and changing the engine oil on a regular basis is one of the best ways. For most all your maintenance and repair needs, bring it to the ASE Certified professionals at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, and trust its care to our experienced technicians. Our friendly staff will gladly answer all your questions here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored.

HINT: If your vehicle is subjected to more than the usual amount of short trip, stop-and-go driving (especially in cold weather), change your oil even more frequently than the manual suggests..

Quincy Rebounds With 11-2 Win Over North

GIRLS' SOFTBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

Head coach Mike Sedar thinks last Wednesday's 4-0 loss to Whitman-Hanson might have been a good thing for his talented Quincy High School softball team.

"I think it's good that it happened," he said. "It woke us up. We can't mail it in. We have to come to play. It definitely caught the attention of their coach. That's for sure."

So much so that he juggled his lineup the following day against North Quincy, sitting down a couple of starters. It worked as the Presidents rebounded with a thorough 11-2 victory over the Red Raiders last Thursday at an icy Pageant Field.

Quincy (2-1) hosted Cardinal Spellman yesterday (Wednesday) and Friday it plays them in a rematch on the road at 10:30 a.m.

Meanwhile, North Quincy (0-6) played Dedham Tuesday, and will host Braintree today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. and Taunton Friday at 10 a.m.

Junior Rachel Sorensen, who allowed just two hits and four unearned runs in the tough loss to W-H, went the distance against North Quincy, giving up two runs on four hits while striking out 10, including the side in the first inning.

"Rachel was in full control," said NQ head coach Bob Doyle. "She kept us off balance and she had a number of strikeouts."

In second inning the Presidents loaded the bases on three walks but sophomore pitcher Deanna Iacobucci escaped the jam with a strikeout — an all too familiar scene for Quincy, which left the bases loaded three times against the Panthers.

Quincy erupted for five runs in the third frame. With the bases loaded and no outs, freshman Courtney Hall scored on a wild pitch and sophomore Alyssa DiMuzio stroked a two-run double to make it 3-0. DiMuzio was thrown out trying to stretch her hit into triple on senior shortstop Lisa Schifone's relay throw from junior left fielder Michelle Boyd.

Sophomore Marissa Powers — who replaced senior quad-captain Stacey Andrew after she bruised her arm diving for a ball — followed with a walk, stole second base and moved to third when junior Rose Bell reached on an error. Senior Jen Gropp ripped a two-run single but was gunned down at second to end the inning.

North Quincy reached Sorensen for a run in the bottom half with two outs. Boyd singled and took second base on an error. After stealing third base, junior quad-captain Beth Goodrich knocked her in with a single to make it 5-1.

In the fourth, Hall and senior quad-captain Diane Gilbody each singled and moved to second and third on a wild pitch. After a walk to senior quad-captain Shannon Paine, DiMuzio crushed a ball to the left-center gap but Boyd chased it down and made an unbelievable over-the-head catch up against the fence. Hall and Gilbody tagged up and scored on the play while Paine made it to third base.

"Michelle made some great defensive plays," Doyle said. "That was an incredible catch at the warning track."

"DiMuzio has been hitting a ton," Sedar said. "That was a pretty spectacular catch by Boyd. Willie Mays-esque."

The Red Raiders scored their other run in the bottom half of the fourth. Junior May Ho — who went 4 for 4 in a 10-5 loss to Barnstable the previous day — singled, took second on an error and advanced to third base on a groundout. She crossed home plate on a wild pitch to make it 7-2.

Quincy tacked on two more runs in the fifth inning and one in the sixth and seventh to close out the game.

250 Guests Attend Dinner For Babe Ruth World Series

A rousing kick-off of the 2003 Babe Ruth World Series was held recently at the Quincy Sons of Italy.

Close to 250 guests, including Mayor William Phelan, gathered at the fund-raiser to lend their support to the Babe Ruth Committee's world series efforts.

The committee thanks the Quincy Sons of Italy for its continued support and assistance; Sean Hannon and the Outback Steakhouse for donating, preparing and serving a bountiful chicken buffet; Sean Glennon and the North Quincy High School Alumni Association for their generous donation of $500; Curry Hardware, the Common Market, State Street Global, Bob Griffin, Ed Coletta, John Pellegrini and John Laukkanen for their generous donations; and all who helped assure the success of the fund-raiser.

The 2003 14-year-old Babe Ruth World Series will be held Aug. 15-23 at Adams Field. For more information or to volunteer contact President Dick Lombardi at 617-479-5724.

Under 14 Boys Defeat Milton, 12-3

The Quincy Youth Lacrosse under 14 boys' team recently opened its season with a 12-3 victory over Milton in less than perfect weather conditions.

Both coach Tom Henry and assistant coach Shaun Donovan felt confident before the game having returned several seasoned players.

Quincy's offense came as steady as the rain fell. Mike Maxie blasted four goals to lead the way while Andrew Gormley and Ryan Donovan netted two apiece. James Fitzpatrick, Nick Masone, Matt Lawlor and Mike Gillespie added goals.

Goalie Nash Winters played a fine game and had a strong defense supporting him with Chris Rooney, John Cahill, Tom Henry and Pat Dunn.

Koch Club Baseball Registration April 28, 30

Registration for the 53rd season of Koch Club Youth Baseball will be held April 28 and 30 from 6 to 7 p.m. in the parking lot at Atlantic Middle School on Hollis Avenue, North Quincy.

Cost is $15 and every child that joins will receive a hat and T-shirt. Boys and girls ages 5-10 are eligible to register. A child must be 5 years of age by July 1, 2003. Every youngster who joins Koch Club will participate; there are no tryouts.

The program is loosely structured for kids to learn how to play the game and have fun. Parents are encouraged to help organize and supervise the games.

All games will be played at O'Neil Field behind Atlantic Middle School. Games will be held Mondays and Wednesdays at 6 p.m. from May 5 through July 2.

Richard Joyce and Brian Glennon are the co-directors of the Koch Club Baseball program. For more information call Glennon at 617-479-7997.

Local Seniors Preparing For Their Olympics May 12

Local seniors are getting ready for the 21st annual Quincy Senior Olympics that will begin May 12.

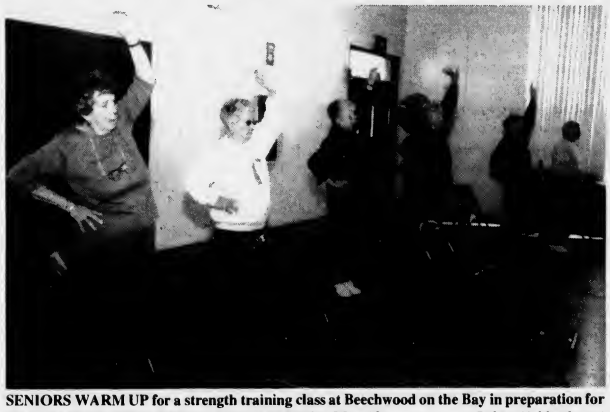
To prepare for the games, seniors are participating in Sports Day — practice sessions held each Friday morning at Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St.

Sports Day will be held the next three Fridays. All interested seniors are invited to take part and practice and try out new games. Volunteer senior coaches will demonstrate and train.

"We call it spring training," said Sharron Beals, Beechwood's executive director.

Beals said the Senior Olympics has become a "spirit of aging" for seniors in Quincy and on the South Shore.

"They look forward to it all year," she said. "It's like a validation: 'I'm here, I'm fit and I'm fine.' It personifies the philosophy of getting older."



In addition, there are walking groups (1 to 3 miles) and volleyball from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. on Wednesdays and Fridays.

Also, blood pressure clinics are held Wednesdays and Thursdays. Call for schedule.

For information on the Senior Olympics or other elder programs, call Kathy Prince, director of Beechwood's Senior Center, at 617-471-5712 or visit Beechwood on the Bay.

April Is National Youth Sports Safety Month

Injury Prevention Tips For Youth Sports

Whether it's a recreational bike ride or little league baseball, athletic activities help to promote a child's self-esteem and confidence, as well as an overall healthier lifestyle.

However, any sport your child participates in also carries the potential risk for injury.

In fact, according to the National Youth Sports Safety Foundation, sports-related injuries send more than a million children to the emergency room each year.

"Too often children are injured because they are not properly trained or they do not have the appropriate safety equipment," said Dr. Gerard Malanga, director of Sports, Spine and Orthopedic Rehabilitation at Kessler Institute for Rehabilitation, one of the nation's leading providers of physical rehab services.

Children are more vulnerable to sports injuries because their bodies are still growing and developing. They are less coordinated and have slower reaction times. In addition, children within the same age group mature at different rates causing significant variances in their heights and weights.

They do, however, experience the same injuries as adults — including sprains, strains, contusions and fractures. Injuries can occur through a sudden collision or fall, or develop over time from repetitive actions.

"We've seen a significant increase in overuse injuries because children are pushing too hard, too often and too fast to excel in one activity," Malanga said. "A great misconception among young athletes is to just do one sport."

Some common overuse injuries include:

• Little league elbow: Repetitive throwing motion results in pain and tenderness in the elbow.

• Swimmer's shoulder: Continuous overhead motion causes inflammation and pain in the shoulder.

• Shin splints: Repeated running on hard surfaces causes pain and discomfort on the front of the lower leg.

• Spondylosis: Repetitive bending and twisting causes persistent lower back pain.

"Children can reduce their risk of an overuse injury by engaging in different activities throughout the year," Malanga said. "This allows them to strengthen other muscles not regularly used and to vary the stresses placed around the body."

While no sport is 100 percent safe, there are things parents can do to help make their child's activity as injury-free as possible. In conjunction with National Youth Sports Safety Month (April), Kessler recommends the following preventative guidelines.

• Physical exam: A physician can help assess any possible injury risks a child may have and can make sure they are physically ready for play. According to the American Academy of Pediatrics, a child should at least be 6 years old before playing team sports.

• Preparation: Make sure a child has adequate training and conditioning before participation in any sport. Warm-up and cool-down periods are essential.

• Equipment: Children should obtain and wear carefully fitted, sport-specific safety gear, such as helmets for bicycle riding, baseball and softball, and protective eye wear for hockey and racquet sports.

• Maintenance: Make sure all playing surfaces are dry and free of litter, holes, ruts and anything that could cause a child to fall.

• Adult supervision: Coaches should enforce the rules, encourage safe play, understand the risks and, optimally, be trained in first aid and CPR. Parents should provide emotional support and praise their child's efforts. Both parents and coaches need to keep a "cool head." They should emphasize fun and exercise, not winning at all costs.

• Pay attention: Caution children not to play through pain. Give early and appropriate attention to complaints of pain or dysfunction. If there are visible or audible signs of locking, catching, giving out, and/or swelling, or, if there is no relief from an injury after 10 days, seek medical attention.

By understanding the causes and prevention of recreational and sports-related injuries, parents can help make their children's athletic participation a more rewarding and enjoyable experience.

For more information about sports-related injuries, treatments or prevention, call 1-888-KESSLER or visit its Web site (www.kessler-rehab.com).

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

HAVING AN IMPACT

Wisdom teeth sometimes have a tendency to become impacted. This means that they are prevented from becoming useful teeth by being blocked from erupting in their normal paths. The blockage may be due to the wisdom tooth's angling up into an adjacent tooth. In addition, dense overlying bone may prevent the wisdom tooth from erupting into the mouth. If allowed to remain for too long a period of time, an impacted wisdom tooth can cause resorption of part of an adjacent tooth. This resorption process is similar in its result to tooth decay. The end result is the loss of a perfectly healthy tooth. For this reason, impacted wisdom teeth are usually removed when deemed necessary.

Appreciation Dinner For Deacon Jim Little May 25

An appreciation dinner for Deacon Jim Little, who was recently transferred from Star of the Sea Parish, Squantum, to St. Ann's Parish, Dorchester, will be held Sunday, May 25 at 11:30 a.m. at the Phillip Old Colony House, Dorchester.

Tickets are $25 per person.

For more information or reservations, call (617) 328-1325 or (617) 282-4239.

Deadline for ticket reservations is May 12.

Wollaston Congregational

The public is invited to attend a special coffee hour after the 10 a.m. service Sunday at Wollaston Congregational Church, 48 Winthrop Ave., as the church bids farewell to the Rev. Gary Smothers as interim minister.

After 18 months with Rev. Smothers, Wollaston Congregational Church has called a settled full time pastor who will begin May 4.

Rev. Smothers final sermon topic is "The Beat Goes On."

Scripture will be read by Ruth Walker and the ushers will be Phyllis Dixon and Joe Sandahl.

Deacon of the month is Gabrielle Guedes.

Church members will also participate in the Interfaith Social Services 10K Walk in the afternoon.

Habit For Humanity Fundraiser April 27-29

South Shore Habitat for Humanity will hold a Birdhouse Show and Auction fundraiser at the South Shore Plaza April 27-29.

Hundreds of birdhouses will be showcased and other unique items are available for purchase as well as a silent auction.

Birdhouses are made by local artists. The houses and feeders are judged on creativity, woodworking skill, and other criteria. Awards are presented to the winning artists.

South Shore Habitat volunteers are at the mall to inform interested shoppers about current homebuilding projects.

For more information, call the Habitat office at 781-843-9080.

Bethany Congregational

The Rev. William Harding, pastor, will conduct the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Bethany Congregational Church.

Rev. Harding's sermon title is "In Your Life." He will also have a moment with the children of the Church School before they go to their respective classes.

Ken and Mildred Rickson will serve as greeters. Scripture reader will be Corinne Mikami.

Music for the service will be provided by the Chancel Choir and Paul Frazer, baritone soloist with Tom Boyer, organist.

Childcare will be available for infants and toddlers during the worship hour.

A Bethany team of walkers will participate in the 20th annual South Shore Walk for Interfaith Social Services next Sunday.

Bethany Church's Outreach Program will have worship services with Holy Communion next Tuesday, April 29 at the Eventide Home and on Thursday, May 1 at the Quincy Nursing and Rehab Center.

United Methodist

The Rev. Carol Stine will lead the Adult Bible Class at 9 a.m. and will deliver her sermon at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

Janet McGonicle will serve as liturgist and will light the Peace Candle.

Church School will follow the pastor's message.

Following the worship service, there will be a Fellowship Hour hosted by Nancy Valorz, Kelly Cobble and Jeanne O'Connor in Susanna Wesley Hall.

United First Parish

The Rev. Hank Peirce from First Church in Medford will be the guest minister at the 10:30 a.m. worship service Sunday at United First Parish Church (Unitarian), 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center, across from City Hall.

Rev. Peirce did his internship in Quincy. The service will be followed by a coffee hour in the Parish Hall.

Religious Education classes are offered for children from pre-school through high school.

Wollaston Congregational Fundraiser For Book Series

The Wollaston Congregational Church has been chosen by the Penguin Putnam Publishing Co. to hold a fundraiser in conjunction with the Jan Karon series about the fictional town of Mitford.

The stories are about father Tim and his relationship with his congregation and the town of Mitford.

Penguin Publishers will provide a tea set, which Jan Karon has selected to auction off along with a video in which the author will greet guests and give information about the series including the paperback release of the last book published, In This Mountain.

On Saturday, May 31, "Mitford Day in Wollaston" will be held. There will be a craft fair from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Tables will be rented for $20 each.

A tea will be held at noon and will feature several characters from the books as well as viewing the Jan Karon video. Father Tim will present the sermon from the book, In This Mountain.

At 6 p.m., a dinner auction of goods and services will be held, including signed books and the "Mitford" tea set.

The cost of the tea is $15 and the dinner for the auction is $15. Tickets to both are $25.

For information to buy tickets, rent tables or place an ad in the ad book, call 617-471-3516 or 617-773-7432.

Houghs Neck Congregational

The Rev. M. Alicia Corea, pastor, will preach the sermon "What's New?" at the 9:30 a.m. worship service Sunday at Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave.

All are invited to coffee hour following the service.

The church will hold its election meeting at 10:45 a.m. Stewardship meeting will follow.

At 12:15 p.m., a church group will conduct worship and Holy Communion at the Rice Eventide Home on Adams St.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Nobody can deny that today's pace of living is very complicated and rapid. The human mind and body is called upon to adjust itself to a faster and faster tempo.

Bewilderment, as problems require a solution; worry and anxiety over success or failure is common. The steady strain of business, in an effort to acquire more and have every available comfort, adds to the nervous strain. High tension is taking a heavy toll of professional men and women.

Probably the best antidote for strain is a relaxed sense of humor. Believe it or not, there are many things in life one can laugh about whether he wins or loses, succeeds or fails. To do so means a longer life and a better chance to reverse one's errors.

Victor Hugo once said, "Laughter is the sun that drives winter from the human face." . . . We agree. . . Don't you?

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You easily handle your tasks this week, thanks to those high energy levels that never seem to run down. But pace yourself, Lamb, for the demanding week ahead.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) With the arts dominant this week, you might want to pick up any of those creative projects you've neglected. A workplace situation benefits from some fresh insight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Music helps replenish your energy levels. Play your CDs if you must. But a live concert could prove more rewarding, especially if you go with that very special someone.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Close friends reach out to help perk up your lagging social life. That workplace situation also cases, leaving you time to do more fun things by week's end.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A revelation clears up that perplexing job-related problem. Some changes will have to be made, which, no doubt, will meet with the Big Cat's roaring approval. Good luck.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Reaching out to someone in need is the noble thing to do. But try to restrain the temptation to add a lecture — no matter how well-intended — to your good deed.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) There could be another tough challenge to face before the month is over. But all that hard work is winning you lots of important recognition from your peers.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Keeping to your work schedule could prove difficult with all those personal distractions. Best advice: Stay with it. There'll be time later for socializing.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Jumping hurdles this week might be vexing for most, but not for the sage Sagittarian, who recognizes that meeting a challenge can open up opportunities.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) More obstacles might be thrown in your path as you try to finalize a new agreement. But the sure-footed Goat ignores the stumbling blocks and stays the course.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) We know the Water Bearer takes pleasure in giving to others. But why not let someone else enjoy the experience too by accepting that offer of help?

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might find you need to ease up on your hectic schedule this week. Don't fret about it. It could be helpful to take a break and replenish your energy supply.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of finding practical solutions to complex problems, and you do it with grace.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

CITY OF QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS
Department of Public Works
William J. Phelan, Mayor
Jay J. Fink, P.E., Commissioner
ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

Sealed bids for construction of the Phase A-5 Hospital Area Water Main Replacement for the City of Quincy, Massachusetts, will be received at the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts until 10:00 am prevailing time, on May 15, 2003 at which time and place said bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.

The scope of work includes construction of approximately 6,700 linear feet of 16-inch and 12-inch and 3,300 feet of 8-inch ductile iron water main, abandonment of existing parallel 8-inch and 6-inch water mains, transfer of water services, and replacement of all non-copper water services in the street. The existing water main will be removed and replaced with the new water main, thus requiring the installation of temporary water service during construction. This project also includes slipping a new 14-inch ductile iron pipe in an existing 16-inch water main under the MBTA railroad on Saint Anns Road and cleaning and lining 350-feet of 6-inch pipe.

Bid Security in the form of a bid bond, cash, certified check, treasurer's or cashier's check payable to the Owner, is required in the amount of five percent of the bid, in accordance with Section 00200, INSTRUCTION TO BIDDERS.

The Instructions to Bidders, Form of General Bid, Agreement, Plans, Specifications, Performance and Payment Bond, and other Contract Documents may be examined at the following:

· Department of Public Works, Engineering Department, Quincy, Massachusetts.

· Weston & Sampson Engineers, Inc., Peabody, Massachusetts

· Dodge Reports, Lexington, Massachusetts

Copies may be obtained at the Department of Public Works Engineering Department, located at 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169, from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., upon payment of $50.00 for each set. Any unsuccessful bidder or non-bidder, upon returning such set within the time specified in the Instructions to Bidders and in good condition will be refunded his payment. Contract Documents and plans will be mailed to prospective bidders upon request and receipt of a separate check for $20.00 to cover handling and mailing fees. This amount is not refundable. Both checks shall be made payable to the City of Quincy.

The selected contractor shall furnish a performance bond and a payment bond in amount at least equal to one hundred percent (100%) of the contract price as stipulated in Section 00700 GENERAL CONDITIONS of these specifications.

Minority Business Enterprise (MBE) and Women's Business Enterprise (WBE) policies of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and the City of Quincy are applicable to this Contract. The goal for this project is a minimum of ten percent (10%) MBE participation and five percent (5%) WBE participation by state-certified MBEs and WBEs. The Bidder shall submit completed MBE-WBE forms with the bid. Failure to comply with the requirements of this paragraph may be deemed to render a proposal non-responsive. No waiver of any provision of this section will be granted unless approved by the Department of Environmental Protection.

All bids for this project are subject to applicable bidding laws of Massachusetts, including General Laws Chapter 30, Section 39M as amended.

Attention of bidders is particularly called to the requirements as to conditions of employment to be observed and minimum wage rates to be paid under the contract as determined by the Department of Workforce Development under the provisions of the Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 149, Section 26-27D, inclusive, as amended.

The Bidder agrees that this bid shall be good and may not be withdrawn for a period of 60 working days, Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays excluded after the opening of bids. The Owner reserves the right to waive any informality or to reject any or all bids if deemed in its best interest to do so.

William J. Phelan, Mayor
Jay J. Fink, P.E., Commissioner of Public Works

Gutro Urges DPW To Adopt Safety Policies For Utilities

such as natural gas and water, during new road paving projects.

Last year, Gutro introduced a council resolution that called on Keyspan to elevate shut off valves, known as gate boxes, during city-sponsored road projects. That resolution was unanimously supported, he said.

He reinforced the matter earlier this month when the DPW unveiled a street and sidewalk improvement plan for 2003.

"More often than not, emergency shut off valves for utilities, including natural gas and water, are paved over either inadvertently or knowingly during road improvements," said Gutro. "Access to emergency shutoff valves can be the difference between minimal property damage or major property damage and even live or death. These shut-off valves were installed for a reason and as we work to improve the condition of our city streets we must take due care that these valves are elevated and accessible."

In a related matter, Gutro expressed his support for the DPW's move placing a five-year moratorium on reopening streets that were recently paved.

"It extends the lifespan of city streets, takes the politics out of the process, makes sound engineering sense and allows us to direct these scarce dollars toward our neediest roadways," he said.

Residents and prospective homebuyers should be aware of the policy well in advance of any paving work, Gutro added.

He said the DPW should notify residents three to six months prior to the start of any road work. This will give residents the opportunity to consider adding a gas service or other utility prior to the commencement of road work, he said.

Also, Gutro wants the DPW to provide a list of the streets slated for repaving to local realtors. This would give prospective homebuyers a full understanding of the policy prior to buying a home in the city, he said.

To Make Recommendations At City Hall Meeting

Mayor's Task Force To Address Crime In Downtown Area

The Mayor's Quincy Center Task Force will make recommendations to confront vagrancy, homelessness and crime in the downtown area at a meeting tonight (Thursday) at City Hall.

The 7 p.m. meeting will be held by the Quincy Center Crime Watch.

The task force, chaired by Tom Largey, the mayor's director of operations, will address areas of increased police presence, community watch programs, code enforcement, aesthetic considerations as well as possible solutions.

The task force is also expected to recommend the formation of a temporary Citizens Police Academy, comprised mainly of members of the business community. The Citizens Police Academy would address such issues as robbery, shoplifting and check bouncing.

"For too long, citizens have not felt comfortable in fully utilizing the many fine resources of our downtown," said Phelan. "Our businesses, our library, and residents deserve to be secure in the exercise of their right to access our entire city. I will work to provide that security."

Recommendations by the task force will arrive days after the report of an armed robbery outside the Thomas Crane Public Library. On Monday, police arrested an 18-year-old male, charging him with armed robbery, assault and battery with a dangerous weapon, intimidation of a witness and malicious damage to property.

'I Did Not Run It'

Witnesses Corroborate Keegan On Marathon

By TOM HENSHAW

Imagine Joe Keegan's surprise when he found out that he had just run the grueling Boston Marathon in something over four hours.

Particularly since he had been on disability leave from the Quincy Police Department since December with a back injury suffered while rescuing a drowning woman from Black's Creek.

Particularly since, sometime between 11 and 11:30 a.m. when the marathoners were gathering at Hopkinton, he had been in the Quincy Sun office to discuss his candidacy for City Council from Ward 1.

Particularly since, from 12 noon on for about an hour, while the marathon pack was struggling through Framingham and Natick en route to the Boylston Street finish line, he was in the offices of Allpro Physical Therapy in North Quincy receiving treatment for his back from Michael Chiesi.

JOE KEEGAN

Particularly since, at about 4 p.m., the very time he was supposed to have finished the 26 mile, 385 yard Boston grind, he was seen by his next door neighbor, Trish Bossart, airing his dog in front of his home on Moreland Road in Merrymount.

Obviously, although his name appeared in the list of finishers, he did not run in the 2003 Boston Marathon and he had any number of witnesses to prove it.

"It's just one of those things," said Keegan, the candidate, of his initiation into Quincy Politics 101. "I don't think I was set up. I'm sure a lot of people saw my name on the list. And someone with ill will on his mind said to himself, 'I'm going to make sure everybody knows.'"

The mere hint that Keegan was well enough to

Home Rule Petition

Pension Proposal Could Save City Millions, Keenan Says

A home rule petition proposed by Councillor John Keenan could save the city millions of dollars over the long run, according to an analysis conducted by the city's bond advisor.

Recently, Keenan introduced a home rule petition that would allow the city to issue pension obligation bonds to pay off the city's unfunded liability for the retirement system. The city owes more than $100 million, said Keenan. Approximately $15 million has been budgeted for this year's portion of that amount, he said.

Keenan's proposal would give the city the option of making a one-time payment to the system, thus financing the entire amount over a number of years at a lower interest rate.

At last week's city council meeting, Keenan said First Southwest Company conducted an analysis of the proposal and estimated that the city could save as much as $1.5 million per year during the life of the bond. Overall, the city stands to save almost $17 million over an 18-year period, he said.

"In essence this home rule petition would give us a financial tool to be used if and when deemed most advantageous to the city," said Keenan.

A home rule petition must be approved by the city council, the state Legislature and the Governor.

Keenan cautioned that if the home rule petition is passed, another analysis should be performed utilizing current figures at the time the city considers bonding its pension obligation.

"We're facing tough times financially," said Keenan. "The proven potential for large savings in the retirement budget means more books, teachers and smaller classes for our students, it means more police and fire protection, and it improves our ability to better provide essential city services. We should act on this as soon as possible."

Jo-Ann Bragg Candidate For City Council At-Large

Jo-Ann Bragg, a third-term member of the school committee, announces her candidacy for the city council at-large.

Bragg, who had given long thought about seeking one of the three council at-large seats, said:

"The overwhelming support and encouragement I have received from residents and business leaders have helped me make the decision to run. I am ready to make the transition to the council."

Bragg is now in her 10th year on the school committee where she was first elected in 1993.

In her last two elections in 1997 and 2000 she was the top vote-getter in the school committee field. In the 2000 election, she polled 15,299 votes.

Bragg was vice chairwoman in 2000-2001 and is now in her second term as chairwoman of the Budget and Finance Subcommittee. She points to her reputation "for keeping a tight watch over the school system spending and for being a tough, but fair, negotiator with school unions."

Bragg presently serves on the Special Education and Health & Security subcommittees and has been chairwoman of the Building Needs Subcommittee and Rules, Post Audit & Oversight Subcommittee.

Commenting on today's issues, she said:

"The city is facing tough economic times with reduced state aid and a sluggish economy. The city needs elected officials who have a proven record of fiscal leadership, people who will carefully watch the bottom line, ask the tough questions and be creative in finding the right solutions. I have done just that on the school committee for the last decade.

JO-ANN BRAGG

"I want to continue to work to better our community with a broader interest as councillor. This includes working with the fire and police departments to make sure we meet the safety needs of our residents, working with the DPW for better roads and sidewalks and keeping our schools strong while balancing the needs of the business community.

A native Quincy resident, homeowner and business owner, Bragg said she will conduct a "grassroots campaign" as she has in the past.

"I will knock on doors, talk to residents, hold neighborhood gatherings in each ward to listen to the people's concerns and will continue to meet with business and community leaders."

Bragg was appointed to the Fair Housing Committee by Mayor William Phelan in 2001 and elected chairwoman by the members. Phelan also appointed her to the newly created Quincy Education Fund Committee responsible for the distribution of donated funds to supplement the Quincy public schools. It was her proposal that established the fund.

Former Mayor James Sheets in 1994 appointed her to the Mayor's School Building Needs Task Force which recommended a 12-year system-wide plan to re-open, renovate and build schools to maximize state funding with the least cost to Quincy taxpayers.

Last year, Bragg received a Lifetime Achievement Award from the Massachusetts Association of School Committees. She was one of the first recipients of an award from the Mayor's Commission on Women in 2001. In 1998 she received the Quincy Good Scout Award, the only woman so honored by the Boy Scouts of America.

She also in 1996 received the first annual Community Hero Award from Impact Quincy for the former Teen Get-Away Program. She was a founder and executive director of Teen-Get-Away that served 20,000 sixth- to 12th-graders in two recreation youth centers.

Bragg and her husband, Richard, have been married 27 years and have three children and a granddaughter.

She is a member of the National Society of Tax Professionals, Massachusetts Association of School Committees, Altrusa International Inc. of Quincy and the American Legion Auxiliary. She is also a former president of the Citywide Parents Council.

For more than a decade she has been treasurer of the Board of Directors at Quincy After-School Child Care and serves as its business manager.

The Bragg campaign committee is planning a fund-raiser May 22 from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Quincy Marriott Hotel.

Phelan Questions Council's Move On Open Space Plan

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Mayor William Phelan is questioning whether the city council's finance committee acted properly when it voted to give itself input over individual projects in his $10 million natural resources plan.

In a move intended to provide a check on Phelan, the finance committee last week voted to give itself input over individual projects in the mayor's proposals, which include $5 million for open space and $4 million on renovations and maintenance on the city's parks and beaches.

The mayor wants to bond the $10 million project. Depending on the type of bond, the money would be paid back over 15 to 20 years with money collected from the city's hotel/motel tax.

By a 5-3 vote, the committee approved an amendment proposed by Councillor Frank McCauley giving the council the authority to sign off on each individual project of Phelan's open space plan. The committee also voted to advertise the amended appropriation for a bond.

But Phelan questioned whether the move was within the realm of the council's authority, saying, "it's never been done in the past."

"I don't object to the council's ability to approve, reject, or reduce an appropriation," said Phelan. "But if a bond is advertised in an amended form then it is not what I brought down to the council."

Phelan said the committee's move amending the appropriation - in this instance, an appropriation for a bond - may not be within the scope of the council's authority.

The mayor said if necessary, he would consider submitting to the council individual appropriations for each project.

"I will work with the council to address their concerns," he said. "And I'm sure we will find common ground."

Although approved by the finance committee, the amendment must be voted on by the city council itself.

McCauley said his amendment gives the city council the power to sign off on each individual project and make changes to the plan.

"I think I'm on firm ground on this issue," said McCauley. "The amendment does give councillors the ability to look at each individual project with the possibility of change. Personally, I think it's a good idea to consider changing the overall mix of the plan. It might be a good idea to add another $500,000 to the open space side of it."

Council President Dan Raymondi said it is important for the council to act as a check on the mayor's authority.

"I strongly support oversight by the city council regarding the mayor's spending plan," said Raymondi. "It is critically important for the council to do its job as a check and balance. We need to do our job with the individual requests that come before us from the mayor."

Raymondi said McCauley's initial amendment - which would have given the council the authority to sign off on individual projects and their expenditures - was a better idea.

The language in the home rule petition regarding the hotel/motel tax mandates city council approval for expenditures, Raymondi said.

The finance committee plans to tackle the open space plan again on May 5.

The Gift Of A Kidney

Two Sisters Mark Special 20th Anniversary

It was like a 20th rebirthday and sisters Maryrose Sullivan-Mirick and Patricia Sullivan treated it as such.

It was on April 27, 1983, that Trish, a kindergarten teacher at the Snug Harbor School, donated one of her healthy kidneys to Maryrose.

"Due to her unselfish act of love, I have been blessed with a 29-year amazing marriage to my husband, Wayne, and the opportunity to raise two fabulous daughters, Andrea Rose and Jacquelyn Patricia," said Mirick.

"She daily gives children the best of her best. She is one small angel that gives of herself quietly and unselfishly."

Mirick's husband, Wayne, is supervisor of attendance for the Quincy Public Schools. Her daughter, Andrea, 22, was only two at the time of the transplant, and her daughter, Jacquelyn, 17, was born afterward.

"My six siblings all volunteered for tissue testing," said Mirick. "Trish was a perfect match and said there was never any question in her mind that this is what she wanted to do.

"I don't know how to put into words how grateful I am to my sister Trish for giving me the freedom to "live.

"Every year when I watch my children open their Christmas gifts and every summer when I feel the warm sand on my toes I think, 'Dear God, thank you for putting Trish in my life,' and thank you for all my family and friends."

SISTERLY LOVE. Patricia Sullivan (left), a kindergarten teacher at the Snug Harbor School, and her sister, Maryrose Sullivan-Mirick, observe the 20th anniversary of the day in 1983 when Patricia donated a healthy kidney to Maryrose. There is a good alternative!

You want your bank to be convenient. And why not?
Convenient means being fully-staffed, so you don't have to wait in line.
It means having employees who know what they're doing – people who like their jobs and actually like helping customers. It means having the bank products and services you want and need along with the "neighborliness" you may have thought was gone forever.
Neighborhood banking is alive and well at Colonial Federal Savings Bank.
We are strong, stable, independent and 100% true to our South Shore roots.
And we really want to be your bank. Had it with being over-charged and under-served?
You do have a choice. Come see us!

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

On April 28, 1789, three weeks into a journey from Tahiti to the West Indies, the HMS Bounty is seized in a mutiny led by Fletcher Christian, the master's mate. Captain William Bligh and 18 of his loyal supporters were set adrift in a small, open boat, and the Bounty set course for Tubuai, south of Tahiti.

• On April 30, 1803, representatives of the United States and Napoleonic France conclude negotiations for the Louisiana Purchase. What was then known as the Louisiana Territory comprised most of the modern-day United States between the Mississippi and the Rocky Mountains, with the exceptions of Texas, parts of New Mexico and other pockets of land already controlled by the United States.

• On May 1, 1898, at Manila Bay in the Philippines, the U.S. Asiatic Squadron destroys the Spanish Pacific fleet in the first battle of the Spanish-American War. Nearly 400 Spanish sailors were killed and 10 Spanish warships wrecked or captured at the cost of only six Americans wounded.

• On May 2, 1933, although accounts of an aquatic beast living in Scotland's Loch Ness date back 1,500 years, the modern legend of the Loch Ness Monster is born when a sighting by a local couple makes local news.

• On April 29, 1945, the U.S. Seventh Army's 45th Infantry Division liberates Dachau, the first concentration camp established by Germany's Nazi regime.

• On May 3, 1947, Japan's postwar constitution goes into effect. The progressive constitution granted universal suffrage, stripped Emperor Hirohito of all but symbolic power, stipulated a bill of rights, abolished peerage and outlawed Japan's right to make war.

• On May 4, 1979, Margaret Thatcher, leader of the Conservative Party, is sworn in as Britain's first female prime minister. The Oxford-educated chemist and lawyer was sworn in the day after the Conservatives won a 44-seat majority in general parliamentary elections.

Alicia Corea: A Quincy Treasure

Alicia Corea has been a Quincy treasure for more than a half century.

ALICIA COREA

And, a pioneer, too.

She doesn't think of herself as either.

But she is truly both.

And Sunday no doubt will be a day of mixed emotions as she retires as pastor of Houghs Neck Congregational Church, where she has served 54 dedicated years.

She will conduct her final service at 9:30 a.m. as Rev. M. (for Mina) Alicia Corea.

But to members of the congregation and friends she will fondly always be just plain Alicia. That's the way she likes it.

She served 52 of those 54 years as co-pastor with her late husband Rev. Dr. Peter V. Corea who died at age 77 Thanksgiving Day, 2001. And who preferred to be just called Peter.

PETER COREA

We've written about them a number of times down through the years but just can't let Alicia step into retirement without a reminder of how much they have meant to the community.

Alicia and Peter made history together as Quincy's first husband and wife team ministry.

And she made some by herself.

She was the first woman to become a pastor of a Quincy church.

She was the first woman in Quincy — and one of the first if not the first in the state — to be ordained.

Alicia and Peter were married June 1, 1946. He was called as pastor in October, 1947 at age 23. During their first two years at the church, she studied at Andover Newton Theological School.

And she was the lone woman among the men in the class studying for the ministry. The other women were there for religion education.

Alicia graduated and was ordained May 5, 1949 in the church sanctuary as Peter had been and became co-pastor.

There were frowns by some of the male clergy when she was ordained. To them, back in those days, she was intruding in a man's world.

But she soon turned those frowns into smiles and opposition into admiration and friendship.

She doesn't think of it that way, but her career "firsts" made her a pioneer for other women to follow.

Her final service Sunday as pastor coincides with the 54th anniversary of her ordination.

When Alicia and Peter came to Houghs Neck Congregational it was a summer mission. Together, they brought it to a full-scale church. Membership today is over 300.

And for more than 35 years, they served free, living on Peter's salary as a professor at Emerson College where one of his students was Jay Leno.

As Alicia and Peter, they defined humility and together reached out to the people not only in their congregation but in the community.

And they were always encouraging young people to go on to college and helping them to get there with church scholarships — and personal financial aid.

Alicia, who almost turned to a career in journalism instead of the ministry, was born and raised in Ashland, Maine, but fell in love with Quincy when she came here and will remain here. She has purchased a condominium in South Quincy.

She will also remain a member of Houghs Neck Congregational and an ordained minister. And will continue to conduct worship and communion services for seniors at the Rice Eventide Home and Saywer Towers.

The Houghs Neck Community Council will host a farewell reception for her Sunday, May 18, from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Quincy Yacht Club, 1310 Sea St. The public is invited.

Alicia, who is 81 and doesn't mind anyone knowing it, says, looking back and ahead:

"These have been great years. But the church now needs young, vigorous leadership. It's time to find someone young."

Maybe the church will be lucky once again and find another young Peter and Alicia.

Sunday will mark the end of an era but one that will be fondly and long remembered.

IN LAST WEEK'S column about women running for the city council we inadvertently overlooked Joanne Bythrow.

BYTHROW

Long active in the Houghs Neck community, she is a candidate for the Ward 1 seat incumbent Greg Hanley is leaving this year.

And, she has a fund-raiser coming up May 21, 7 to 10 p.m. at the Bryan VFW Post.

While we are at it, we can't forget Gretchen Grant, who says she is running again this year for the fourth time.

Jo-Ann Bragg has decided to run at-large as we indicated last week. So there will be at least five women council candidates this year.

Only three women — Edna Austin, Joanne Condon and Pat Toland — have been elected to the council since Quincy became a city 114 years ago.

Maybe one or two of this year's women candidates might change that.

Forum On War Issues At First Parish May 8

"Is War The Only Answer" will be the subject of a forum to be held at United First Parish Church Thursday, May 8, at 7 p.m. in the social hall.

Representatives of the South Shore Coalition for Human Rights and First Parish Church will participate.

Mike Prokosch, globalization coordinator of United for a Fair Economy, will raise issues related to the ongoing "war on terror" in the context of massive tax cuts, a mounting deficit and cutbacks at the federal, state and local levels in education, environmental protection, health care, housing and other human needs.

Carol Rose, executive director of the Massachusetts chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, will explore the civil rights and civil liberties impact of the USA Patriot Act and other measures on immigrants, dissenters, labor, minorities and others.

The forum is free and open to the public.

Phelan Speaker At Montclair/Wollaston Group

Mayor William Phelan will be the guest speaker at a meeting for the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. in the community room of WORK, Inc., 3 Arlington St., North Quincy.

Residents will have a chance to meet the mayor and discuss issues of interest or concern to the community.

Members and neighbors participating in the Cleaner, Greener Quincy will meet Saturday, May 3, at 9 a.m. at Bishop's Field to begin the volunteer effort to clean up the neighborhood after the long winter.

All volunteers will receive a free Cleaner, Greener Quincy tee shirt.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1926 POSTCARD shows the then new Quincy Police Station at Sea Street and the newly built Southern Artery. A great deal of controversy surrounding the siting of the new station until then Mayor Perley Barbour selected this city owned parcel. Finished in May, the dedication was delayed for two months due to the death of Police Chief Alfred W. Goodhue. The chief had been ill for a few months and was on the road to recovery when he died unexpectedly at the young age of 51, just as the station was completed. Goodhue, who had also been president of the Massachusetts Police Chiefs Association, had worked tirelessly leading the effort to build this handsome modern police headquarters. He was widely admired and highly respected by his peers, his department and everyone in the community. The citizens of Quincy in his memory presented a beautiful monument at Mount Wollaston Cemetery and a Quincy granite tablet in the new station. The prior station had originally been a one-room schoolhouse and then a fire station complete with horse stalls before the police moved into it for 20 years. It was built of Quincy granite in 1855 and it was dark, cold, damp and cramped. Perhaps it was the cause of Chief Goodhue's illness. In the late 1980s, under Mayor Frank McCauley, the station shown above was modernized and expanded with a new facade that substantially altered its appearance.

It Shouldn't Be Open Space Versus Parks

Recently, more than 150 people jammed a public hearing at City Hall to discuss and debate the initial recommendations of an open space committee appointed by Mayor Phelan. The mayor has already asked the city council for authorization to allow him to bond $10 million to pay for whatever plan is finally submitted.

The bond will be paid down over 15 to 20 years with revenues from the city's hotel/motel tax. The mayor hopes to strike a balance between those who want to the city to purchase more open space and from those who want to see our parks and recreational areas updated. There are indeed more needs to be met than money available for spending.

Recently, Congressman Bill Delahunt announced the federal government will foot 75 percent of the bill to restore large swaths of Quincy marshland in Houghs Neck and over in Broad Meadows. However, the city has to come up with 1 million. The $10 million bond would be where the million comes from.

Open space, what open space is left in Quincy that some developer hasn't already purchased? The city of Quincy itself is talking about building a new high school on a large patch of apparent protected wetland at Faxon Field.

How much open space is left to be protected? Isn't the barn door practically shut now? How much open space was gobbled up by developers over the past two decades?

Too many trees have died to build more and more luxury condos. Take care of our parks for our kids. At least we still own them. We should have been doing something about preserving open space long ago when we still had open space to worry about.

In reality, parks and recreational facilities are also open space. Places that we can escape to and relax. There are still some parcels of open space out there that have been identified. Save what we can but the first priority is creating a healthy environment that can be used by families and children. Fix the ballparks. Re-seed the grass. Make things livable. Do something about making Wollaston Beach swim-able again.

It shouldn't be parks versus open space. We should be able to do both. As far as the $2 million that must be spent cleaning up the Highpoint area, ask the City Council why we have to clean it up.

Open space versus parks is just another thing we're forced to endure like the 90 percent re-imbursement for a new Quincy High School that we might or might never see or an aging Navy ship that kids can't sleep on.

Meanwhile, we manhattanize our neighborhoods with more and more luxury condos blocking our shorelines with the shadow of progress. Forget the 90 percent, forget the Salem, worry about open space. But do something such as creating a master plan for development that would make our city home to families and protect our open lands from apparent greed. We may need a new high school but first we need a new view on Quincy life.

Granite Workers Continue Strike For 35-Hour Work Week

This Week
1947
56 Years Ago

A strike of 350 granite cutters, laborers and truck drivers entered its fifth week and a number of striking workers were preparing to leave the city in search of jobs in other stone centers such as Westerly, R.I., and Mt. Waldo, Maine.

"These men who are going out to other places to work will appreciate all the more the vast sums of money that Quincy manufacturers have spent on improving conditions in their plants," said Edward D. Marnock, secretary of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association.

"We are so far advanced over other centers that these men will find it difficult to work under conditions they will see in other places."

The granite workers were striking for a 35-hour work week. The manufacturers had offered them an eight-hour day at $13 a day for the first six months and a seven-hour day at $12.50 a day for the last six months.

SNUG HARBOR SNAG

Purchase by the city of the Snug Harbor Sailors' Home in Germantown struck a snag when Leon Little, chairman of the home's trustees, set a price of $160,600 for the property, about $45,000 higher than the city's estimate of its value.

Mayor Charles A. Ross announced that he would send three expert appraisers and three assessors to evaluate the property and determine a fair price for the land and the building.

HARLEM VISIT

The Rev. Bedros Baharian announced that 24 young people from the Quincy Point Congregational Church would spend two weeks in Harlem, the Negro district of New York City, this summer, repaying a visit by 22 Harlem youngsters to Quincy last July.

'Y' CAMPAIGN LAUNCHED

Carle R. Hayward, president of the Quincy YMCA, formally launched the building fund and dedicated the site of the new YMCA on Coddington St. with ceremonies that included a dropkicking exhibition by former Harvard football star Charles Brickley

Mother Goose, Music Lady, Mad Science On Tap At Crane Library

Mother Goose on the Loose, the Music Lady and Mad Science highlight the program schedule at the Thomas Crane Public Library for the next few days.

Drop in Mother Goose on the Loose Storytime stories, songs and nursery rhymes for children ages 12 to 14 months, accompanied by adults, will be held Saturdays, May 3 and 10, at 10 a.m.

The Saturday Singalong with Beth Green, the "Music Lady," will be held May 3 at 1 p.m. in the large meeting room. No registration is required. The program is aimed at babies, toddlers and preschoolers, accompanied by an adult.

Registration begins Monday, May 5, for the Mad Science of Greater Boston production of Sound, a hands on workshop for children ages 7 and older that will be held Saturday, May 17, at 2:30 p.m.

The youngsters will explore sound waves and how the speed and size of the waves effect the pitch of the sound. They'll also learn how the human ear drum works.

The program is limited to Quincy residents and is free but tickets will be issued to registrants to insure group size. Unclaimed tickets will be available for drop-ins on the day of the program.

Registration will also begin Monday, May 5 at 9 a.m. for two programs presented by Michelle Constantino of Hands to the Heart in communicating with pre-verbal infants using sign language.

An Introduction to Signing with your Baby will be held Tuesday, May 13 from 9:30 to 11 a.m. to enable the curious to learn what it's all about.

The first two sessions, designed for parents and babies to participate together, will be held Tuesdays, May 20 and 27 from 9:30 to 11 a.m.

Pre-verbal children ages 7 to 10 months old are the most receptive to signing , however, older pre-verbal children are also welcome.

The workshops are sponsored by the Quincy Family Network. All programs are held in the Main Library at 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

Beechwood Center Elects New Officers

Beechwood Community Life Center elected new officers and board members at it recent annual meeting, announced Executive Director Sharron Beals.

The officers:

Helen Gallahue Irvin, president; Paul J. Reynolds, vice president; Judith Paul, secretary; and Atty. William Macdonald, treasurer.

Jane Gallahue, former Quincy health commissioner, was elected to a three-year term on the board of directors.

Board members re-elected to three-year terms were Barbara Clarke, William Macdonald and Michael Joyce.

Continuing as board members are Donald Uvanitte, Helen Gallahue Irvin, Paul Reynolds, Judith Paul, Janet Lanham, Peter Racicot, Caryn Smith and Brian Spillane.

Book Sale At Library

The Friends of Thomas Crane Public Library will hold a three-day book sale at the library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

The sale will start tomorrow (Friday) from 12 noon to 4 p.m. and continue Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Prices start at 50 cents. Proceeds will benefit the Quincy public libraries.

QUINCY YOUNGSTERS Julia and Drew Treadway recently attended an Easter cookie decorating party with Boston Harbor Hotel pastry chef George Caouette and the Easter Bunny. Julie and Drew's mother, Ann, works with the United Service Organizations which assist families of the U.S. Armed Forces. The local kids were among 35 children whose parents are members of the U.S. Armed Forces who celebrated Easter with a cookie decorating party.

'BeatleMania' Raises $15,000 For Quincy Education Foundation

"BEATLEMANIA LIVE" was recently presented by the Quincy Foundation for Excellence in Education at the Quincy Marriott Hotel. Pleased at the success of the event which attracted more than 700 fans and raised $15,000 to help the non-profit group to aid Quincy schools with programs outside the school budget were Tim McAloon, member of the Quincy Foundation, Central Middle School Principal Frank Santoro and his wife, Linda, event coordinators, and school Supt. Richard DeCristofaro. Future fund-raisers include a historic walk Saturday, May 10, starting at First Parish Church and a golf tournament in June.

PERFORMING AS The Beatles were Robert Ruffing as Paul McCartney, Jimmy Owen as George Harrison and John Preston as Ringo Starr. (Quincy Sun photos/Robert Noble

JULIE BERBERAN AND Mayor William Phelan found the beat to their liking on the dance floor.

ENJOYING THE EVENING were Arthur Keough, executive director of the Quincy School Community Partnership; Sharon Jarvie, member of the Quincy Foundation; Foundation Co-founder Maryann Mahony, Tim Herlihy and Co-founder Judith Brams. The School Partnership has joined forces with the Quincy Foundation to seek more education grants to help offset budget cuts.

DONNA DONAGHEY and Donna Roby, both mothers and Quincy residents, had themselves a ball.

BEATLE FANS Verna Fitzgerald, Lorna Fitzgerald and Clair Duggan were all smiles meeting Robert Ruffing who portrays Paul McCartney in the BeatleMania group.

Council Approves Salary Changes In Solicitor's Office

The city council last week approved salary changes in the City Solicitor's office and shot down a residency mandate for the position of Purchasing Agent.

Councillors supported Mayor William Phelan's proposal calling for the creation of the position, First Assistant Solicitor, with a salary of $64, 904. The change also drops the salary of Assistant Solicitor to $44,904.

Prior to the change, the Solicitor's office had two Assistant City Solicitors with a salary of $54, 904 each.

Overall, the changes amount to a wash in terms of the amount spent on salaries.

Council President Dan Raymondi, the lone dissenter, called the move "outrageous," and said it was the equivalent of giving a salary increase.

"We are facing big reductions in local aid and cuts in services," said Raymondi. "I don't support this pay raise – it's excessive. It's a disservice to the hard-working taxpayers who lost their jobs in the so-called budget crisis in the city."

Jay MacRitchie will assume the position of First Assistant Solicitor after Mayor Phelan appoints a permanent Purchasing Agent. Currently, MacRitchie is acting Purchasing Agent.

He has worked for the city in some capacity since 1982. He was then-Mayor Frank McCauley's top lawyer for five years. And he was Mayor Phelan's acting solicitor until Monica Conyngham took the position last year.

Councillor McCauley supported the salary changes. "This is a good idea, and it won't cost the taxpayers any more money," he said. "We all know the good work Jay MacRitchie has done – this is a fitting tribute to him."

In another matter, the City Council's Ordinance Committee voted against a proposal by Raymondi calling for a residency mandate for the position of Purchasing Agent. Saying the mayor has hired too many department heads from outside the city, Raymondi proposed mandating that the position of Purchasing Agent be filled by a Quincy resident.

Ward 6 Councillor Joe Newton sided with Raymondi, and Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley voted "present."

McCauley called Raymondi's proposal "divisive."

"It makes no sense - this is the United States of America. This is divisive and it really doesn't work," he said.

Quincy College changed our lives.

Quincy College is people just like you.

Your friends.
Your co-workers.
Your neighbors.
Your family.

People seeking an opportunity to change their lives.

Quincy residents Jackie Drinkwater, her sister Michelle Pateras and her daughter-in-law Amy Echelle share more than family ties, they share the opportunity they found at Quincy College. All three are graduates whose lives have been changed by Quincy College. The first academic step for all three, Quincy College started them on the road of higher education. They have gone on to earn their associate's degrees, bachelor's degrees, a master's degree as well as rewarding careers. For Jackie, Quincy College was the first opportunity for job security and a promotion in her company's business department. For Michelle, it was an opportunity to rise from entry level to senior administration at one of the Boston area's largest companies. For Amy it was the beginning of a rewarding career in early childhood education.

They all agree: Quincy College made education accessible to them, provided needed support to them and built the confidence to help them succeed in their lives.

Ayers Criticizes Romney On Wollaston, Willard St. Patrols

Rep. Bruce Ayers and Gov. Mitt Romney have locked horns over designated State Police patrols on Willard Street and Wollaston Beach.

The governor last week questioned the need for such patrols on Willard Street adjacent to the Shea Rink in West Quincy and along the popular beachfront boulevard.

"While I agree with the governor on some of his reform proposals, I don't agree with him on this public safety issue," said Ayers.

"The governor may think that providing additional police protection is pork barrel spending, but I have a much different view.

"If the governor were to talk to resident along Willard Street or Wollaston Beach, he would see the concerns that the residents and I have and the need for additional police protection."

Ayers cited statistics from the State Police in the South Boston barracks to show how thinly the patrols are spread across the South Shore.

At certain times only two patrols are available to supervise 10 miles of Route 93 as well as five miles of parkways, 15 parks of varying size, two beaches, one yacht club, one skating rink and one bike path in Dorchester.

And 11 parks, 2.5 miles of beaches, three yacht clubs, one bike path, one skating rink and Castle Island in South Boston; and seven miles of parkways, 11 parks of varying sizes, two yacht clubs, one skating rink, Nut Island and one shipyard in Quincy.

"Some of the problems along Wollaston Beach include speeding, drinking, noise, drugs and teenage loitering," said Ayers.

BRUCE AYERS

"With designated police patrols in this area, the calls decreased by 75 percent. Clearly, this is not only a public safety issue, but a quality of life issue for the residents of my district as well."

Ayers presented Romney's office with a 30-page report from the Quincy Police Department recounting calls from the Willard Street and Wollaston Beach areas.

"Based upon the police records, we've identified the peak times and major concerns that we are addressing with the designated patrols, so that money is being spent prudently," he said.

"We must insure the public safety of the residents of Willard Street and Wollaston Beach, and by adding designated patrols to enforce the law, we are doing just that.

"For the governor to call this pork is simply not right. There are other ways to save money in the budget, but compromising the safety of my constituents isn't one of them."

Cleaner, Greener Saturday

The 14th annual Cleaner, Greener Quincy campaign will take place this Saturday, May 3, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon at various locations throughout the city.

Mayor William Phelan will be leading a work crew to clean the downtown business district and the grounds of the Quincy Historical Society building. The mayor's team will be one of approximately 20 groups cleaning the city that day.

"Cleaner, Greener Quincy is a great way to keep our city clean and beautiful while coming together as a community," said Phelan. "I appreciate the hard work of all our volunteers who participate in Cleaner, Greener. The difference that we can make together in just one day is amazing."

The city's Park Department and Public Works Department will be working alongside volunteers at various sites with heavy equipment to remove debris from beaches and marsh areas. The city will provide handtools to volunteers who help with the cleanup. All volunteers will receive a Cleaner, Greener Quincy t-shirt.

Other cleanup sites include:

- Marsh Madness – Hough Neck – LaBrecque Field
- Shoreside Beach – Adams Shore – Shoreside Dr. off Sea St.
- Snug Harbor – Germantown – meeting at Snug Harbor School
- Avalon Beach – Quincy Point – Avalon Ave.
- Bishop Field – Montclair – Holbrook Rd.
- Della Chiesa School – South Quincy – Brooks Ave.
- Butler Pond – behind Central Middle School – Butler Rd.
- Glendale Rd. Playground – Glendale Rd. on Hospital Hill
- Beechwood Knoll School – Fenno St.
- Wollaston Beach – meet at Wollaston Yacht Club
- Collins Rest-a-while Playground – Merrymount Park
- Squaw Rock Park – Squantum – Dorchester St.
- Squantum Causeway – Seaside Gardens of Squantum

Following the cleanup, Phelan will host an appreciation barbeque for all volunteers at the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex, located at One Merrymount Parkway. Stop & Shop Supermarkets has donated the food for the barbeque again this year.

Those who wish to organize a group to clean a location not on the list should call the Quincy Park Department at (617) 376-1254.

Those wishing to participate but do not have a group are welcome to join teams at any of the above-listed locations.

David Faraday Graduates Air Force Training

DAVID FARADAY

Air Force Airman David T. Faraday has graduated from basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas.

Airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

He is the son of Elaine Faraday of Atlantic Street and Thomas Faraday of Watson Road, both Quincy.

Faraday is a 1999 graduate of Quincy High School.

Lance Cpl. Christopher Minor In Operation Iraqi Freedom

Marine Corps Lance Cpl. Christopher R. Minor, son of Patricia A. Donovan of Quincy, is participating in Operation Iraqi Freedom while assigned to the 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit (MEU), based in Camp Lejeune, N.C.

Since their arrival, marines and sailors from Minor's unit engaged enemy forces in Al Kut, conducted several successful convoy operations, including one containing 93 vehicles, and began a rebuilding process in the village of Hasham.

The unit also went to the town of Al Rifa, where it removed large berms put in place by the Iraqi soldiers.

Minor's unit is an expeditionary intervention force with the ability to rapidly organize for combat operations in virtually any environment.

MEUs are composed of more than 2,000 personnel and are divided into an infantry battalion, aircraft squadron, support group and command element. With this combination, Minor's unit supplies and sustains itself for quick mission accomplishment and for clearing the way for follow-on forces.

Minor is a 1999 graduate of Milton High School and joined the Marine Corps in September 1999.

AIR FORCE Airman Michael P. McGrath has graduated from basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas. He is the son of Mary Martlin of Newton and John McGrath of Quincy.

Tuesday, May 13
5:00 to 7:30 pm
QMC Ambulatory Care Department
2nd Floor

More than one million new cases of skin cancer will be diagnosed in the U.S. in 2003. Nearly 10,000 people are expected to die from it. That's in part because fewer than 1/3 of all Americans know the signs of skin cancer, which can be cured when treated in its earliest stages.

Dermatologists Alison Avram, MD; Mary Gibney, MD; Elise McCarthy, MD; Marco Petrazzuoli, MD; and Kenneth Reed, MD are donating their time at this event to help increase awareness of the importance of early detection. Sponsored by Quincy Medical Center and the American Academy of Dermatology, this event coincides with Melanoma/Skin Cancer Detection and Prevention Month.

Mayor's Task Force To Address Downtown Crime

Police said the victim, whose name was not released, was walking along Coddington St. near the library when the suspect allegedly approached with a box-cutter and grabbed him by the neck. The suspect threatened to rob the victim, police said.

Largey said the task force, comprised of business leaders, city officials, social service providers and area residents, has been conducting analysis of crime statistics in Quincy Center. In addition, the group has been compiling a list of all current laws and ordinances that could help to address crime issues, he said.

"We collected data, we interviewed those people most impacted – on every side of the issue – and we brainstormed to be creative and aggressive," said Largey. "The mayor is an advocate of crime watch, and an accessible library, and passable streets. It's a safe bet that those issues will be reflected in the recommendations."

Largey said John Yazwinski, executive director of Father Bill's Place and member of the task force, surveyed the demographics and daytime activities of his clients. In addition, business owners were canvassed to discover their view of the issue, and several social service providers in the area expressed the need to maintain a presence in Quincy, said Largey.

"A bad economy exacerbates the issue," said Largey, "but we can certainly work diligently to minimize or eliminate the behavior that frightens people or makes them hesitate to visit our historic downtown – without fixing the economy, or solving the devastating problem of homelessness."

Phelan praised the efforts of the task force. "An enormous amount of effort went into the formulation of recommendations to address the issue of accessibility downtown," he said. "I know that folks will be impressed by the level of detail that was exercised, as well as by the thoughtful recommendations that were presented to me."

Monday At Quincy District Court

Two Quincy Police Officers To Be Recognized At Law Day

Two Quincy police officers will be recognized for their outstanding conduct at this year's Law Day, to be held at Quincy District Court on Monday, May 5 at 9 a.m.

Officers David Levine and John McGovern will receive the Robert P. Dana Distinguished Award for Law Enforcement for their actions leading to the apprehension of a murder suspect at 16 Sumner St., Quincy. The officers were called to the scene last May and discovered the dismembered body of a woman. With guns drawn, the officers made a forced entry into the residence and apprehended the suspect. The suspect has been indicted for murder.

Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating will present the awards to the officers.

Dr. Carol Lee Griffin will receive the James R. McIntrye Award, named after the former mayor of Quincy.

This year's keynote speaker will be United States District Attorney Michael J. Sullivan.

Other awards schedule to be given at the Law Day ceremonies include:

• Robert P. Dana Distinguished Service Award For Law Enforcement – to Quincy Police Officers David Levine and John McGovern; Weymouth Police Sgt. Richard Grimes, and Officers Andrew Jakaitas, Richard Mosey, Steven Shalno, Marc Trudeau and Edward Williams; Braintree Police Det. David Jordan and Officers Preston Williams and Brendan McLaughlin; Randolph Police Lt. Arthur M. Sullivan; and Milton Police Officer Joseph B. Fahey.

• Mark S. Charbonnier Award – to Lt. Stephen M. O'Reilly

• Alfred P. Malaney Award – to First Assistant Clerk Magistrate Robert Bloom

• Dennis F. Ryan Student Essay Contest Award – to be named

• Quincy Court Jason Feldman Outstanding Citizen Award – to be named

• Quincy Court Outstanding Program Award – to be given to the various Community Policing programs in the area.

City Awards BFI With Contract For Trash Pickup, Recycling

Mayor William Phelan announced Tuesday his decision to award the contract for the city's curbside solid waste and recycling services to Browning Ferris Industries (BFI).

A request for proposals was issued in January, with eleven vendors responding, according to Jay Fink, DPW commissioner.

"Negotiations were intense and thorough over a three-month period, resulting in one of the lowest increases in municipal contracts in the state," said Fink.

The multi-year contract goes into effect July 1, 2003, he said. Quincy negotiated its current contract in 1995.

Since that time there have been many changes in federal and state regulations, which have driven up costs substantially, Fink said.

From 1985 to present, the cost for solid waste collection and disposal costs have risen 585 percent, he said.

Currently, the city spends $4.8 million for solid waste and recycling services, and a small increase equates to a substantial amount monetary figure, said Fink.

For the first time, the city is negotiating directly with a disposal facility rather than bundling the disposal into the collection contract, he said. "This provides additional savings to the city," Fink said.

Trash from the city goes to a transfer facility in Braintree, before being shipped to the SEMASSwaste-to-energy facility in Rochester, Mass. This is an environmentally desirable waste disposal option, as the trash produces energy. This method saves landfill space, of which there is an acute shortfall in the Northeast.

SPRING CAR CARE

Spring Car Care Is The Key To Trouble-Free Summer Driving

Spring is the perfect time to help your car recover from the brutal winter and prepare it for the rigors of summer driving, according to AAA Southern New England.

"After a long winter, most people are eager to get out and enjoy the warmer weather," said AAA Car Doctor John Paul. "The time spent preparing your car can keep your spring and summer road trips from being interrupted by expensive and inconvenient breakdowns."

To prepare for warm-weather driving, AAA suggests motorists have their cars thoroughly inspected by a certified technician. At minimum, you or your technician should:

• Inspect antifreeze/coolant level and condition, making certain the proper 50/50 mixture of water and coolant is present.

• Check motor oil and condition. If driving under extreme conditions – such as very hot temperatures or towing a heavy trailer – switch to a motor oil with higher viscosity. Check the owner's manual for specific oil recommendations.

• Inspect and replace worn or cracked belts as well as worn, cracked, blistered, or soft hoses.

• Examine tires for uneven or excessive tread wear. Make sure all tires, including the spare, are inflated properly.

• Check the air conditioning systems for leaks and have it serviced using the refrigerant R-12 in older systems or R-134A in new or modified air conditioners. Do not use non-approved substitute refrigerants.

• Hot weather can shorten the life of a car's battery, so weak or old batteries should be tested and replaced if necessary.

• Check fluid levels and tire pressure before, during and after a long road trip.

Communication Promotes Quality Auto Repair

Even if you don't know the difference between a fuel injector and an oxygen sensor, there are still things you can do to help your auto repair technician properly service your vehicle, according to AAA Southern New England.

"Consumers can help by accurately describing the problem and by asking questions until they understand the work being done on their car," said AAA Manager of Approved Auto Repair Alfred Ruggiero. "Accurate communication between the repair shop and the customer is one of the most important contributors to trouble-free auto service."

The first step is to make an appointment for repairs whenever possible. If the shop management knows you are coming and has an idea of the problem, they can assign the right person to the job and allow enough time to get it done properly.

When you arrive at the shop, don't tell the service advisor what you think needs to be fixed or replaced unless it's obvious. Instead, describe the problem and its symptoms. Let the technician determine what needs to be fixed.

To avoid misunderstandings, always get an estimate in writing. Oral estimates can be disputed or forgotten. Most written estimates contain a clause allowing the actual cost to exceed the estimate by a certain percentage, such as 10 percent or $10 in Massachusetts.

Carefully read the work order before you leave your vehicle at the shop. Be wary of broad statements such as "check and correct transmission noise" or "repair engine." You could wind up with a new transmission or engine and a bill higher than you expected. Also, never sign a blank work order, and never tell the shop personnel to "do what's necessary" or "just fix it," unless the problem will clearly be covered by warranty.

Make sure you understand the shop's warranty. It should be printed on the bill. If not, ask for it in writing.

Finally, take a test drive. If the car isn't running right, don't take it home. If you discover that the problem is not solved after you leave the shop, make an appointment to bring the car back as soon as possible.

To further ensure quality auto repair, AAA recommends motorists take their vehicles to shops recognized by AAA's Approved Auto Repair program. These shops have met AAA's rigorous standards for technician competence and customer satisfaction. AAA-approved shops are also equipped with the sophisticated equipment needed to service today's high-tech vehicles.

How To Keep Cars And Drivers From Overheating

Hot summer temperatures can be as brutal on a poorly maintained automobile as the most chilling winter weather.

When the temperature rises above 90 degrees trouble begins for many motorists. Vehicles with weak batteries may have difficulty starting, air conditioning systems can fail and poorly maintained cooling systems can leak and overheat.

Cracked belts may snap and worn hoses can burst and begin leaking as temperatures rise inside and outside the engine compartment.

"While many motorists know the approach of cold weather signals the need for preventative maintenance, hotter temperatures also require special attention for motor vehicles," said Alfred Ruggiero, AAA's manager of Approved Auto Repair.

To keep vehicles free from heat-related problems, AAA recommends a complete inspection by a certified technician. At a minimum, the following maintenance items should be checked.

• Inspect antifreeze/coolant level, making certain proper 50/50 mixture of water and coolant is present.

• Switch to a summer grade, thicker, motor oil that carries the certification mark of the American Petroleum Institute specifying approval for gasoline engines.

• Inspect and replace worn or cracked belts as well as worn, cracked, blistered or soft hoses.

• Check the air conditioning system for leaks, and have it serviced using the refrigerant CFC-12 in older systems or HFC134a in new or modified air conditioners. Do not use substitute refrigerants.

It is also important to know battery performance is compromised by extremes in temperature, whether hot or cold, so old or weak batteries should be tested and replaced if necessary.

Because even a well-maintained car can break down, it's a good idea to carry drinking water and a windshield shade that will reduce heat build-up inside a vehicle. A cellular phone or a citizens band radio can be used to summon help.

"Becoming stranded by a breakdown on a summer day may not seem threatening," Ruggiero said. "Yet, a hot day on the side of the road without water or shade can become a motorist's worst nightmare. To help prevent a breakdown, inspect your vehicle before warm weather hits and monitor its condition throughout the summer driving season."

Phelan Says:

Council Should Vote On Fees Sooner Rather Than Later

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The city council should vote up or down on the controversial issue of higher fees, because not acting "does a disservice to the City of Quincy," Mayor William Phelan charged.

Phelan was reacting to last week's move by the council's ordinance committee scheduling a June 9 public hearing on the matter. There is no reason why the committee cannot act on the issue sooner, Phelan said.

"As elected officials we are elected to make the tough choices," said Phelan. "For the council to let this issue linger for more than year does a disservice to the City of Quincy. Part of the council's job is to make the difficult decisions."

The hot-button issue of instituting higher fees has resurfaced, as the city grapples with ways to raise revenue and offset large cuts in local aid.

Phelan said he instructed all department heads last year to come up with proposals for increasing certain fees, such as the costs for marriage licenses and birth certificates. The proposals were submitted to the city council last year.

Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley, who chairs the ordinance committee, said the council does not have enough information to move swiftly.

But Phelan disagreed. "All the information has been there for a year," he said.

Although Phelan has not lobbied hard for increasing fees, he does believe the council should address the issue one way or another.

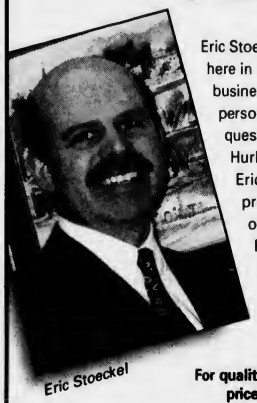
Thomas Largey, the mayor's director of operations, said the administration would not be able to use revenue projections from the fees unless the council acts soon. The administration is expected to release its fiscal 2004 budget for review next week, he said.

Teen Drinking Prevention Discussion At NQHS

North Quincy High School will sponsor a discussion for parents and guardians on prevention of teenage drinking Thursday, May 1, from 6 to 7 p.m. at the school.

For more information call Peggy Farren at 617-984-8747.

Delahunt To Sponsor Forum On U.S. Service Academies May 9



US Congressman William Delahunt will sponsor a forum for local high school students and their families interested in education opportunities at US Service Academies on Friday, May 9 from 7 to 9 p.m at the Massachusetts Maritime Academy, Buzzards Bay.

The session will feature admission representatives from the US Military Academy (West Point, NY), Naval Academy (Annapolis, MD), and Air Force Academy (Colorado Spring, Co) – as well as the Coast Guard Academy (New London, CT), Merchant Marine Academy (Kings Point, NY), Norwich University (Northfield, VT) and Massachusetts Maritime Academy. Officials of the Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) scholarship program will also attend.

Forum presenters will outline procedures for pursuing a congressional nomination for Academies. Tenth Congressional district residents who graduate from high school by June, 2004 are eligible to apply for the 2004-2005 academic year. The application deadline for next year's potential nominees is November 1, 2003.

For more information please call Rep. Delahunt's office at 1-800-794-9911. In addition, application forms are available online at www.house.gov/delahunt/svcacad.htm.

Century 21 Abigail Adams Recognized For Outstanding Sales, Customer Service

Five sales associates of Century 21 Abigail Adams in Quincy were recently recognized with some of the corporation's highest awards and sales achievements at the Century 21 International Convention held recently in San Diego.

Sam Rounseville was recognized for outstanding sales achievement earning the distinguished Double Centurian Award. This is the first time this award has been bestowed on a Quincy Realtor.

In addition, Rounseville was given the honor as "Uncle Sam" to carry the Century 21 banner in the League of Nations parade where agents from over 30 countries were presented to the attending audience of more than 5,000 professional Realtors.

Other sales associates at Century 21 Abigail Adams recognized for their outstanding sales achievements.

Vinny Scarnici received with the Ruby Award and Quality Service Award. Former sales associate John Boey was awarded the Diamond Award.

In addition, Sandra Fennelly and broker/owner Jayne Magown were awarded the individual Quality Service Award for the highest level of customer service.

The office of Century 21 Abigail Adams was also the recipient of the prestigious Quality Service Pinnacle Award. This award recognizes excellence in customer service with a rating score of 95% or higher from the past year's Sellers and Buyers.

"This is a very important award and not easily achieved," according to Sales Manager Sandra Fennelly. "We strive for setting our standards high and our team approach to transactions provides added accountability to our customers. It is with great confidence our sellers and buyers are assured top level service second to none."

The office was also awarded the Gold Medallion Award for continuous sales success.

Century 21 Abigail Adams is located at 221 West Squantum St., North Quincy. For more information, call 617-471-7575.

What's Bugging You In Your Home?

By LANCE WALHEIM
For News USA

(NU) — Bugs. They're everywhere — more than a million species of insects to be exact. Most are beneficial. But some bugs can damage your home and impact your family's health. Consider these facts:

• Cockroaches can spread at least 33 kinds of bacteria and six kinds of parasitic worms.

• Wood-destroying insects (termites and carpenter ants) cause structural damage in excess of $5 billion per year.

• Flea bites can cause dermatitis.

• Ants can infest stored food.

• Most spiders are harmless, but, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, nearly 10,000 spider bites are reported annually. About 20 percent come from brown recluse spiders — one of six poisonous spiders in the United States. A wound from one of these spiders can grow to 10 inches in diameter and take months to heal.

The best way to control pests is to prevent them from entering your home. This is accomplished by removing the things that attract pests:

• Fix leaky plumbing and don't let water accumulate anywhere in and around your home.

• Store food in sealed glass or plastic containers.

• Keep the kitchen free of cooking grease and food particles.

• Caulk cracks and crevices to control pest access.

• Bathe pets regularly so they don't carry fleas and ticks into your home.

For years, the ingredients Dursban and diazinon have been popular chemicals for getting rid of insects. But now Dursban is no longer available and diazinon is being phased out, so consumers are looking for alternatives.

One to consider is Bayer Advanced Home Pest Control, which contains cyfluthrin — a new-generation pesticide. It kills ants, roaches, termites, fleas, spiders and a broad range of other insects for up to nine months indoors and creates a barrier to keep bugs out.

Spray it into cracks and crevices, and other places insects hide indoors. Outdoors, just spray a 3- to 4-foot-wide band alongside the foundation of your home, as well as around windows and doors.

To learn more about caring for your lawn, garden and home and about discounts on various Bayer Advanced products, visit www.bayeradvanced.com or call 1-877-BAYERAH.

Lance Walheim is a gardening expert for Bayer Advanced products.

Study Reveals Molds Pervasive in U.S. Homes

(NU) – According to a recent study conducted by the University of Arizona, the molds most commonly linked to allergies and asthma are growing in every home in America, often in sites that are not routinely cleaned and disinfected.

"Most flourishes in places that people do not tend to think about when cleaning," said Dr. Kelly Reynolds of the University of Arizona Environmental Research Laboratory, who led the study.

The seven-state study found most often on windowsills, in refrigerator seals, under kitchen sinks and on air vents.

Mold also was found at high levels in bathroom, where people tend to concentrate cleaning efforts, suggesting more frequent and effective cleaning is necessary.

The study did not seek to determine the incidence of Stachybotrys – commonly referred to as "hidden," "toxic" or "black" mold, which generally grows behind walls, under stairs or beneath ceiling tiles as the result of a water leak. Because of potentially serious health consequences, if they presence of Stachybotrys is suspected, the home should be checked immediately by a trained professional.

If not properly removed, even common molds can aggravate symptoms of allergies and asthma.

"If mold spores are deposited in the lining of the nose, they can cause hay fever-like symptoms, including sneezing, itching and congestion," said Bill McLin, executive director of the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America. "If these spores reach the lungs they have the potential to trigger asthma."

Mold enters the home through open doors and windows or on clothing, shoes and pets. Inside, mold can grow on virtually any surface when moisture is present.

According to AAFA, you can reduce mold growth throughout the home by:

• Keeping humidity below 40 percent.

• Drying any water leak within 24 hours.

• Removing carpet in bathroom and basements.

• Disposing of moldy material immediately.

• Cleaning hard surfaces regularly with mold-killing products. Allergy or asthma sufferers should ask nonsensitive people to apply cleaning products.

Solutions of soap and water may remove mold stains, but can leave mold spores, which are often invisible to the naked eye, can then quickly re-colonize. To decrease mold in homes, clean regularly with a product like Tilex Mold and Mildew Remover, which is proven to kill and remove 99.9 percent of common household molds.

Because of the potential sensitivities of allergy and asthma sufferers to cleaning products, cleaning should be done by a nonsensitive individual and the area should be allowed to ventilate before reentry. Always read and follow all precautions and usage directions before using cleaning products. For more information on mold, allergies and asthma, log to www.aafa.org.

Hints For Homeowners

Regular Home Maintenance Helps Avoid Costly Repairs

(NAPS) – Showers may bring flowers, but they can also bring leaky basements, moldy walls and costly cleanup. So when you start your spring cleaning, don't forget to check the outside of your home to make sure it's protected from water damage and natural disasters.

These tips from the Institute for Business & Home Safety (IBHS) can help you avoid many unpleasant surprises.

• Make sure gutters are clean and stable. This ensures proper drainage and lessens the chance they will become flying debris in high wind.

• Make sure downspouts are sloping away from the house and carrying water at least five feet away from foundations walls.

• Examine your roof carefully, looking for worn, curled or missing shingles.

• If you can't inspect your roof easily, look for moisture or surface discoloration in your attic.

• Examine window seals or weather stripping.

• Lawn sprinkler heads should not spray the walls of the house.

For more information visit the IBHS Web site www.disastersafety.org, or call toll free 1-866-657-IBHS (4247).

Keep Your Home Cool With These Simple Steps

(NU) – When you need some cool relief on a hot summer day, nothing is worse than an air conditioner that functions poorly or breaks down altogether.

Fortunately, there are simple steps you can take throughout the year to keep your air conditioner running smoothly when you need it most.

Help your air conditioner battle the summer heat with these ideas from the makers of energy efficient Heil air conditioners, furnaces and heat pumps:

• Get a yearly system checkup. Each spring, have a qualified air-conditioning service contractor check your cooling system, perform routine maintenance and make sure it is running at top efficiency. Preventative maintenance to your home or cooling system could save you money and energy.

• Clean your system. Change or clean air filters once a month. During the system checkup, your dealer should clean indoor evaporator and outside condenser air conditioning system's ability to cool your home with less effort, saving you money and prolonging the life of your equipment.

• Stop air leaks. Your home may not be as well insulated as you think. Heat may be escaping around attic doors, water pipes, through attic vents, ductwork or other openings. Your home heating and cooling system may lose as much as 40 percent of overall efficiency from these leaks, so it is important to insulate or seal these areas.

• Rearrange your furniture. Optimize the cooling power of your system by clearing furniture from blocking airflow around your registers and return air grille.

• Upgrade your heating and cooling system. In the long run, purchasing a new and more energy efficient system. For instance, the Heil QuietComfort line of energy efficient air conditioners is made to provide optimal comfort while saving you up to 50 percent on your summer cooling costs.

• Ensure quality installation. If you are purchasing a new air conditioner, make sure that your home heating and cooling specialist is qualified and experienced. According to the Environmental Protection Agency, proper installation can improve airflow up to 70 percent in residential cooling systems, and can increase efficiency by up to 20 percent compared to improper installation.

To find a cooling contractor near you, visit the Heil Web site at www.heil-hvac.com and select "Dealer Locater."

Witnesses Corroborate Keegan On Marathon

run the Marathon and wouldn't admit it was enough to draw the attention of television trucks all the way from Boston and not a few newspaper reporters, who were sure they had caught another city employee faking an injury.

It also roused the curiosity of his bosses in the Quincy police, who were paying him full salary during the time he was out with the disability. He set them straight quickly, but such falsehoods tend to hang on as if reluctant to let go.

"I want to make it clear that I did not run that Marathon," said Keegan. "There should be no lingering doubts. I got home from the doctor's office at 3 p.m. I saw some of the Marathon on TV and I wished that I could have been with those people. But I wasn't."

Keegan, 31, has run seven Boston Marathons and obtained his number for the April 21, 2003, race in December before he jumped into Black's Creek to rescue the woman. He turned it back in when it was obvious his injury prevented him from running. Apparently someone else used the number.

His best time for the 26 miles, 385 yards previously was three hours and 15 minutes, a good deal better than the four hours that was attributed to him this year.

The part of the episode that upsets him the most, says Keegan, is that "I risked my life to save another person and now my integrity is called into question."

His back is not progressing well, either.

"Progress is slight," he said. "We got the results of an MRI the day after the Marathon. It showed a bulging disc. The doctors say they may have to go to alternative treatment. Surgery is a possibility."

Meanwhile, Keegan, a 1990-91 veteran of the Gulf War in Iraq and a Quincy police officer for six years, is still a candidate for the City Council seat from Ward 1 being vacated by Greg Hanley.

It's his first run for public office although he was elected to the Quincy Police Patrolmen's Association board and served as treasurer and vice president.

He is married to the former Michelle Sylvia, daughter of Bob Sylvia, the Quincy High School hockey coach. He played hockey against Sylvia's team while he was at North Quincy High School, where he graduated in 1989.

License Board Briefs

•Granted a permit to conduct a Historic Walk for Education Saturday May 10 starting at 9 am at the Church of the Presidents.

It is sponsored by the Quincy School-Community Partnership. Arthur Keough, executive director of the Partnership said the route will continue past the Adams Academy, the Adams Old House, the Quincy Homestead, Veterans Memorial Stadium and Adams Field. A celebration at Pageant Field will conclude the event.

•Granted a permit to Tad Sheets to move his place of business Bay State Equipment Rental & Sales, Inc. from Liberty St. to 153 Brook Rd. for a garage/repair and storage license pending fire prevention permits.

•The board will attend an appeal meeting at the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission June 9. The Clam Box on Quincy Shore Drive has appealed the board's rejection of a beer and wine license.. Shea said that Police Chief William Falco who was not in attendance at Tuesday's meeting rejected the proposal because of the overall problem of bringing "alcohol back to the beach where other businesses might apply."

DiMuzio's Double Leads Quincy Past Randolph

GIRLS' SOFTBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

Alysia DiMuzio should get an immunity card for missing a bunt sign in the Quincy High School softball team's game against Randolph Monday afternoon at Pageant Field.

After all, the sophomore first baseman instead ended up blasting a double off the right-center field fence, plating senior quad-captain Diane Gilbody with the game-winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning as the Presidents survived for a 4-3 victory.

"They beat us three times last year, including the first round of the playoffs, so it's nice to get them," said head coach Mike Sedar. "The kids were fired up. Hopefully it's kind of like the Sandwich game last year when we won in extra innings and that sparked us for the rest of the season."

Quincy (3-3 overall, 2-1 Atlantic Coast League) hosted Whitman-Hanson yesterday (Wednesday) and today (Thursday) at 3:30 p.m. it faces city rival North Quincy for the second time this season.

Quincy entered Monday's game coming off a pair of losses last week to powerhouse Cardinal Spellman in a home-away series. Although it lost 10-1 and 8-0, Sedar believes the experience will only help in the end.

"I'd like to play them 10 times a year," Sedar said. "It's the best. Strength of schedule. Playing tough teams will make you better prepared at the end of the year. We played them real tough in the second game. We were hitting the ball all over the place and they were just making every play. They're a good team and their program is ahead of ours."

The Presidents jumped out to a 2-0 lead against the Blue Devils with two outs in the first inning. Gilbody (3 for 4, 3 runs) laced a double to right-center and scored when DiMuzio doubled over the left fielder's head. Senior quad-captain Shannon Paine singled off the glove of the diving second baseman to drive in DiMuzio.

Randolph tallied a pair of runs in the third to even the score when junior pitcher Rachel Sorensen yielded a two-run double with two outs. She struck out the next batter to end the inning.

The Blue Devils took a 3-2 lead in the fifth. The leadoff hitter reached on a single, moved to second on a bunt, advanced to third on a bloop single and crossed home plate on a wild pitch.

Quincy's offense, meanwhile, seemed to be in a funk. With just one hit after the first inning — a fourth-inning single by senior quad-captain Liz Campbell — Quincy generated the tying run in the sixth.

Gilbody ripped a leadoff double to left-center and moved to third base when freshman switch-hitter Leanna Lam reached on a bunt single. With one out, senior quad-captain Stacey Andrew knocked in Gilbody with a sacrifice fly to center field.

"I feel like we should be in our 12th game of the season," Sedar said. "But we're only in our sixth and we're making some mistakes that you make early in the season. This was still a nice win for the kids and it was good timing."

Presidents Pull Out 4-1 Win Over Blue Devils

BOYS' BASEBALL

The Quincy High School baseball team pulled out a 4-1 victory in extra innings Monday afternoon at Randolph.

Senior pitcher Anthony Boyle went the distance, allowing just one hit and a walk over eight innings while punching out 14 Blue Devils. The left-hander had a no-hitter going through 5 2/3 innings.

"One of his better games," said head coach Michael Draicchio. "He definitely had his stuff going. They weren't making any contact against him. He was on."

Quincy (2-3 overall, 1-2 Atlantic Coast League) hosted Brighton Tuesday, traveled to Plymouth North Wednesday and today (Thursday) it battles neighboring North Quincy at 7 p.m.

You Auto Know

by Bill Starkie and Kevin McGroarty

A PENETRATING LOOK

Auto experts constantly tout the benefits of regular and frequent oil changes as a means of keeping the engine's internal parts cooled, cleaned, and lubricated. Oil's beneficial effect does not stop there, however. While the piston rings and cylinder walls of the engine may appear to be perfectly smooth, their surfaces are actually very slightly irregular. Microscopic ridges and valleys provide escape routes for vapor and gases during the power stroke and compression of the engine. When, and if, this occurs, the resultant "blowby" causes a loss of engine power. Engine oil helps to preserve optimum performance by sealing off the microscopic outlets. Changing engine oil every 3,000 miles preserves its performance and well-being.

Changing your vehicle's oil on a regular basis is the least expensive way to extend its life. It pays to do it. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550) is your local auto center that can handle all your automotive needs. We are a shop that wants to earn your return business, a shop that treats you like a person and not a number. We never compromise the wonderful reputation we have earned from our many satisfied customers. Hours: Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: The detergents in engine oil disperse dirt and keep it suspended within the oil until it is either filtered or drained away when the oil is changed.

Erin Duggan Runs Third Boston Marathon

ERIN DUGGAN

Erin Duggan recently completed her third straight Boston Marathon in 3:33:35, nearly five minutes faster than last year.

A 1994 graduate of North Quincy High School, where she captained the cross country team her senior year, she went on to star at Bentley College where she also captained the cross country team as a senior.

Wild Win For Red Raiders

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy High School baseball team rebounded from a pair of losses last week with a wild 5-4 victory in 10 innings over Plymouth South Monday afternoon at Adams Field.

The game featured everything from the tying and winning runs coming on a strikeout to a starting pitcher gutting out a complete game to a head coach being ejected by the home plate umpire in the third inning.

"It's an extremely satisfying win for the players," said Rick Del Vecchio, who was tossed when the umpire ruled a runner safe after North Quincy appealed he had missed the third-base bag.

"The kids are working hard, working hard on their defense. They're finally coming together and playing as a team. This is a real positive step for North Quincy baseball."

North Quincy (2-4 overall, 2-2 Old Colony League) hosted Silver Lake yesterday (Wednesday) and today (Thursday) it will battle cross-town rival Quincy at 7 p.m. at Adams Field.

Senior pitcher Gary Dalton turned in a remarkable outing, scattering six hits and three walks with two earned runs over 10 innings while striking out seven.

"Most certainly was an impressive performance," Del Vecchio said. "He was in control from start to finish. He was throwing his curve ball for first-pitch strikes and kept his pitch count down. He put on a real classic performance."

Del Vecchio also praised the effort of junior catcher Andy McAllister, who caught all 10 innings. "He's doing a fabulous job," Del Vecchio said. "He's handling the pitching staff well and is the real backbone of the team, a real team leader."

Trailing 3-1 in the bottom of the seventh inning, North Quincy forced the game into extra innings when sophomore John Fitzgerald pounded a two-run double to plate seniors James Coughlin and James Fidalgo, who had both singled.

The Panthers tallied a run in the 10th frame for a 4-3 advantage but the Red Raiders again had an answer. Senior John Mateu (2 for 3) and junior Steve Reardon (3 for 4) each singled.

Coughlin struck out but the ball got by the catcher and Mateu and Reardon moved to second and third. The catcher's throw to first, however, hit Coughlin's helmet and ricocheted down the first-base line allowing both runners to score for the victory.

Last Friday, North Quincy fell at Taunton, 5-3. The Red Raiders took a 3-0 lead in the first inning on singles by Fitzgerald, senior Dom Delgardo and Mateu (3 for 3).

Senior pitcher Chris Dolbeare and North Quincy were cruising along until the defense committed three errors in the fourth inning, which led to three unearned runs and a 5-3 Tigers' lead. Dolbeare went the distance, giving up four hits and two earned runs with three strikeouts.

Last Thursday, North Quincy dropped a 15-4 decision to Milton at home. Down 4-0 in the fourth inning, the Red Raiders pushed across three runs to trim the deficit.

Delgardo singled to right field, Mateu was hit by a pitch and junior Sean Sullivan walked to load the bases with no outs. Reardon singled over the third baseman's glove to score Delgardo. After an out, Coughlin knocked home Mateu with a sacrifice fly and Sullivan ended up scoring on the play when the catcher tried to throw out Reardon heading to second base.

Milton put the game away in the fifth inning with four runs as the Red Raiders self-destructed with a couple of errors. It added a run in the sixth and six more in the seventh to close out the scoring.

Senior James Zapata had an RBI groundout in the sixth to account for North Quincy's final run.

Babe Ruth Int'l Baseball

Advanced Auto Glass, Infinity Mortgage, Wollaston P.O. Win

Advanced Auto Glass opened its season with a 15-4 win over Imaginative Insurance in recent Quincy Youth Baseball Babe Ruth International League action.

Paul Farina notched the win and added three hits. Eric Moreschi and Andrew Creedon also pitched well. Taylor Brean collected three RBI while Mike Doherty, Tom McKenna and Rob Gardiner each had a pair.

For Imaginative Insurance, Mike Barter pitched three strong innings in relief and had a hit. Dave Cordeiro had two hits. Benn Johnson-Tatelbaum and Nick Venuti each stood out behind the plate as they split time. Steve Livingstone played well defensively.

Infinity 11, Noll 3

Kevin Sullivan went the distance for the win in Infinity Mortgage's season opener. Sullivan, who scattered eight hits, had two hits himself. Dave Casey also had a pair of hits, including a home run. Pat Dunn caught a great game and had a double.

For Noll Electric, Lincoln Riley pitched four strong innings, striking out six. Riley also doubled and scored two runs. Danny Mulligan pitched two innings and had two hits. First baseman Jonathan Glennon, who played well defensively, had a straight steal of home plate.

Wollaston 16, Noll 6

Starting pitcher Justin Boyd fanned seven to pick up the win in Wollaston Post Office's season opener while also adding a single, double and home run at the plate. Brennan Carey, who caught six innings, tossed a scoreless seventh frame and had two hits. Bobby Yovino cracked two hits and scored three runs. Jeff Rackauskas pitched well in relief.

For Noll Electric, Bill Berberan started on the mound and pitched well. Marcellus Lee pitched three innings in relief and also had two hits. Lincoln Riley and Sammy Galaraza stood out defensively.

at Adams Field for the first time this season.

In the eighth inning, the Presidents loaded the bases when senior Ryan Conley singled, senior Jamie Chiocchio doubled and senior Liam Powers reached via an intentional walk.

With one out, senior Matt MacNeil knocked in Conley with a sacrifice fly for the go-ahead run. Junior Dan Cosgrove (3 for 4) added insurance runs when he stroked a two-run single for a 4-1 lead.

"We had people in scoring position all game but we couldn't get any runs across until the eighth inning," Draicchio said.

Quincy scored first in the sixth inning with an unearned run. Chiocchio reached on an error, stole second and scored on a dropped fly ball in the outfield off the bat of senior Rob Muollo.

Randolph evened the score in the bottom half when it broke up Boyle's no-hit bid with a double, and that runner wound up scoring from second base on a wild pitch that reached a distant backstop.

Covais Law Office Prevails Over Spillane Law, 6-1

AAA Youth Baseball

Patrick Joyce fired a no-hitter to lead Covais Law Office to a 6-1 opening day victory over Spillane Law in recent Quincy Youth Baseball Triple A action.

Joyce struck out 17 and walked none. Ryan Bulger and James McManus also turned in strong games.

For Spillane Law, John Downs, Nick Corture and Joe Lynch played well.
